[This is the third instalment of the diary of Mrs. Clare Sherican, the English sculptress. In it she describes the various sittings of Trotzky, during which he told how he got to Russia, gave his views on English poets, and for an instant showed his ferocity. In the fourth instalment, to be published tomorrow, Mrs. Sheridan tells of her vain attempt to obtain a sitting from Tchitcherin, the Foreign Minister, who works day and night and could spare no hour but 4 A. M.; describes proletarian sculptural art, and tells of the death and burial of John Reed.]

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Clare Sheridan's diary today deals with her sittings with Trotzky:

"Oct. 11.—In the morning I accompanied a friend to the headquarters of the Third Internationale. It is in a beautiful house formerly the German Embassy, and where Count Mirbach was murdered. I came away in a car with Mme. Balabanoff, whom I had often heard of.

"She is small, vain and middle-aged, with an ugly, crumpled-up face, but intelligent. I did not find her any too amiable on our way to the Kremlin, where she dropped me. She told me it was absurd that any bust of Lenin or any one else should be done, her theory being that the cause, not the individuals, should count. The humblest person who suffered privation for the cause is equally as important as any of the legislators, she explained, and proceeded to assure me that no picture or bust of herself existed nor ever should. Happily I had not asked her to sit for me.

"She practically told me that I was doing Lenin's head to take back to England to show to the idle curious. I corrected her by saying that so far as the public was concerned I only wished to enable those who had him at present represented by a photograph to substitute a bust. She was equally vehement about photographs. Perhaps she expects to alter human nature. Before I got out of the car she assured me that her tirade was in no way personal, and would I please not misunderstand her.

"Oct. 17.—Litvinoff came to see me in the afternoon and was surprised I had not been to work at Trotzky's. I explained to him that through another comrade Trotzky had flatly refused to be done by me. Litvinoff could not understand this. He said he had seen Trotzky last night, and he had consented and had promised even to be amiable to me. It was then decided that Litvinoff would see Trotzky again during the day and telephone me what arrangements he made.

Precious Present of an Egg.

"He then left me, but came back again in a few minutes bringing me something precious in both hands. It was an egg—a hen's egg. He apologized for having cracked it. That instinctive aversion to accepting valuable presents from men, I stifled, and ate the egg for dinner.

"Oct. 18.—Trotzky's car came for me at 11.30 A. M. and Litvinoff explained to the chauffeur that he was first to go to the Kremlin with me to fetch my things. The chauffeur and myself and the plaster molder, who was there working, carried the things down to the car and I was then driven to some place a long way from the Kremlin, the War Ministry, I think.

"Getting into it was not easy, as I had no pass. The chauffeur went in and explained and there was an altercation with the sentry. I understood the chauffeur exclaiming: "Yes, it is an English sculptor," but the sentry was adamant and I had to wait until the secretary came and fetched me. I went through two rooms of soldier secretaries and finally, with some trepidation, having heard how very intractable he is and knowing his sister, I was ushered in—I and my molding stand and my clay together.

"I had instantly a pleasurable sensation of a room that is sympathetic—big, well proportioned and simple. From behind an enormous writing table in one corner and near a window came forth Trotzky. He shook hands with me welcomingly and asked at once if I talked French.

"He wanted to assist me in moving my stand into the right place. He offered to have his mammoth writing table moved into some other position, if the light was not right. I begged him to do nothing and to take no notice of me whatever.

"The light, from two windows, was certainly very bad. It lit up one side

LEAGUE LEADERS FIND OBSTACLES

MOVE FOR ARMENIA PARLEY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 24 (by telephone to Paris).—American advocates of the League of Nations will be disappointed if they expect too great accomplishments by the first Assembly now meeting here. As a matter of fact, as time goes on the leaders are beginning to discover more and more clearly the great barriers which they face in carrying out the League program. The most damaging factors are two:

First, the fact that the World War has not been finished long enough to permit sincere co-operation by the nations of the world.

Second, the absence of the United States and Germany.

These factors, the League leaders hope, time will remove. But other obstacles are likely to be more enduring, for they are inherent in human nature—the jealousy of little nations for their sovereignty, conflict between the theory of the equality of nations and the fact of their inequality, and the desire by big nations to use the League for selfish purposes.

When the Assembly ends, probably about the first week in December, its big accomplishment will have been that forty-one nations met at the same table to discuss their affairs and difficulties. That never happened before in the history of the world, but it has become clear that it is difficult to get forty-one nations to agree to disarm, to agree to sacrifice certain of their prerogatives, to agree to submit their quarrels to arbitration as long as other nations remain outside the League, and consequently outside the obligations which they have assumed.

France Bars Disarming Now.

I have said that the meeting has taken place too near the great war. How can this be better shown than in the question of disarmament, a matter about which League enthusiasts hoped to make great progress at this meeting? But Bourgeois, for France, lays down the hard fact that France will not take a single step until Germany fulfills the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and until the Allies have the complete power of investigating the state of Germen armament. Yet Bourgeois admits that Germany has begun to fulfill the treaty terms and that is considered hope for the future.

Again France is absolutely against the entry of Germany into the League and has blocked it until Germany shows a better disposition toward the fulfilment of the treaty terms. This is another echo of the war. Many delegates express the opinion that it was a mistake to give the League any task in enforcing the treaty, for whenever any question of that sort comes up those countries which were netural during the war scoff.

The absence of the United States also places a barrier on the whole question of disarmament. This assembly will name a commission to study the problem but the question may be asked how is any one to suppose that England and Japan will agree to limit the number of their warships while America, not being a member of the League, does not submit to a similar undertaking.

Hesitant on World Court Power.

The absence of America and Germany also compromises the position of the world court and is responsible for a certain shyness toward it by the powers in the League. There is a distinct unwillingness to give the court power to hale all independent nations before it,

IRISH PLOT TO BOMB CITIES IN ENGLAND, SECRETARY ASSERTS

COMMONS REJECT CENSURE

GREENWOOD RAPS ASQUITH

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Alleged plans for blowing up the Liverpool docks and the Manchester power and water plants are said to show that they were made in military fashion after detailed reports with drawings had been forwarded to Irish Republican army officers by spies at each place that was destined for destruction.

The plans, which are said to have been captured when the documents relating to the spreading of typhoid and glanders were captured, were made public tonight after the statement of Sir Hamar Greenwood in the House of Commons today.

The Liverpool plan called for twenty-three officers, twenty-seven engineers and seventy-five privates, with 800 pounds of a high explosive, for attacking twenty-one points, most of them dock gates, with a view to stranding ships.

Diversions suggested in the report would consist "of numerous fires in cotton and other warehouses, starting a half hour before the other operations."

Apparently every precaution was taken for dealing with the "enemy forces"—the police of both Liverpool and Manchester. The latter plan dealt with the destruction of the street car power plant in Manchester, serving both industries and tram lines, with hammers and explosives, and also the Clayton Valley pumping station, which furnishes water to a large part of the city.

Suggestions that it was probable Sinn Fein agents would attack prominent persons and property in London and other large cities of England have been current during the last few days, but nothing substantial has been found to lend color to them. The Daily Graphic claimed today that a "high authority" had said the British secret service had discovered a Sinn Fein plot aimed at the citizens of London. The newspaper added that the secret service recently discovered a Sinn Fein plot to destroy property elsewhere, mentioning the Manchester ship canal and the Liverpool docks, "the chosen scenes of Sinn Fein outrages." Elaborate precautions, it is said, have been taken at both places.

The Sinn Fein official publication, The Irish Bulletin, prints what purports to be a circular from the Royal Irish Constabulary headquarters to police inspectors, warning the latter of the Sinn Fein's intention to employ Irish women in committing outrages, and instructing them to remember this when conducting investigations.

Tells of Irish Terrors.

The most conspicuous incident in the Irish debate in the House of Commons today was the revelation by Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, of Sinn Fein plans to destroy property in Liverpool and Manchester, a revelation which was greeted by Joseph Devlin with the exclamation, "All that was written in Dublin Castle."

Specific instructions for the manufacture of certain high explosives had been discovered, the Chief Secretary declared, and two carefully detailed plans for the destruction of a large powerhouse in Manchester and of docks in Liverpool had been found. In the Liverpool case, he said, among the details were instructions regarding action at twenty-one points, involving the use of 800 pounds of gelignite.

Reading other documents showing the effect of the present policy of the Government, Sir Hamar quoted a statement from a high "Republican Army" officer to the effect that the "enemy" had found a very effective method of disrupting the Republican Army's movements. The officer said a sort of terror was creeping in and disorganization setting in in many cases. The officer added that if the volunteers were disrupted all was lost.

The Chief Secretary appealed to the House to show every consideration by word and by resolution for the police, soldiers, civil servants and Judges, who, he declared, were obeying the orders of Parliament and fighting a battle against assassination and not against the Irish people.

The Secretary appealed especially to

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—The Council of People's Commissioners in Russia has directed the Russian Finance Commissioners to prepare a plan within a month for the abolishment of money, according to a Moscow report to the Red Flag, the Communist organ here. The dispatch says it is expected that a moneyless period will be decreed, effective from Jan. 1.

According to this information, payments for necessaries of life by workmen and families in the second category probably will be first abolished along the lines of the Soviet plan, by which gas, water, electricity and telephone service will be furnished. In conclusion the article in the Red Flag says:

"After one year of organized efforts of the victorious proletariat this thousands of years old commercial system falls like a house of cards. Should the moneyless scheme succeed in its first and hardest period here, its adoption by the whole world could be brought about. When our children are grown they will know money only by memory."

Seaplanes to Link New York and Canada

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—The Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., which is the chief Canadian operator of steamships on the Great Lakes, plans next Summer to start an aerial passenger service between Montreal, Toronto and New York.

This announcement was made today by J. W. Norcross, head of the concern, who has just returned from England after having placed contracts for two large British seaplanes to be delivered next Spring.

"The new service will be largely in the way of an experiment," said Mr. Norcross, "but I am convinced that aerial transportation is the one of the future and possessed of unbounded possibilities in a commercial way."

To assure the maximum of safety, he said, water courses would be followed all the way. The planes, which will carry twelve passengers, in addition to two pilots, are credited with a speed of 127 miles an hour.

LORD GREY URGES GENEROSITY TO IRISH

Unless the Government Takes Effective Control It Had Better Withdraw, He Says.

PEERS MAY REJECT BILL

Midleton Urges Postponement, and Unionists Appear to Be Consolidating Opposition.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—The debate in the House of Lords on Irish Home Rule tonight was made memorable by a notable appeal from Viscount Grey, former Secretary for Foreign Affairs, to the Government for an eleventh hour attempt by generosity to Ireland to fashion the bill into an acceptable measure.

In a speech displaying no resentment, and taking full account of the Government's extreme difficulties in Ireland, he urged that unless the Government was able to secure effective control in Ireland it would be better to withdraw all the armed forces and leave Ireland to find her own salvation.

Whether the appeal will be heeded time will show, but it is significant that Earl Midleton intends tomorrow to move adjournment of the debate for a fortnight to give the Government time to consider what amendments, financial and otherwise, it will propose.

Earl Midleton's motion, while genuinely aimed at securing the amendments desired by its promoters, is also intended as a definite trial of strength of the Government's position in the House of Lords with regard to the bill. It is a tactical move by the peers identified with the Unionist Anti-Partition League, who believe that the members of the upper house who for any reason desire the bill amended will support Earl Midleton's motion.

The result of the division may in this case be very close, and the possibility of the defeat of the Government is discussed in the lobbies.

Viscount Grey declared that the real cause of failure in obtaining a settlement was the differences of opinion in Ireland itself. Until these differences were composed, he asserted, there could be no settlement, and the bill before the Lords, to put it mildly, had not made the differences less. It had conciliated Ulster, Viscount Grey said, but had brought the Southern Unionists and Nationalists into opposition.

Lord Grey argued that it would have been better had the Government, instead of preparing a detailed bill, started by laying down in broad lines the limits within which Ireland could have complete autonomy and the minimum which England must reserve for the security and safety not only of herself, but of Ireland.

Minimum for Security.

He outlines this minimum as, first, placing Ireland in precisely the same position with regard to foreign affairs as the great self-governing dominions, with the same right to be consulted about commercial treaties, and, second, only one army in these two islands. He would not, however, contemplate the maintenance of any Imperial troops in Ireland after home rule had passed, unless Ireland desired it.

"I am perfectly certain, and the history of war shows it, that unless there is only one navy and one naval authority, neither Ireland nor Great Britain could be defended," said Lord Grey. "That must be without qualification. Whatever dominion home rule might mean, we must from the beginning have no ambiguity on this question."

With England and Ireland so close together, and under modern conditions of mines and submarines, he continued, it was absolutely inconsistent with the safety of either country that there should be divided naval authority. He admitted that after what had happened in Ireland in the last few weeks he could hardly advocate as a practicable course, as he did recently, that Ireland should be left to say what form of government she desired. But the time might come when the Government would have to consider that method of procedure again.

He would have it clearly understood in Ireland that Great Britain could not go on indefinitely being manoeuvered into the position of either coercing Nationalist Ireland or coercing Ulster, and the greatest lever the Government could

$63,763,357 GIVEN BY ROCKEFELLER IN WIFE'S MEMORY

Son Announces Father's Aid to Charities Through Laura Spelman Fund.

ALL GIFTS NOW $475,000,000

Benefactions Exceed Carnegie's by $125,000,000 and Set Mark in History.

MEMORIAL OF WIDE SCOPE

Women and Children Chiefly Considered, but Million for Palisades Park Is Among Gifts.

Announcement was made yesterday of a gift by John D. Rockefeller, in memory of his late wife, of $63,763,357.37 for the benefit of charities and public institutions chiefly or largely benefiting women and children.

This sum is set apart for the support of the particular organizations which had the support of Mrs. Rockefeller during her lifetime, and for other religious and philanthropic institutions of similar character. Of the total endowment, the sum of $8,010,721.57 already has been appropriated to twenty-two institutions, so that something more than $55,000,000 remains in the fund. Gifts are not restricted to the income of the fund, but may be made from the capital as well.

The fund is being administered by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, chartered in this State and named in honor of the late Mrs. Rockefeller, who died five years ago.

Rockefeller Gifts Reach $475,000,000.

The total benefactions of Mr. Rockefeller have never been made known. Before the Industrial Relations Committee on Jan. 25, 1915, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., said that the closest "guess" he could make as to the total of his father's gifts was $250,000,000. His big gifts since then bring the total to $475,000,000, according to the following table:

Gifts previous to 1915	$250,000,000
Rockefeller Foundation	82,000,000
General Education Board	70,000,000
Rockefeller Institute	10,000,000
Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial	63,000,000
Total	$475,000,000

This includes only those gifts of the last six years which have mounted into the millions and have been publicly announced. It is believed that the complete total would be well above half a billion. The figure of $475,000,000 makes Mr. Rockefeller by far the most munificent giver known to history, the next being Andrew Carnegie, whose philanthropies ran into about $350,000,000.

Mr. Rockefeller, who is 81 years old, began his gifts to religious and charitable institutions seventy-five years ago with pennies. When he got his first job about sixty-five years ago, he became a regular contributor to charities, giving dimes and nickels which he methodically noted in his personal account book. Fifty years ago he was making pretty large gifts. In 1870 he gave $20,000 to the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church in Cleveland.

Mr. Rockefeller married Laura C. Spelman of Cleveland on Sept. 4, 1864. She was two months younger than himself. They had been schoolmates at Cleveland, but Miss Spelman was sent to college at Worcester, Mass., and her friends thereafter looked for something better than a match with John D. Rockefeller, who labored under the social handicap of not being "a college man."

Gave Wife Credit for His Wealth.

During a talk to friends in Cleveland in the year before the death of his wife, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"But for her business sagacity, I would still be a poor man. Many times her advice has been counter to my ideas, but her judgment has invariably proved the better.

"Whatever is good about me, whatever success I have had, I owe to her."

After her death Mr. Rockefeller kept up all the regular contributions which she had made to the charities she was interested in. In order to insure permanent support for her favorite charities, he then organized the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, at first intending it for her special charities. As was the case with the Rockefeller Foundation, the General Education Board and other of his charities, the Memorial quickly grew far beyond its original purposes.

When the statement was made public yesterday, it was said that there was no religious limitations of any kind on the endowment. The breadth of its purposes is shown in the list of twenty-two individual gifts made public yesterday, which includes a number of gifts for missionary work abroad, $1,000,000 for the Palisades Interstate Park Commission and $33,450 for work among Italians in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Rockefeller was a Baptist, and the greatest beneficiaries of the Foundation so far have been Baptist institutions and charities. Various evangelical works are aided. Many of the gifts benefit all classes and creeds.

"For years prior to her death in 1915 my mother was interested in the support of many religious and charitable enterprises. Since her death it has been the desire of my father that in so far as might seem wise those and kindred ob-

TAMMANY FAILS TO STOP GRAFT INQUIRY; MORE BRINDELL BRIBES BEFORE BOARD; PIPE PRICES CONTROLLED BY 13 FIRMS

Brindell and His Lieutenant, Stadtmuller, Indicted on Fresh Charges of Extortion

The November additional Grand Jury, passing on the evidence brought out by the Lockwood Committee investigating housing, yesterday returned two more indictments against Robert P. Brindell, "boss" of the unionized buildings trades. Both indictments alleged extortion, and they brought the total of the penalties the labor leader faces, if found guilty, up to fifty-two and a half years.

At the same time the Grand Jury returned an indictment charging extortion against Peter Stadtmuller, characterized by Judge Joseph Mulqueen in General Sessions as "Brindell's 'chief of staff.'" Stadtmuller furnished $100,000 bail, while Brindell's bond of the same amount was continued.

In the proceedings the State intimated that Friday morning, when both men are to appear in court to make the customary motions, would bring forth a request for more bail for Brindell.

The first indictment returned was aimed solely against Brindell. It charged him with extortion in that he obtained $500 from Louis J. Cohen, house wrecker, on threats to call a strike of the workmen on Cohen's jobs at 122 to 128 East Twenty-third Street and at 121 to 125 East Twenty-second Street. The witnesses who testified in this connection before the Grand Jury were Mr. Cohen, Theodore E. Rhodes and Samuel B. Donnelly.

The indictment returned against Brindell and Stadtmuller jointly charged that on July 14 last they had extorted $1,000 from the Garden City Wrecking Company on threats that if the money was not paid the company's business would be ruined. The company was then engaged on demolition work throughout the city.

TAKE $40,000 FROM THIEF-PROOF SAFE

"Keep Quiet!" Cries Victim to Police; "Say, Did You Ever Lose $40,000?"

MORE BIG THEFTS REPORTED

Diamonds valued at $40,000 were stolen early yesterday from Joseph Lubitz, wholesale jeweler of 740 Broadway, Brooklyn, by burglars who apparently had spent an entire night trying to rip open a small steel safe. This was one of about twenty large thefts reported to the police yesterday.

When Lubitz went to his salesroom yesterday morning he found the room full of smoke, as warm as on a mid-Summer day, and fragments of his shattered steel safe were so hot that he could hardly touch them. Drills, acetylene gas torches and "can openers" were scattered around, as if the thieves had fled in haste, afraid to carry their burglars' tools with them in daylight. There were other signs that the burglars had left with their loot just before Lubitz arrived.

Lubitz's safe was new and "burglar proof." When he left Tuesday night he turned on the lights and threw up the blinds so that passengers on the Flushing Avenue station of the Broadway elevated line could peer into every corner of the room. The safe, with a light in front of it, was in full view from the station.

The thieves pried their way into an adjoining office, out of view of the station, broke into Lubitz's salesroom, pulled down the blinds, and went to work. It is a police theory that they had a look-out on the elevated station.

"Night's Work for Professionals."

Police found every indication that the burglars were "professionals," but that they had a long night's work in trying to tear a door off the new "burglar-proof" safe. They had hitched up an electric motor to the light socket (Lubitz will have to pay the expenses for electricity), and then rumed about seven bits trying to drive a hole through the steel. An acetylene flame was applied to the hinges, and two huge "can openers" were used.

Lubitz called in Captain Daniel Carey of the Sixteenth Detective Bureau, who advised silence.

"Keep quiet?" sputtered Lubitz. "Say, did you ever lose $40,000"

Eight other robberies came to light in Brooklyn yesterday, the losses ranging from a few hundred dollars to thousands. One was that of Michael Curcio, tailor, of 2,769 Atlantic Avenue, who reported a loss of $3,000 worth of apparel several days ago.

Hearing a burglar alarm in the stockroom of William Gaugel & Son, furriers, of 49 West Third Street, early yesterday, Detective John Kelly of the Mercer Street station ran up and arrested one man. He found $8,000 worth of furs packed near a hole in the floor, which apparently had been cut by men standing on boxes on the floor below. The prisoner, who said he was Max Miller of 89 Ludlow Street, was held in $10,000 bail by Magistrate Schwab in the Jefferson Market Court.

Cordiality Leads to Arrest.

Patrolman Patrick J. Carr of the East 104th Street Police Station was passing the meat market of William Buchler at 104th Street and Third Avenue when he saw a man at work among the Thanksgiving turkeys. The man spoke cordially to the policeman, which was something unusual these days, and Carr became suspicious. He called Buchler, who said the man was a thief. At the station the prisoner said he was Albert Lent of 427 West Thirty-sixth Street.

INDICT HIRSHFIELD; NOW AFTER ENRIGHT

HELD UNDER BAIL OF $1,000

Investigation of Police Commissioner Revealed by Subpoena for Dominic Henry.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, was indicted yesterday by the Extraordinary Grand Jury, charged with publishing a libel against James E. Smith, Assistant District Attorney, and former Governor Charles S. Whitman, and of "unlawfully and maliciously" contriving to expose them "to hatred, contempt, ridicule and obloquy," and of causing them "to be shunned and avoided." Mr. Hirshfield was held in $1,000 bail, which was furnished by City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer.

The case of "The People against Richard E. Enright" is also before the Grand Jury, it was learned yesterday, but no report relating to Police Commissioner Enright was handed up to Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks when the Hirshfield indictment was filed. The Enright proceedings became known after former Police Inspector Dominick Henry had refused to testify until he received a subpoena showing the person against whom the inquiry was directed. The subpoena was issued and former Inspector Henry left the courtroom with it in his hand. He was hailed by Ferdinand Q. Morton, Assistant District Attorney, who said:

"Inspector Henry, turn that subpoena over to the Warden, won't you?"

Wants Subpoena "as Souvenir."

"No, sir," replied Henry. "I'll do no such thing. I intend to put it in a frame and keep it as a souvenir."

Henry told reporters the subpoena named Richard E. Enright as the subject of the inquiry. He added:

"That bunch of brigands! Why should I show them any consideration? They've never shown me any. They indicted me for telling them the truth."

The indictment of Commissioner Hirshfield and the proceedings involving Commissioner Enright are the result of the Grand Jury's inquiry into charges that certain public officials failed to do their duty in gambling and vice investigations. Commissioner Hirshfield last May made public charges by Bernard Friedman against Mr. Smith to the effect that Smith promised Friedman "protection" if he wished to run disorderly houses or gambling houses. Henry, then a police inspector, also published charges against Smith, and as a result was indicted by the Extraordinary Grand Jury for perjury. Smith, himself, was also indicted, but in an entirely different matter—that relating to the financial ventures of Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, in the Malto-Dextrine Company.

Questions and Answers Quoted.

The indictment against Commissioner Hirshfield quotes in full the questions and answers in the examination of Friedman. Friedman's answers are interpreted in the indictment as making the following charges:

"That James E. Smith would willfully and corruptly neglect his duty as Assistant District Attorney to investigate and inform against violations of the provisions of the Penal Law of the State of New York, which makes it unlawful to keep gaming or betting establishments and to keep gambling apparatus, and would permit Bernard Friedman without interference from the District Attorney to run disorderly houses and gambling establishments in violation of the Penal Law of the State of New York.

"That James E. Smith had unlawfully and corruptly neglected to perform his official duty by assisting and protecting Bernard Friedman and violating the Plumbers' Supply Men Did It Openly Till They Heard About the Law.

MORE BRIBES FOR BRINDELL

Two Contractors Tell New Stories of Tyranny and Persecution.

The Lockwood Committee's investigation of housing conditions was marked yesterday by a series of exciting events which took place in the Criminal Courts Building, the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and the County Court House.

The developments included:

The handing down of three indictments by the Additional Grand Jury, two against Robert P. Brindell, head of the Building Trades Council and one against Peter Stadtmuller, one of his delegates, all charging extortion. There are now four indictments against Brindell.

A desperate effort by contractors closely associated with Tammany Hall interests to block the investigation by obtaining three injunctions against the committee forbidding examination of the books of the Builders Supply Bureau and the Association of Dealers in Masons' Materials, whose members include John A. McCarthy, friend and former business partner of Charles F. Murphy, and Wright O. Loss of the Empire Brick and Supply Company, head of the so-called "brick trust." The committee balked all attempts to tie up its proceedings when Samuel Untermyer, its counsel persuaded Justice Alfred R. Page of the Appellate Division and Supreme Court Justice John V. McAvoy that the committee had power to compel the appearance of witnesses and the examination of books.

The adjudgment in contempt of the Lockwood committee of Elizabeth O'Dea, a witness who failed to appear in response to a subpoena, and the threat of contempt proceedings against David Asch, law associate of Martin Conboy, counsel for the Builders' Supply Bureau, the Association of Dealers in Masons Materials and the Tammany contractors.

Pipe Industry Under Control.

Testimony before the committee by Charles G. Cornell Jr. of Cornell & Underhill, jobbers and dealers in plumbing materials, that 75 per cent. of the wrought steel pipe industry in the United States is controlled by three powerful corporations, the National Tube Company, which is part of the United States Steel Corporation; the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and the Republic Iron and Steel Company. He said the bulk of the wrought iron pipe business was in the hands of two companies, the Reading Iron Company and A. M. Bayer & Co. Prices were "usually absolutely uniform," he said. Dealers and jobbers were limited to doing business with nine manufacturers of wrought steel pipe and four of wrought iron pipe, the only concerns doing business in this line in the country. The National Tube Company alone controls half the wrought steel business of the country.

Admissions by Cornell that eighteen jobbers and dealers in plumbing materials met once a month at luncheon in the Wool Club, and that he sent out price lists, which were followed by most of the dealers, who made similar prices to their customers.

Revelation of the first direct connection between Robert P. Brindell and John T. Hettrick, the lawyer who organized Codes of Practice for plumbing, heating and ventilating and cut stone contractors, Sidney H. Sonn, a builder, testified that two plumbing contractors had to give up work on a contract for $37,500 which he later had to give to Jarcho Brothers, a member of the "clique", for $85,783, after pressure against the other plumbers had been brought by the Master Plumbers' Association through walking delegates of the Building Trades Council.

Contractor Under Pressure.

The Master Plumbers' Association, acting in concert with the council, called strikes on the work because it was not being done by one of the inner group of plumbing contractors associated with Hettrick. When Sonn could not get plumbers he had to give the contract at a higher rate to Jarcho Brothers, and was forced to pay the two previous contractors $22,000 for the work they did. A job that was to cost him $37,500 actually cost $107,779 before he was finished, because of these difficulties. Deducting about $15,000 for "extras," he said the work cost $92,000. The "clique" whose bids were controlled by Hettrick bid from $82,000 to $86,000 while the successful bidder, not in the ring, got the contract for $37,500; Previous testimony has indicated that the contractors paid from 1 to 4 per cent. into a fund maintained in Hettrick's office for "insurance," and that Hettrick got a quarter of the fund.

Testimony of Anthony A. Paterno of Paterno Bros., builders, of having paid $4,750 to Brindell and his delegates, Pike and Chapman, to obtain "insurance" against labor troubles; of this amount $1,750 was given to Brindell, he said, and $3,000 to Pike and Chapman for Brindell.

Declaration of Edward J. White, member of Carpenters' Union 366, that on one construction job the payroll was padded, calling for 242 men when only 38 were at work. He did not know whether or not the money went to the "Compensation Bureau" maintained by Brindell's council. He testified to having been assaulted and beaten by Brindell's men on the floor of the union several days ago when he objected to the payment by the carpenters of $1 to the Compensation Bureau and urged the withdrawal of the delegate of the union from Brindell's organization.

Legal Battle to Stifle Inquiry.

The first intimation yesterday of the tremendous legal battle being waged behind the scenes on behalf of the great contracting interests and their political affiliations was revealed by an announcement made by Mr. Untermyer following his visit to Justice McAvoy's chambers.

The lawyer said that at the close of the proceedings the previous day Miss Elizabeth O'Dea, stenographer and bookkeeper of the Builders Supply Bureau, had been asked to produce the books of the organization. Previously she had made application through Martin Conboy to Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss to have the subpoena vacated. This was denied and Miss O'Dea appeared before the committee.

The books were produced late in the afternoon, and the committee was about to go into the contents when it was suggested that a conference between Mr. Conboy and Mr. Untermyer as to the books be held. Mr. Conboy agreed to let him know at 7 o'clock Tuesday night what course had been agreed on with reference to the books, said Mr. Untermyer, but after 8 o'clock Mr. Conboy notified him that he was trying to get an order to show cause and to stay the examination of the books.

"Mr. Conboy's action seemed to Mr. Untermyer out of order, as the books had already been produced and were in its custody, but as a courtesy Mr. Conboy had been permitted to take them over night to his office, a courtesy which I now perhaps ought to regret having extended," Mr. Untermyer added.

Just as the session was about to open yesterday, Mr. Untermyer was surprised to be served with an order to show cause, together with a stay, on two applications involving production of the books and papers. One was on behalf of Miss O'Dea and the other on behalf of S. J. Treat, Secretary of the Association of Dealers in Masons' Building Materials.

The orders had been granted by Justice McAvoy, Mr. Untermyer continued, although he was not sitting in the part of the court in which such orders had to be applied for under the rules. Mr. Conboy swore that he could not reach the Judge then assigned, and had therefore gone to Judge McAvoy.

Mr. Untermyer said that after he and Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger argued the matter before Justice McAvoy the latter vacated both stays. He then called for Miss O'Dea. She did not appear, and David Asch, associated with Mr. Conboy, attempted to make a statement.

Chairman Lockwood rebuked Mr. Asch, saying that an agreement had been made which had not been kept, and ordered the Sergeant at Arms to remove the lawyer. Asch walked quickly over to his seat. On the request of Mr. Untermyer Miss O'Dea was directed in contempt of the committee and formal papers against her were ordered drawn up.

Chairman Lockwood gave a member of the committee an order for the production of the books and papers, at Mr. Untermyer's suggestion.

"We shall see whether the proceedings of this committee are to be flouted and disobeyed or whether there is enough law in the State of New York to secure the production of the papers," declared Mr. Untermyer.

The committee's representative waited in Mr. Conboy's office, but the [illegible] was engaged in another move to keep the books away from the examiners. He obtained from Justice Alfred R. Page of the Appellate Division an order directing Mr. Untermyer and Mr. Berger to show cause why they should not be stayed from the examination of witness's books and papers pending an appeal from the decision of Justice Hotchkiss on Tuesday.

The order was returnable forthwith and was served at the opening of the afternoon session at 3 o'clock. The committee took an adjournment until Tuesday and Mr. Untermyer and Mr. Berger hurried to the Appellate Division at Twenty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue. By order of Justice Page reporters were not permitted to be present when the argument was made in chambers.

When the attorneys emerged two hours later they agreed in saying that the motion for a stay had been denied and that Mr. Conboy had agreed to produce the books and papers before the committee and also to direct the attendance of an officer of the Builders Supply Bureau to give testimony if required. Miss O'Dea was not mentioned by name but it was implied that she would be required to testify at the resumption of the committee's hearings next week. Had Justice Page granted the application the proceedings of the Lockwood committee would have been halted for about a month, and as the committee's powers do not go beyond Jan. 1, it would have meant that the inquiry would have come to an end.

Mr. Conboy has not exhausted the legal resources available to him in his attempt to prevent the use of the books. His motion appealing from the decision of Justice Hotchkiss is still pending and is to be argued in a few days.

Uniform Prices on Pipe.

Mr. Cornell testified that the dealers and jobbers in pipe all over the country had to buy wrought steel pipe from nine manufacturers who controlled the market and iron pipe from four manufacturers who had control.

Cornell said he did a business of $1,000,000 annually and sold plumbing supplies and material to contractors in the plumbing, heating and electrical lines. He said he was a member of the National Pipe and Supply Association and the Plumbers' Supply Association of New York.

Cornell was asked whether the dealers in iron pipe were very sociable. He said they were and that eighteen of them met once a month at luncheon. The list of members of the luncheon parties showed that the plumbing supply companies, and not individuals, were members, and when questioned about this Mr. Cornell said it was true and that the various companies, and not the individuals who attended, paid the dues.

"So that is not social, but you meet to talk business?" the lawyer asked.

"Yes."

Asked to mention some of the large concerns which did not take part in the luncheons, Mr. Cornell mentioned Louis Greenberg, an east side concern, located in Suffolk Street, and the Standard Plumbing Supplies Company, which was invited but declined to attend. Greenberg was not invited. His impression was that none of the eighteen members of the luncheon party did less than $500,000 business annually.

The luncheons have been taking place since 1900, he said. There was a time when prices were openly fixed at the meetings, he admitted, but this has not been done since 1905 or 1906.

Cornell admitted there was a great uniformity in the prices of pipe. Mr. Untermyer asked him wnether the price varied uniformly. "When the price goes up it goes up uniformly, and when the price goes down it goes down uniformly?" Cornell replied in the affirmative.

Mr. Untermyer began questioning the witness as to the manner in which the prices were changed. He wanted to know who acted as pace maker.

"Is it, or is it not, true that all the twenty gentlemen concerned in this luncheon send out periodical price lists whenever there is a change?" asked Mr. Untermyer. "I think they do," the witness answered.

Cornell said he sent his price lists to his competitors, but that he did not receive any price lists from them, his competitors making up their own price lists and sending them to their customers. No price lists have been sent out since Sept. 1, he said later.

"Do all the members of this luncheon party change their price lists at the same time?" he was asked. "Yes, I suppose they do," he said.

Mr. Untermyer wanted to know from the witness the "hypnotic process that brings about this peculiar result, that on a given date you change the price list and send out another and your competitors do the same and the price lists are all alike."

Cautioned About the Law.

Cornell said he sent out his lists "as a matter of information, with the hope that our competitors will follow these prices." He said that not all of his competitors sent out the same price lists. At the luncheons the members were "very careful" not to talk of price fixing, because a long time ago they were advised that price fixing was illegal.

Questioned as to his profits, Cornell said he reckoned on getting a margin of 10 per cent. net. His overhead was about 36 or 40 per cent. Mr. Untermyer asked him whether the luncheons consisted merely in "consuming a menu and saying good-day and then separating, talking about everything but business."

The witness said the members talked about "past business" and "general business, but they never fix prices." He denied being the "pacemaker" among plumbing supplies dealers. Mr. Untermyer read the following stenographic record of the witness's examination before Leonard Wallstein and Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger:

Q.—And as a general thing, the rest of the congenial social crowd follow these prices? A.—Sure.

Mr. Cornell said similar questions had been put to him, but he did not remember. He said he did not usually use the word "sure." After half a dozen questions along this line, Cornell maintaining he could not remember what he said, he finally declared, "I may have said 'surely.'" Mr. Untermyer amended the question to suit Cornell's "fastidious taste."

The National Pipe Supply Association, of which Cornell said he was a member, consists of about two hundred jobbing houses. He said the national organization issued a "circular letter" "as the occasion may require," but that the letters did not speak of the cost of material.

Big Concerns Control Industry.

Mr. Untermyer took the witness into a discussion of the business of manufacturing wrought iron and steel. He said there were not many concerns in this line, but that those in the business were very big. Some of the great corporations, he said, were the National Tube Co., which is part of the U. S. Steel Corporation; the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, the Wrought Iron and Steel Company.

Q.—And the Wrought Iron and Steel Company? A.—Very large.

Q.—So there are only nine manufacturers of wrought steel pipe and only four manufacturers of wrought iron pipe in the United States? A.—That is right.

Q.—That makes combination pretty easy, doesn't it? A.—I would not go as far as that.

Q.—Well, go as far you please. A.—I am trying to go along your line.

Q.—That does make combination pretty easy; when there are only a few people to be considered, luncheon parties are less expensive and meetings are more accessible. There is a uniform price charged to you all by the wrought iron and steel pipe people? A.—Usually there is, but this year we have been buying pipe at prices ruling on day of shipment.

Q.—I understand that, but that price is uniform, too? A.—Usually it is.

Q.—You can't get a quotation ahead? A.—No, if you would like to see them, I have brought these with me.

The witness was unable to produce a list of prices of wrought iron pipe because the Reading Iron Company, from whom he bought his iron pipe, had a strike on, and he admitted that his business was practically paralyzed because of the strike.

He was unable to get wrought iron pipe, he said, because the business of the country was practically in the hands of two manufacturers, the Reading Iron Company and A. M. Bayer of Pittsburgh, while the Cohoes Rolling Mill Company of Cohoes, N. Y., merely made a small range of sizes. He agreed with Mr. Untermyer that it was a bad condition when the entire country had to rely on two concerns for wrought iron pipe. In former times, he said, there were a great many manufacturers of wrought iron pipe, but it has now gotten down to two large concerns and two small ones, which control the business.

The matter of absorption of mills by larger interests was the next subject in the examination. Mr. Untermyer asked Cornell whether it was not true that eighty mills combined. The witness said it was something like eighteen.

History of Mill Combine.

Mr. Untermyer asked the witness if the combined capital did not aggregate $180,000,000. Cornell said he had the information in his "scrapbook."

Q.—They were formed in 1898? A.—I have it in my scrapbook.

Q.—I don't need any scrapbook; I know all about it. That is the same time the tinplate manufacturers were organized? A.—About the same time.

Q.—There is the National Tube Company, the American Steel and Wire Company and the American Tinplate Company? A.—Yes.

Q.—And then they put them all together into one company? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, at that time, don't you know that when the National Tube Company was organized there were something like eighty tube works in the country, and most of them were shut down, they were old, and not well adapted to the manufacture—. A.—I think you are mistaken as to the number.

Q.—Well, they built one great works? A.—They built two great works; one at Lorain; and rebuilt another one.

Q.—The Lorain works is the largest? A.—I think so, but I am not sure but that the McKeesport plant is larger.

Q.—Well, as it is now, the McKeesport and the Lorain Works today do the bulk of the business of the National Tube Company? A.—Yes, sir.

Many Plants "Scrapped."

Q.—And many of the other concerns have been shut down and scrapped? A.—I think so, yes.

Q.—Now, coming to the wrought steel pipe, the bulk of the business in wrought steel pipe is done by three concerns, isn't it? A.—What do you mean? The Youngstown and Republic Company.

Q.—Yes. A.—My last information is that the National company does about 45 per cent.

Q.—The National Tube Company? From 45 to 50 per cent., isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Of the business of the country? A.—Yes, and I don't remember the proportion of the other two.

Q.—The prices are absolutely uniform, aren't they? A.—They usually are, yes.

Q.—Do you know how they are fixed? A.—I do not have anything to do with it.

Q.—You would not be in that game, would you? That is too big? A.—That is a little large. I think they are usually fixed by the National sending out—

Q.—Isn't it a fact that the National sends out the prices and the others follow? A.—That is the usual procedure, although I have known the Youngstown to do it, and the Wheeling follow, and the rest of them——

Q.—But it does not make any difference where you get the steel pipe; it is about the same price? A.—Yes.

Q.—It is absolutely the same price? A.—It has been heretofore; I do not know what position they will take.

Hounded by Master Plumbers.

Mr. Sonn said that on June 5, 1919, he began the alteration of an apartment house known as the Peter Stuyvesant, at Central Park West and Eighty-sixth Street, to a hotel, at a cost of about $500,000 to $600,000.

The first plumbing contractor, said Sonn, was Joseph Lipkoff of 1,822 Third Avenue, who contracted to do the work for $57,500. Lipkoff had paid his initiation fees and dues as a member of the Master Plumbers' Association but had not received written notice of membership.

After the work had been under way several weeks, Chapman, a delegate of the plumbers' union, called on Sonn and said that Lipkoff was not a member of the Master Plumbers' Association. Sonn insisted that Lipkoff was a member and had been using union men, and was informed by the walking delegate that at a meeting held by the Master Plumbers on the previous evening Lipkoff had been refused admission.

Chapman said he would have to call the plumbers off the job, as the plumbers had an agreement which bound them to work only for members of the Master Plumbers' Association. On getting in touch with Lipkoff the contractor informed Sonn he knew nothing of the reported refusal of the Master Plumbers to confer membership on him, but later in the day he called up Sonn and said he had just received a letter from the association which refused him membership.

Thereupon Lipkoff, Sonn and Henry Mark of Stoddard & Mark, lawyers, went to the District Attorney's office, as Sonn said he felt that the case was plainly in restraint of Lipkoff's free action. They saw Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley, who got the Master Plumbers to write a letter to the union asking that the old men be put back to work. There was no prosecution of any of those involved, he said, and the letter of Talley was all that the District Attorney's office did. But the men did not go back to work.

Another Plumber Undermined.

Sonn had to make another contract with another plumber, he testified. The new plumber was Albert F. Deischel of 584 East 169th Street. Deischel was a member of the Master Plumbers' Association and was also using plumbers who were members of Robert P. Brindell's Building Trades Council.

Deischel started working and after several weeks there was a strike and he was unable to go on. During the strike, said the witness, Deischel came to him and said: "Mr. Sonn, there are other influences being brought to bear that are stronger than I, and I must give up the job." Deischel thefore canceled the contract.

Suggestion then came to Sonn that he use Jarcho Brothers, plumbing contractors, to complete the work. He said he went to see Mr. Knight, an officer of the Master Plumbers' Association, who said that Jarcho would have the "moral support" of the association, and told him to rest assured that Jarcho would complete the work without any difficulty.

Sonn thereupon made a contract with Jarcho Brothers to have the work completed. Jarcho's payment called for $85,783. He had paid Deischel $17,164 and Lipkoff $4,831 for their share of the work. The total amount he paid was $107,779 on a job for which he had contracted to pay $37,500. He had a few extras that he had Jarcho Brothers do, but the net result was that he paid $92,000 for work which he had under contract for $37,500.

Jarcho, said the witness, was one of the original bidders. He was one of the "clique," he said, and all members of the "clique" put in estimates ranging from $62,000 to $66,000.

In this connection it was recalled that several weeks ago Maurice Jarcho, a member of Jarcho Brothers, testified before the Lockwood Committee that he had been a member of John T. Hettrick's Code of Practice among the plumbing contractors. This ring consisted of a small group, the evidence showed, who were members of the Master Plumbers' Association. The estimates were all sent to Hettrick, who changed them so that the man whose turn it was would get the contract. Sonn's testimony threw the first clear light on the relations between Hettrick and Brindell, both of whom have testified that they did not know each other, although in one of his letters to Mayor Hylan, Hettrick spoke of "the labor unions I represent."

Paid Brindell $4,750.

Anthony A. Paterno of 225 West Seventy-first Street, a member of the firm of Paterno Brothers, builders, told of paying $4,750 to Brindell and his delegates, Pike and Chapman. The money was made in two payments. He said he gave Pike and Chapman, Brindell's agents, $3,000 in order to prevent the calling of a strike on a building in the course of construction, and gave Brindell $1,750 after trouble began on another job.

In the latter part of January, 1920, he was informed by Chapman of the Building Trades Council, he said, that as the bricklayers were getting $10 a day the other mechanics would have to be paid that amount if there was to be no trouble on the building at 220 West Seventy-first Street. The delegate also said that there were some laborers on the work who did not belong to his council. The laborers, however, were all union men, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Several weeks later Pike and Chapman called on him and he sent for Jeremiah Murphy of Loisette & Murphy, a business friend. A meeting was arranged, which took place at Murphy's office. Besides Pike and Chapman two other delegates of the council were present. Chapman said that Paterno's two jobs were going to be "pulled," and that the only way to avoid a strike was to pay $8,000. Chapman made the statement in the presence of the others, the witness testified.

"What did you say?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"I told him it was terrible," replied the witness. The room full of spectators roared with laughter.

Paterno said he told Chapman he could not see why he had to pay such a sum, and after conferring with Murphy he offered the delegates $1,000. The labor men talked it over in an anteroom and then agreed that $3,000 was the lowest they could accept. The sum was to go to prevent strikes on the Seventy-second Street building and on a building on West 103d Street, near West End Avenue.

Paterno said it was arranged that the money was to be paid in the office of Loisette and Murphy the same afternoon. Accordingly he drew a check for $3,000, had it cashed and then went to the office of Loisette & Murphy. He said he put the money "on a bench" in the anteroom and Chapman picked it up and put it into his pocket. The delegates left assuring him that he would have no further trouble.

"And did you have any further strikes or trouble?" asked Mr. Untermyer. 'No, sir," replied the witness.

Paterno told of another transaction, this time with Brindell. It concerned a building at 220 West Seventy-first Street. Six hours after work was begun wrecking the old buildings there was trouble. Peter Stadtmuller, delegate for Brindell, informed him that if he did not use Louis Cohen, a wrecking contractor, on the work he could not go ahead with it and no work would be done on the building which he was planning to erect.

The witness said the work was being done by another contractor who was using men of the old House Wreckers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Accompained by Murphy he went to see Brindell at the latter's office, 12 St. Mark's Place. Brindell told Paterno that the job was "unfair" and was being done by men who were not members of the council.

Paterno said the men had union cards and Brindell told him that the work should have gone to some contractor who signed an agreement with the council to use none but council men. At first Brindell insisted that Paterno dismiss the house wrecker then engaged on the work, and when the builder insisted that he would have a lawsuit on his hands if he took that action, Brindell said the next thing was to "unionize the job." This meant that Paterno would have to pay $50 "initiation fee" for each of the thirty-five men at work.

Paterno agreed to pay the $1,750. He called again on Brindell the same afternoon, again in company with Murphy. They were ushered into Brindell's office and Paterno said he placed the money in cash on the desk. Brindell said that everything would be "fixed up," and there would be no more trouble. He did not receive the union cards for the house wreckers, he said.

The next meeting of the committee will be held on Tuesday at 10 A. M.

SMALL REBEL BAND APPEARS ON BORDER

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 24.—The reported presence along the lower border on the American side of several former Carranza military commanders, including Generals Lucio Blanco and Alfredo Ricaut, and their possible connection with the sortie into Mexico on Monday of a small band of supposed Mexican rebels, is causing concern among military officials at Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, it was learned today.

Troops sent in pursuit of the band which raided Ramirez, Tamaulipas, on Monday, had not captured any of the band up to early today, it was announced in Matamoros.

No official announcement has been made of the result of the election in Tamaulipas two weeks ago, in which Luis Caballero was opposed for Governor of the State by Caesar Lopez de Lara. Both sides claim victory. In some quarters the belief was expressed today that followers of the defeated candidate might align themselves with any organized movement against the Federal Government.

FOURTH INQUIRY ON SCHOOLS LIKELY

CRAIG ALSO INVESTIGATING

Possibility of a fourth investigation of charges of collusive bidding on school contracts was indicated yesterday afternoon when the Board of Education adopted a resolution authorizing Anning S. Prall, President of the Board, to request the State Department of Education to assign legal aid for such an inquiry. The Lockwood Committee, the Board of Estimate and Controller Charles L. Craig already have investigations of these contracts in progress.

The adoption of the resolution followed receipt of a letter from Controller Craig to the Board of Education calling attention to eighteen school construction contracts in his office awaiting approval before payment. In his letter the Controller said in part:

"In view of the disclosures incident to the inquisition now being conducted by the Lockwood Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, before taking any action, I would thank you kindly to advise me whether you have conducted any inquiry as to the facts and circumstances under which the bids for these contracts were submitted and the awards thereon made and, if so, the conclusions you reached from such examination; and, if not, whether you insist upon any action being taken in this department in regard to these contracts pending such examination by you."

Arthur S. Somers then offered the resolution authorizing Mr. Prall to ask legal aid from the State Department of Education. The resolution was passed, with M. Samuel Stern voting in the negative. Mr. Stern said he believed the board should await the result of the investigation of the Board of Estimate being conducted by the Corporation Counsel before undertaking any inquiry of its own.

Mr. Prall said the Controller had refused to give the Board of Estimate, which has no investigating force of its own, any investigators from the finance department, and had shown his distrust of the Board of Education. George J. Ryan said the Board of Education had nothing to fear from any inquiry, and favored getting legal aid from the State Department of Education.

City Inquiry Postponed.

The proposed investigation of charges of collusive bidding on city contracts by the Board of Estimate was postponed again yesterday until Monday, at which time, it was said, the taking of testimony will begin. The request for an adjournment was made by Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, who said he wished to confer with Meier Steinbrink, who will assist him in the investigation. A dozen witnesses, who were present under subpoena, were directed to return on Monday.

Little of interest took place at the board's meeting, which was a short one. Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn asked whether the board's hearings would go on simultaneously with those of the Lockwood committee, which will hold sessions five days next week, or whether the board would refrain from conducting its investigation while the Lockwood committee was in session. Mayor Hylan made no definite reply but said that the board would co-operate as far as possible with any other investigating agency. Corporation Counsel O'Brien said later that there was little possibility of conflict in simultaneous hearings.

Controller Charles L. Craig and F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, did not attend the meeting. Mr. LaGuardia was called to Saranac Lake by his wife's illness. Controller Craig's absence was intentional, and he does not intend to attend any of the hearings in the Board of Estimate inquiry unless something unexpected comes up to make it advisable.

Controller Craig, who is conducting his own investigation of alleged collusive bidding, persisted yesterday in his refusal to turn over to Corporation Counsel O'Brien the evidence he has collected, and apparently much of the documentary evidence necessary for the Board of Estimate's investigation is in Mr. Craig's safe in the Finance Department.

Craig Talks of Investigation.

Mr. Craig said that his investigation of contracts indicated some irregularities but, as the investigation was not complete, these irregularities might be explained. He said that in some cases the bids not accepted were more illuminative than the accepted bids, but would not indicate whether he meant that the rejected bids indicated collusion. As an illustration, Mr. Craig cited the case of one contractor who complained two weeks ago of delay in payment on his contract and promised to furnish information desired by the Controller within two hours. Mr. Craig said the incident took place two weeks ago and that the contractor had not been back yet.

Mr. O'Brien said he had had a satisfactory conference with Mr. Steinbrink and that there would be no difficulty about the selection of an accountant, voice in the selection of whom Mr. Steinbrink stipulated as a condition of his acceptance of the appointment. Mr. O'Brien said Mr. Steinbrink, who is a Republican, would be conversant with all phases of the investigation and that the board would pursue any line of inquiry he might suggest.

Payment on many city contracts has been delayed by the Controller pending the completion of his investigation. Complaints that this non-payment had caused financial hardships to a number of the contractors was made yesterday to other city officials.

GARLAND MONEY IN FAMILY.

Sons Can Refuse Shares, but Their Children Can Make Claim.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Although one son of the late James A. Garland has already refused his share of the estate of several millions, and a second son has indicated his intention to do the same, Harvard University is a long way from receiving any benefit and may not get a penny.

Under the will neither Charles Garland nor Hamilton Garland can give their share of the estate to any one outside of the family. They may refuse the money if they wish, but in that case it simply lies and accumulates for their children, if any, and if for any reason these, too, refuse it, it must continue to lie for the following generation.

Some have thought Harvard would be next in order as beneficiary, according to the will, when sons renounced their claims. But the will says plainly:

"And I further will and declare that upon the decease of my said wife, or upon her remarriage, if she shall remarry, my said trustees shall stand seized and possessed of my said trust estate upon trust for the benefit of my sons, James A. Garland, Jr., Charles Garland and Hamilton Garland and their issue."

Thus all the sons must die without issue in order for the university to benefit.

AUTO DEATHS INCREASE.

Fatal Motor Accident Rate Grows Faster Than Population.

An analysis of the annual accident mortality returns of the census office for thirteen years, as presented by Frederick S. Crum in The Spectator, show that the automobile alone of all vehicles continues to be increasing menace to human life. Fatal accidents in New York City in 1915 numbered 66.1 for each 1,000,000 population, and in 1919 the rate was 137.5, an increase of 108.

Automobile fatalities have increased in the registration area of the United States from a rate of 4.4 each 1,000,000 population in 1906 to 91.0 in 1918. They have increased so rapidly during this thirteen-year period as to more than offset the reductions in mortality from all other vehicular highway accidents, with the result that the fatality rate from all vehicular accidents has increased from 245 in 1906 to 253.3 in 1918.

and without this power, Elihu Root said at The Hague, the world court is not very much of a fact.

America's absence also hinders progress toward amending the covenant, which is held to need changes, and now the leaders have decided it would be better not to take up amendments until after they know where America stands.

There was no public meeting today and there will be none tomorrow. The situation is such that there is need for quiet discussion in committee and council. On Friday reports of some committees will have come in and then probably there will be another public session.

Today the Council instructed the General Secretary to submit the draft of a telegram to be sent to all the great powers relative to finding some power which will accept the task of parleying with Mutapha Kemal in order to try to save Armenia. The suggestion of Viviani that he thought the United States best fitted for this task is regarded here as beside the mark, for no diplomat imagines that America is going to become mixed up in all the difficulties of conflicting British and French interests in Asia Minor.

In reality Viviani thinks that France and Italy will take on the task, but it is by no means certain yet, because of the fear that France will lead the negotiations into other Asia Minor problems.

The Council sent a request to the three Scandinavian countries and to Holland to send 100 men each to take part with the League force of 1,800 men in occupying Vilna during the settlement of the dispute there by a plebiscite.

Money Given for Typhus Fight.

The Secretary General of the League today made public the report of the League's agent sent to investigate typhus conditions in Poland. It is recommended that an urgent campaign be instituted against typhus.

The Secretary also made public the results of the League's appeal to the world for financial help to fight typhus. The League asked for £2,000,000, but only one-tenth of that sum was given or promised. France and Great Britain contributed £50,000 each, Canada $200,000, Spain £40,000, Belgium £1,000, Greece £10,000, Persia £2,000, Siam £1,000, and Bulgaria £27. Austria gave 100,000 kronen, Holland 100,000 florins, Japan 100,000 francs, Switzerland 50,000 francs, and Germany 1,000,000 paper marks. The name of the United States does not appear in the list of contributors.

The comparative failure to respond to the League's appeal was regretted by Mr. Balfour in a speech before the Assembly a few days ago.

Big Committees Shape Action.

GENEVA, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—The committees, subcommittees and steering committees of the Assembly and Council were all in session today. It is understood the committees on armaments, new members and amendments to the Covenant have practically decided to report as follows: No amendments at this session and no general disarmament until conditions have become more settled in Eastern Europe and execution of the peace treaties is assured; the admission of Austria, Bulgaria, Luxembourg and Finland to membership and postponement of action on other applications.

It was pointed out today by some delegations that the speed shown by these committees in getting on with their work may mean prolonged discussions when their reports come before the Assembly, as the committees may decide by a majority vote, while that of the Assembly must be unanimous.

The question of amendment notably promises further debate, as the Scandinavians do not accept the report of the Amendments Committee and will fight it on the floor.

Of the most important subjects on the agenda there remain the economic blockade, mandates and the relations between the Council of the League and the Assembly. This last named subject involves discussion of the proposition of Honorio Pueyrredon of Argentina that all members of the Council be elected by the Assembly, which might take the control of the Council from the powers which, under the Treaty of Versailles, received five out of the nine members of the Council to be appointed by themselves.

The Swiss delegation will ask the Committee on General Organization to consider a proposition to choose the four elective members of the Council from among different States successively, with only one term expiring each year. These representatives, with the support of Scandinavian delegates, will also ask the same committee to report a proposition for fixed meetings of the Assembly.

Expects America to Come In.

Antonio Huneus, chief of the Chilean representatives and Chairman of the Committee on Admission of New States, told The Associated Press last night that he expected that the attitude of the United States toward the League would be defined soon after the new Senate meets. He thinks that the decision will be to come into the League rather than "frustrate the greatest effort humanity has ever made to assure its own preservation."

Montenegro's eleventh hour application has not as yet been discussed, and sentiment would appear to indicate that Albania may not be admitted.

The Provisional Finance Committee has appointed a sub-committee to take under advisement plans for another international financial conference next year.

International Staff Discussed.

Projects for an international staff, proposed by Leon Bourgeois of France at the Versailles Conference and rejected there, were reviewed here yesterday in a prolonged discussion regarding the reduction of armaments. M. Bourgeois first of all declared that the carrying out of the Versailles Treaty must be assured before disarmament was possible. He said that in order to make that treaty effective some military organization, such as he had proposed at the Peace Conference, was required.

M. Bourgeois believes that four things must be done before the nations can proceed to disarmament. First would come the complete execution of treaties, next the organization of a complete and obligatory investigation of all armaments, then a presentation of a report by the military commission, and, finally, an exchange of all information relative to armaments between nations.

H. A. L. Fisher, at present head of the British delegation, seems to agree with the viewpoint of M. Bourgeois. On the other hand, Signor Schanzer, an Italian member, pointed out the danger to the League in the disappointment of the masses if nothing should be done.

The efforts of the Council committee to keep their deliberations under cover without offending too much the strong sentiment in the Assembly for absolute openness, continue to provoke considerable comment and amusement. There is even talk among the more independent delegates of a revolt against what they consider an effort on the part of the Council Secretariat to override the Assembly.

"That James E. Smith and Charles S. Whitman, together with Jacob Lubin, had theretofore, during the time that Charles S. Whitman was District Attorney of the County of New York, suborned perjury and bribed witnesses and attempted by other means fraudulently to induce witnesses to give false testimony and to withhold true testimony in criminal actions being prosecuted by Charles S. Whitman."

Week Allowed for Motions.

Accompanied by Chamberlain Berolzheimer and State Senator Charles E. Russell, his counsel, Commissioner Hirshfield appeared before Justice Weeks in the afternoon to furnish bail. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and was allowed one week in which to make necessary motions. Justice Weeks declined to allow ten days, because, he said, "I am anxious to clean up the work of the Grand Jury so that it can finish its deliberations."

Commissioner Hirshfield, in commenting upon the indictment, said:

"An indictment by that Grand Jury is not a humiliation at all. They have not been able to put a finger on me for my conduct of my office.

"The Court of Appeals has decided that the Commissioner of Accounts has the power to subpoena witnesses, to administer oaths to them and to take their testimony. Surely he has the right, and it is his duty, to make public the testimony.

"So far as the indictment refers to Governor Whitman, that was done only to make the thing look bigger. There were only indirect references to Governor Whitman.

"Don't forget that Almirall, the foreman of the Grand Jury, has $240,000 in claims against the city for architect's fees and commissions. He is not any nearer to collecting them now."

INSPECTS THE DEFENSES

ANCON, Canal Zone, Nov. 24.—After a detailed study President-Elect Harding and Senators Hale and Frelinghuysen are apparently convinced of the inadequacy of the military defenses of the Panama Canal.

On a trip through the canal today on the army mine planter General Graham Senator Harding was in frequent conversation regarding the defenses with the high ranking army and navy officers attached to the Canal Zone who accompanied him. He learned that there was only one sixteen-inch gun on the Isthmus and only a few fourteen-inch. The sixteen-inch gun is on the Atlantic coast.

The 14-inch guns on the Pacific coast would be helpless against a battleship armed with 16-inch guns. Mr. Harding learned that a battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class with 16-inch guns, while out of range of the Pacific defense guns, could bombard and destroy the Miraflores locks five miles from the outlet.

Mr. Harding was told that defense against hostile aircraft was inadequate. Except for anti-aircraft guns at Gatun all the locks, it is said, are virtually helpless against an enemy air raid.

The visiting Senators expressed surprise over these facts and asserted that Congress had been kept in ignorance of the defense situation.

Before leaving for the United States Mr. Harding will go over the military and naval defense plans with Brig. Gen. Kennedy and Rear Admiral Johnson.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Nov. 24 (Associated Press.)—President-elect Harding came through the Panama Canal from Cristobal to the Pacific coast today and, crossing into the Republic of Panama, exchanged with President Porras personal felicitations. Mr. Harding also expressed a warm hope for better relations between the United States and Panama.

Although declaring that he acted purely as a private citizen in making an informal call during his vacation visit to the Canal Zone, the President-elect conveyed in an earnest manner to the Panaman Executive his desire to see Panama established firmly in the affection of her Southern neighbors. Later President Porras came across the boundary and on American territory told Mr. Harding that he warmly reciprocated these desires.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24.—President-elect Harding will stop at Vera Cruz en route to the United States from Panama unless unforeseen circumstances prevent, said a statement issued at the Mexican Foreign Office last night. The statement added that assurance had been given that Senator Fall of New Mexico would probably arrive here next Monday to attend the inauguration of General Alvaro Obregon as President of Mexico.

Talk in Argentina of Step to Meet Exchange Crisis.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 24.—Importers of North American goods have called a meeting to adopt measures to protect their interests, in view of the rise in the price of the dollar and the expectation of a further increase in its exchange value.

La Razon says that a majority of the importers favor refusing to receive any merchandise from North America until the exchange situation improves or North American exporters and banks are willing to extend their credits.

WILSON IN CHAIR VIEWS PARADE FOR PILGRIMS

After the Spectacle Passes Irish Pickets Start on Their Nightly March Around White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Seated in a roller chair on the East Terrace of the White House for half an hour tonight, President Wilson reviewed a parade in commemoration of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth.

Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Mr. Tumulty, and a few personal friends, the President took his place on the terrace at 8:30 o'clock. As he appeared he was applauded and cheered by a large crowd assembled along the west front of the Treasury Building facing the White House. The President raised his hat in acknowledgment.

The parade, under the marshalship of Lieut. Col. Harry N. Cootes of the Third Cavalry, included a troop of the Third Cavalry, troops from Fort Washington, the District of Columbia National Guard, marines, patriotic organizations, with a dozen bands and floats.

Just as the end of the procession emerged from Executive Avenue, followed by the crowd, the Irish pickets, who have for several nights been marching around the White House, came in sight with transparencies, asking "What Did England Do for the Pilgrims When They Were Starving?" and similar legends. The parade of the pickets was larger than usual tonight, several thousand persons being in line. It is their declared purpose to march around the White House every night for seventy-two nights, one night for each day that Mayor MacSwiney of Cork fasted.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—Two thrilling accounts of Sunday morning's tragic occurrences are provided by the wives of two wounded officers, Colonel Woodcock and Captain Kenliside.

Mrs. Woodcock says: "At 9 o'clock on Sunday morning I was looking out my window while dressing, when I saw a man get over a wall and drop into the garden. I screamed to my husband, who was on his way downstairs to breakfast. He came back, saw the man, told me to remain at the window to watch him, and rushed downstairs again. He was held up at the bottom of the stairs by two men, both undisguised, who shouted, 'Hands up! What is your name?'

"He put up his hands, gave his name and shouted 'Look out!' to an officer who then was coming out of his room. The latter also was ordered to put up his hands, which he did.

"Simultaneously the men opened fire, and both officers, who were of course unarmed, fell. Two more shots were fired at them while lying on the ground. The second officer had fallen practically in his wife's arms, and her knee was grazed by a bullet.

"My husband got back to his room. Rushing down for help, I found a scene of ghastly description. Unable to get help, I went back to my husband, who received three wounds. Looking into the garden, I saw that the first man was still there. At that moment the hall porter of the flats went out into the garden, talked to the man, and, taking out a key, unlocked a garage door and let him through. From there he joined fifteen or twenty men who were running or cycling down the lane at the back of the house.

"Going down again, I found that every officer in the house, six in all, had been shot."

Mrs. Kenliside's story is: "About 9:10 o'clock Sunday morning my husband and I were asleep, when we were awakened by loud knocking, and twenty to twenty-three men, dressed in overcoats and raincoats and wearing cloth hats, filed methodically into the bedroom. They shouted roughly to my husband to get up and put up his hands, which he did. They then hustled him downstairs, dressed only in pajamas. I protested and bade them not to hurt him holding onto the arm of one of the raiders. He assured me that I should not be hurt and pushed me roughly back into the room.

"I followed them immediately out and saw another officer being taken downstairs with his hands up. They then placed him and my husband side by side in the hall, demanded their names and fired at them, wounding one officer in the back and my husband in the jaw, both arms and the upper part of the forearm. I ran down and helped him quickly upstairs to our bedroom. My husband noticed especially that only one man fired and he was quite young and seemed cool, grim and determined."

Full Honors to Dead Officers.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—With full military honors the bodies of the fourteen army officers who were murdered in Dublin on Sunday are to be brought to London on Friday for burial. There will be a special parade of troops at Euston Station and police arrangements will be made to cope with the crowds that are certain to assemble in and around the immediate approaches to the station and along the streets.

Orders have been given for a destroyer to proceed to Dublin for removal of the bodies through the Channel with all due naval etiquette. It is expected that passing vessels will salute the destroyer on her way to England.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—A notice issued at Dublin Castle today states that the bodies of the British officers who were murdered last Sunday will be taken from the George V. Hospital at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The cortège will pass along the quays to the North Wall, where the bodies will be taken aboard a destroyer for transport to England.

The castle authorities requested that as a mark of respect for the gallant dead all shops and places of business in the city be closed between 10 o'clock and 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Greenwood Indicts Liberals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In the House of Commons today Sir Hamar Greenwood, Irish Chief Secretary, welcomed the Opposition indictment of the Government's Irish policy. Former Premier Asquith, in moving the Independent Liberal and Labor motion of censure on reprisals, placed in the forefront of his speech a wholehearted protest against the "callous, cold-blooded murders of gallant officers" in Dublin, and then declared that there was a growing volume of evidence that the forces of the Crown were engaged in a systematic war on towns and villages without regard for the presumed innocence or guilt of the people who suffered. The evidence was overwhelming that these acts were organized by the police and military, he said.

Greenwood, replying, said that from Mr. Asquith's speech one would think the policemen and soldiers were going about in Ireland in motor cars burning and slaying.

In two-thirds of Ireland—in nearly three-fourths of that country—there was as great peace as there was in the County of Kent, he said, and the vast majority of Irishmen did not want murder but peace. They were getting peace, and they were getting it because the forces of the Crown were breaking the terrorism that prevented the Irish people becoming articulate. It was only a small minority who were extremists, who committed crimes and inspired questions in the House of Commons.

There could not be a solution in dealing with assassins except to put down the assassins, Greenwood asserted, and he accused Mr. Asquith and his supporters of making use of the Bulletin illegally issued by the murder gang in Ireland on which to base their charges of reprisals. He said the murderers in Ireland even had their representatives in the lobby of the House of Commons.

"I consider it a loathsome alliance," he added, amidst ministerial cheering, "between persons in this House and those whose hands are red with blood, and that they should be allowed to circulate thi shideous document."

At this stage there was considerable interruption, members of the opposition demanding the names of persons in the House who were associated with the Sinn Fein murderers.

Convert Censure Into Praise.

Colonel John Ward's spirited speech in support of the amendment, turning the motion into a vote of confidence in the armed forces in Ireland and in the Government of Ireland Bill, was a notable feature of the later stage of the debate.

In the end Mr. Asquith's resolution was rejected by 303 to 83. Announcement of the figures was received with loud ministerial cheers. The Speaker then put Ward's amendment, which was agreed to without division amid renewed ministerial cheers.

Greenwood declared there was no policy of reprisals and that the Government was doing all it could to prevent reprisals. Some men already had been punished for indulging in reprisals.

"I claim that we are succeeding in our Irish policy," proceeded Sir Hamar. "I regret the bloodshed. There will be more of it, but the murderers are getting sick of the business and they believe it is failing, as it is doomed to failure. Yes, there will be more bloodshed, tragic murder of servants of this house, and it is the duty of this house and this country to stand by its servants. We are fighting a battle against assassins, not against the Irish people.

"Police and soldiers have been murdered entering church, and while in church, and I appeal to the hierarchy to condemn these murders with the same energy as they fought against conscription." (Ministerial cheers.)

When members of the House or newspaper talk about the Irish policy of the Government, invoking condemnation of the civilized world, he wanted to know what country would be as patient with these assassins. He knew of no other country that would arrest and try people—as they were doing in Ireland—found with arms in their hands.

"We are succeeding," declared the chief secretary. "The Sinn Fein court has disappeared except in back rooms, where it is held for the purpose of propaganda, especially for the American press. The boycott is broken and its ugly sister of intimidation is going. Hunger striking, that trick of the criminal to evade justice, is done. The Irish Republican army is being broken up.

Mr. Asquith—"We want clear front."

Sir Hamar—"I wish he would not break the front of this House and the country. In facing assassination there is only one issue, there is only one question left, that is, 'who is for Ireland and the Empire, or who is for the assassins?'" (Loud cheers.)

RAID LABOR QUARTERS AND DUBLIN PAPER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—The police and military have been very active during the last day or two and there has been a series of roundups in the provinces. Late last night and today search parties were visiting houses and other premises, and many arrests were effected.

Dublin Castle states that from Wednesday, Nov. 17, to Tuesday, Nov. 23, 129 persons have been taken into custody in Dublin alone.

Among the places raided today was Liberty Hall, headquarters of the Irish Transport Workers' Union. Thomas Johnson, Secretary of the Irish Labor Party and the Trade Union Congress, and Thomas Farren, ex-President, were arrested. The raid lasted several hours and a score of arrests were made. The building was carefully searched from top to bottom, the floor boards taken up, bricks wrenched out of the chimney, and partitions between the hall and a neighboring public house knocked down. The troops and auxiliary police arrived in half a dozen motor lorries and accompanied by two armored cars. Cordons were thrown across all thoroughfares leading to the premises and armored cars dispersed the crowds that assembled.

Toward the close of the raid, after 5 o'clock, an armored car, equipped with searchlights, pulled up outside the hall and the searchlights were played on the building. A large quantity of documents, books and flags was taken into the street and burned. All members of the staff were searched. Alderman O'Brien, General Secretary of the Irish Transport Workers, was among those arrested.

Simultaneously raids were made on other trade union offices. Several tramcars in the city and suburbs were held up during the day and the passengers ordered out and searched.

THE NEW YORK TIMES is officially informed that many more arrests are expected in Dublin. It is believed that the notorious gunmen who are still wanted have little chance of breaking through the cordons of military and police. Nevertheless a close watch is being kept of all possible outlets, and the cross-Channel ports are also receiving attention.

Special importance is attached to the capture on Monday night in Dublin of a number of reputed leaders whose participation in serious offenses is said to be definitely established by incriminating papers in the possession of the authorities. Charges to be preferred against them range from murder and conspiracy downward. They will, it is assumed, be heard by court-martial.

Altogether, the weapons which have been seized reach the proportions of a fair-sized arsenal. They are mainly revolvers, but there also is a goodly store of rifles.

The court-martial of two Directors and the editor of The Freeman's Journal opened at the Royal Barracks today. This is the first instance of a newspaper being tried by court-martial, and the charges are that it published false statements, such as the alleged flogging in Portobello Barracks, Dublin, of a young man and the killing of two policemen at Tullow on Sept. 8. In the latter case a statement was published to the effect that the general belief in Tullow was that the two policemen who were shot there were victims of an attack by "Black and Tans."

The court-martial of the Countess Markievics, who was arrested some time ago, has been fixed for Dec. 2.

A statement that the body of a man found in the Liffey belonged to the auxiliary police is unsubstantiated. It is thought he may have been an ex-soldier. The body had been in the water a considerable time.

It is reported from Carrick-on-Shannon that the Rev. J. Glynn, Catholic curate, was arrested at Drumlin early this morning by armed men and taken to an unknown destination. It is stated that he was associated with the Sinn Fein movement.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Crown forces today arrested at a Queenstown hotel three men and a young woman who arrived by motor car on Monday evening from County Clare for the purpose of embarking on the Baltic, due to sail for New York tomorrow.

Two of the men are ex-soldiers who served in the war. The third is an American citizen who had been visiting relatives in Clare.

DUBLIN, Nov. 24.—Dublin, long accustomed to tragedy, has settled back with two days of outward calm, which has, however, an indefinable and unhealthy quality, cloaking much behind the scenes, and there is activity in both camps.

While the daylight hours pass almost without incident, the curfew hour has come to be the signal for the Crown forces to commence unceremonious raiding of all sorts of premises, the seizure of any wanted documents and arrest of suspected persons. These arrests of becoming almost indiscriminate, but in many cases the detention ends with a quiz at headquarters which shows absence of connection with the Republican movement.

As no class of residences, even the first class hotels, is exempt from these searches, there has been a marked diminution of cross-channel traffic and an almost total cessation of tourist visitors.

Reports from various parts of the country today recount a widespread seizure of bicycles, which the authorities at Dublin Castle interpreted as a move on the part of activists to counter the motor licensing restrictions.

Ambush Court-martial Witnesses.

BELFAST, Nov. 24.—Two automobiles containing police and witnesses returning from a Londonderry court-martial were ambuscaded last night near Omagh, County Tyrone. The attacking party fired a fusillade at the party and three constables and two chauffeurs were wounded. One of the assailants of the party was arrested by the military.

David Kelly, manager of the Sinn Fein bank in Harcourt Street, Dublin, was arrested at his sister's residence in Great Brunswick Street here today. He is a brother of Alderman Kelly, Lord Mayor-elect of Dublin.

Two Die From Cork Explosion.

CORK, Nov. 24.—Two persons injured by the explosion of a bomb in Patrick Street last evening died later at a hospital, and two others are reported to be in a critical condition. Sixteen persons were injured by the bomb.

The kidnapping of three army officers at Waterfall, County Cork, last week, has been followed by the posting of the following notice in Cork this morning:

"If Captain Green, Captain Chambers and Lieutenant Watts are not released, unharmed, within 48 hours, leading members of the 'Irish Republican army' will be suitably dealt with. Ignore this at your peril! Vengeance may be slow, but it will be sure!"

Villard Committee Names Investigators to Visit Ireland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The Villard Commission on Conditions in Ireland announced tonight that the sub-committee to go to Ireland to conduct an investigation would be headed by Major Oliver P. Newman, former District Commissioner of Washington, D. C., the other members being the Rev. Dr. Norman Thomas, New York; James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, and Arthur Gleason, New York.

The delegation will sail as soon as passports have been obtained, the statement said, and "will pay particular attention to hearing the British point of view in the present critical situation, both from official Government sources and from all shades of public opinion."

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—A request that the Villard Committee of One Hundred, which is conducting hearings in Washington on the Irish situation, continue in session after the completion of its investigation for the purpose of conducting hearings on lynching of negroes, was sent to Oswald Garrison Villard of New York and Miss Jane Addams of Chicago tonight by the Rev. M. A. N. Shaw, President of the National Equal Rights League. The request asks for "a gathering of the facts of racial injustice and mob murders."

PAPER BOOM IN GERMANY.

Workers Ignore Union Leaders and Toil for Long Hours.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—The paper-making industry in Germany at present is experiencing a tremendous boom. A record number of orders, mainly from abroad, are being received by manufacturers, and many firms have to work longer hours.

Messrs. Rub & Co. of Weende, near Göettingen, have such a vast number of orders to fill that they find themselves compelled to introduce a working day of eleven hours. At first the trade union objected, but when the firm threatened to close down altogether the workers threw the union leaders over and agreed to the firm's proposal.

GERMAN BUDGET UP ON RHINELAND COST

PLEA MADE TO AMERICA

Use of Colored Troops Also Denounced and Revision of the Treaty Demanded.

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—The Reichstag today entered upon consideration of appropriations to carry out the provisions of the treaty with the reception of a report of the Budget Committee, which had increased the original estimates, especially for the Army of Occupation by several million marks.

The committee report appealed to the German Government to memorialize the Allies, asking them, in view of the indeterminate continuance of expenditures necessary on the part of Germany, that the former enemy countries make known the number of men which is to be considered essential in the Army of Occupation and what the probable cost will be.

The report also asked the Government to request the Allies to permit Germany to retain such war materials remaining in her possession as are needed to restore church bells, particularly bronze.

The committee recommended an appropriation of 40,000,000 marks, instead of 20,000,000, for the Rhineland occupational troops and 611,000,000 marks, instead of 446,000,000 marks, for the cost of housing the Army of Occupation.

Dr. George Schreiber, Clerical, bitterly attacking the report, said:

"We must say to the Americans that humanity demands that they remove the main body of their troops from the left bank of the Rhine. We want the American people to know that all this charitable work, such as the Quakers and other organizations are doing, is useless so long as we are being bled to death by the troops of occupation. One hundred and fifty thousand men are occupying territory where only 76,000 were garrisoned in peace-time. There we are compelled to maintain and support militarism, against which was one of the ostensible reasons the Entente went to war."

Dr. Schreiber assailed the Entente for permitting negro troops in the Army of Occupation. He was frequently interrupted by cheering or applause.

"We know, and we regret with the deepest of feeling, that it is a fact that 45,000 negro troops still are occupying the left bank of the Rhine," Dr. Schreiber continued. "This constitutes one-half of all the French troops and a third of the whole Army of Occupation."

The speaker urged that there was as much necessity to place a copy of the Peace Treaty in every school child's hands as the State Constitution, in order that the "shame of Versailles" might be shown.

"The budget for the execution of this treaty is the dark finale of anguish of the German people," said Dr. Schreiber.

Otto Wels, speaking for the Majority Socialists, said the peace treaty should be revised in the interest of all the contracting parties. He warned the Pan Germans against making the issue of revision a pretext for agitation, and told the Nationalists that so long as they were crying for revenge France would not loosen her fetters.

"The treaty will only be altered," said Herr Wels, "when the whole mentality of nations and of Governments changes. We must acknowledge and fulfill the just terms of the treaty, but at the same time strive to create an atmosphere which will prove conducive to achieving ultimate revision."

Herr Wels added that the voters must be told that the strengthening of the right parties would be interpreted abroad as a cry for revenge and materially increase suspicion against Germany.

"The Social Democrats," said Herr Wels, "want a revision of the treaty because it imposes an oppressive burden on the workingman. Revision, however, cannot be accumulated by force. Therefore I propose that we enlighten the world with respect to the unfeasability of its provisions."

Herr Reichert, Nationalist, then took the floor.

"Every hostile soldier along the Rhine," he said, "costs us 100,000 marks, and every delegate of the Rhineland Commission 200,000 marks."

He said Germany had been transferred from a prosperous creditor into a hopeless debtor nation, which would soon be converted into a beggar nation unless the treaty were revised.

"The rights of the German people are trampled on," he said. "Only two industries are actively in operation—the printing presses, which are turning out money, and the Finance Minister's adding machines."

of my work. The rest was in outer darkness. The room, which would have made a beautiful ballroom, looked large and dark. Beyond there were huge white columns which got in my way and hampered the light.

"My heart utterly sank at the difficulties of the situation. I looked at my man, who was bending down writing at his desk. It was impossible to see what sort of face he had. I looked at him for a while and looked at my lump of clay and then I went and knelt in front of the writing table opposite him, with my chin on his papers. He looked up from his writing and stared back—a perfectly steady, unabashed stare. His look was a solemn, analytical one. Perhaps mine was, too.

"After a few seconds I realized the absurdity of our attitudes and had to laugh. I said 'I hope you do not mind being looked at.'

"'I don't mind,' he answered, 'I have my revanche in looking at you and it is I who gain.'

"He then ordered a fire to be lit, because he said it was cold. It was not cold; it was overheated, but the fire was nice. A peasant woman with a handkerchief tied round her head came in and lit it. He said he liked her because she walked softly and had a melodious voice. I asked permission to take a few measurements.

"'Whatever you like,' he said, and then he pointed out to me how utterly unsymmetrical his face is, which is true. If his nose were straight, he would have a very fine line from the forehead. Full-faced, he is Mephisto. His eyebrows go up at an angle and the lower part of his face all goes to a point. When he talks, his face lights up and his eyes flash. This flash is much talked of in Russia and people say to one, 'Have you seen Trotzky's eyes?' He is called 'The Wolf.'

"He explained to me that he was not as desperately busy as usual because there is peace with Poland and good news from the south. I told him that I had nearly gone to the front with Kalinin, who wanted to take me. Without a moment's hesitation he answered, 'Do you want to go to the front? You can come with me.'

"He was thoughtful for a while and then asked me, 'Are you under the care here of our Foreign Office?' I said I was not.

"'But who are you here with? Who is responsible for you?'

"'Kameneff,' I said.

"'But Kameneff is at the front.'

"'Yes.'

"'Then you are alone. That is very dangerous in a revolutionary country. Do you know Karahan, Tchitcherin's secretary?'

"'Yes, he is living in our house. So is Litvinoff.'

"'Ah, Litvinoff. I will ring him up.'

"He did ring him up, but what he said I could not understand. Litvinoff told me later that Trotzky had asked him if I was all right, and if it would be indiscreet or not to show me the front. Litvinoff gave me a good character.

Trotzky Tells of Arrest.

"At 4 o'clock he ordered tea and had some with me. He talked to me about himself and of his wanderings in exile during the war, and how finally at the outbreak of the revolution he sailed on a neutral ship from the United States to return to Russia. Also how they (the British) arrested him and took him to a Canadian concentration camp. He was detained a few months, until the Russian Government succeeded in obtaining his release. He was particularly incensed at the British interfering with the movements of a man who was not going to Britain, nor from a British colony, nor by a British ship, but he said:

"'I had a good time in that camp. There were a lot of German sailors there and I did some propaganda work. By the time I left they were all good revolutionaries, and I still get letters from some of them.'

"At 5 I prepared to leave. He said I looked tired. I said I was tired from battling with my work in such a bad light. He suggested trying by electric light, and we agreed for 7 o'clock next morning. He sent me home in his car.

"Oct. 19.—Trotzky's car came at 6:30. It was snowing and there was a driving wind. The car had a hood but no sides, and opposite the Kremlin, in Red Square, we punctured. When I got to Trotzky's I was frozen. He put a chair for me by the fire, and when I had melted he put all the lights on and got to work. He said: 'We will have an agreement, quite businesslike. I will come and stand by the side of your work for five minutes every half hour.' Of course the five minutes got very enlarged and we talked and worked and lost all track of time.

"Oct. 20.—Foreign papers, we heard, have startling news of a counter-revolution, but if there is any such plot steps have been taken to deal with it. The town is placarded with notices that the inhabitants must not be out after midnight. I noticed, too, when I arrived at Trotzky's at 7:30 P. M. that a soldier stopped our car before it even reached where his office is. That whole bit of road was being carefully guarded. It gave one just a small thrill. There have been none since my arrival and one does long for some sense of danger. It is a bore coming to Moscow to find it so beastly quiet.

"This evening I asked Trotzky for news. He says that German workers have voted in favor of joining the Moscow Internationale, which he says is very important, but England, he says, is Russia's real and dangerous enemy.

"I said: 'Not France?'

"'No, France is just a noisy, hysterical woman, making scenes, but England—that is different altogether.'

A Discussion of English Poetry.

"After that I worked for an hour and he never spoke. He was busy at his table with his papers. Toward the end of the evening he offered to come and stand for a bit, and while doing so he remarked on my name being spelled the same as that of the playwright [Richard Brinsley Sheridan]. I explained that I had married a direct descendant. He was interested and said 'The School for Scandal' had been translated and had been occasionally acted here in Russia.

"He then got on to Shakespeare. He said that if England had never produced anything else she would have justified her existence. We disagreed as to Byron and Shelley. He preferred Byron and insisted, in spite of my assertions to the contrary, that Byron was the greater revolutionary of the two. He was surprised at my love of Swinburne. He said he would have thought me too much in this world to love the spirituality of Swinburne. I said 'One has his dreams.'

"He gave a sigh, 'Yes,' he said, 'we all have our dreams.'

"It was then a quarter to midnight. I looked desperately at the clock. 'What about this order to be home at midnight? How am I to do it?'

"He said: 'I will take you myself.'

"At about half after midnight we left. A man in uniform joined us and sat next to the chauffeur. He had in his hand a very big leather holster. Crossing the bridge, we were stopped by about five soldiers, and the man with the holster had to show our papers by the light of the car lamp. It delayed us several minutes. I said to Trotzky, 'Put your head out of the window and say who you are.'

"'Taisez-vous,' said Trotzky peremptorily, so I sat, rebuked and silent, until we were allowed to pass on unrecognized.

"Oct. 21—Tonight was better for work. I felt calmer, as the worst difficulties were surmounted. Trotzky stood for me in a good light and dictated to his stenographer. That was excellent. His face was animated and his attention occupied. I got all one side of his face done. Then came the quest of the other side. He laughed, suggested another dictation, offered to stand in another position, and called back his stenographer. When we were alone again he came and stood close beside the clay and we talked while I went on working.

"We talked a little about me. He said I should remain in Russia a while longer and do some big work, something like my 'Victory,' which he likes and has insisted on keeping photographs of. 'An emaciated and exhausted figure, and still fighting, and that is the allegory of the Soviet.'

"I answered him that I could get no news of my children, and therefore I must go back. 'I must return to my own world, with its cultured people, who wonder always what the world will think, and leave behind Russia, with its big ideas, which spoils one so.'

A Moment of Ferocity.

"'Ah, that is what you say now; but when you are away'—and he hesitated. Then, suddenly turning on me, with clenched teeth and fire in his eyes, he shook a threatening finger in my face. 'If when you get back to England vous nous calomniez as the rest have, I tell you I will come to England, et je vous'— He did not say what he would do, but there was murder in his face. I smiled. 'That is all right. Now I know how to get you to England.'

"Then, to fall in with his mood: 'How can I go back and abuse the hospitality and chivalrous treatment I have received?'

"He said: 'It is not abusing, but there are ways of criticising even without abuse. It is easy enough to be blinded par les saletés et souffrances, and to see no further than that, and people are apt to forget that there is no birth without suffering and the horror, and Russia is in the throes of a great accouchement.'

The Last Sitting.

"Oct. 22—I have finished my Trotzky bust. I worked until half after midnight. I think it is a success. He said so; but it has been such a struggle. About half way through the evening the electric light went out. A secretary lit four candles. On the telephone Trotzky learned that the lights had gone out all over town. I asked him, hopefully, if it could possibly be the outburst of a counter-revolution. He laughed and asked if that was what I wanted. I said I thought it would break the monotony.

"Until the lights went on I read a leading article on Bolshevism in The [London] Times of, I think, Oct. 4. When the lights went on I worked hectically until half after midnight with the desperation of knowing it was the last sitting.

"When he left his last words to me were: 'Well, we will go together to the front.' But something tells me that we will never meet again, for I would rather preserve the impression of our hours of individual work, collaboration and quietude, silently guarded over by a sentry with a fixed bayonet outside the door."

Mrs. Sheridan's Unusual Gifts.

Mrs. Clare Sheridan, whose diary of her trip to Russia has furnished many interesting sidelights on the personalities of the Bolshevist leaders, whose busts she was commissioned to execute, is a woman of unusual attainments, according to Felix N. Doubleday, of Doubleday, Page & Co., who is an acquaintance of the sculptress.

"I met her first at a house party given by the Earl of Crewe," said Mr. Doubleday. "The party was at the home of the Earl at a little place in England, called Crewe, I believe. That was in October, 1918. She is the niece of Lady Randolph Churchill, now Mrs. Moitagu Porch, and a cousin of Winston Spencer Churchill. You can readily understand that through her family connections she was placed in a position to meet practically every one of any note in the British Empire.

"At the house party at which I was a guest there were, among others, Mr. and Mrs. Asquith, Lady Ward, daughter of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and Sir Herbert Samuel, at present British High Commissioner to Palestine.

"Mrs. Sheridan proved to be a woman of most attractive personality. Her manners are accentuated by good looks and youthfulness. She is a clever talker, and is intensely interested in matters relating to art. She knows everybody of any note in England, and has established a wide reputation by her works of art, which are considered to be excellent."

Mr. Doubleday was asked whether he could recall that Mrs. Sheridan had spoken of her intentions of visiting Russia or any other countries at war at the time of the house party, and he said he could not. If she entertained any advanced ideas that might have helped her to gain entrée to the circles of the Bolsheviki, she failed to disclose it on any occasion when he talked with her.

It is the belief of Mr. Doubleday that Mrs. Sheridan gained her commission to execute the likenesses of the Bolshevist leaders simply through her enterprise and her attainments as a sculptress.

URGES CONFIRMING WILSON APPOINTEES

Senator Fletcher Says Shipping Board Vacancies Should Not Be Left Unfilled.

Admiral Benson Exhorts Officers and Crews of Ships to Help Make Operation Profitable.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Commerce Committee in a statement today, declared that recent appointments by President Wilson to the Shipping Board should be confirmed without delay, as much depended on what was done by the board in the next three months. The statement follows the recent announcement by Chairman Jones of the committee that he would oppose confirmation at the coming session.

"I think," said Senator Fletcher, "it would be very unfortunate to tie them up until next March. At present there are only two members of the Shipping Board and there is a tremendous lot of work to be done. To say that we should drag along until next March with only two members seems to me to be absurd.

"Now is the critical time in the history of our merchant marine and a great deal is going to depend on what is done, neglected or omitted in the next three months. As far as I know the appointees are all capable men, the selections were wisely made and they should be confirmed.

"I feel quite certain that there are interests at work which have always been opposed to Government building, owning or operation of ships. I am very much afraid that there are sinister influences at work to advantage themselves, even if it means a loss of an adequate marine, American owned and American operated, for the benefit of American industry and commerce. One of their first steps is to discredit, as far as possible, the Shipping Board and every other governmental agency connected with shipping.

"The keenest watchfulness and most diligent efforts will be necessary to thwart their purpose. Hence, we need a full board in full operation and every member active and diligent."

Officers and crews of Government-owned ships were urged by Chairman Benson of the Shipping Board in a general message sent out today, to take personal interest in efficient operation of their vessels. Foreign competition, the Chairman said, "has become keen," and more American craft would have to be withdrawn from service unless their operation could be made more profitable.

"It will be necessary for every individual to exert himself to maintain his ship in seaworthy condition, to effect quick turn-around and to reduce the cost of repairs," the message said. "In this officers have set a good example to their men.

"Our attention has been called to the lack of discipline on shore among some of the officers and seamen of vessels touching at foreign ports. This situation is resulting in some vessels being delayed, with consequent expense, or having to sail shorthanded. It should be stopped at once.

"I feel sure that prompt and earnest effort will be made by every one in the service to meet the present situation."

LAST OF CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS ARE FREED

Thirty-three Recently Discharged Including Salmons, Secretary Baker Announces.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—All army conscientious objectors imprisoned during the war have now been released from custody, Secretary of War Baker announced tonight. A total of thirty-three, the statement said, have been discharged by recent orders, including Benjamin J. Salmons, who started a "hunger strike" while confined in a Government hospital here a month ago.

"The cases of the thirty-three conscientious objectors who remained in custody some weeks ago have now been finally reviewed by the Secretary of War," Mr. Baker's statement said, "on the recommendation of the Adjutant General's office, and the remainder of sentences remitted and the men discharged.

"Each case has been considered on its merits and the principle on which they have been considered is to remit so much of the sentence as exceeds the normal peace-time penalty for the offenses charged."

The major part of these men have been in confinement for more than two years. Those last discharged were men who had refused to do any sort of work while in confinement.

"Benjamin J. Salmons, whose case has attracted some attention, was the last case disposed of by reason of the fact that legal proceedings instituted in the civil courts have delayed consideration of his case."

REPORTS BIG STOCK OF WAR ARTILLERY

Gen. Snow Says New Outbreak Would Find Us With Sufficient for Big Army.

GIVES PROGRESS FOR YEAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—That artillery troops for the American Army in the World War were forced to drill with "improvised wooden guns, rope harness and other expedients" because of lack of equipment is officially revealed today in the annual report of Major General William J. Snow, Chief of Field Artillery, to Secretary Baker.

"Large quantities of guns, howitzers, ammunition and other artillery material are on hand, left over from the war," the report said, "and the country thus, for the first time in half a century, has on hand sufficient stocks of artillery to equip a large size army. Should war unfortunately break out within the next few years we would be spared the spectacle of artillery drilling with improvised wooden guns, home-made telephones, rope harness and similar expedients which characterized the first year of the present war."

Demobilization difficulties made it almost impossible to carry on regular peace-time training of the artillery during the year, General Snow reported, but he said an effort was made to keep two regiments trained and recruited up to strength for possible border duty.

The Signal Corps is now engaged, the report stated, in developing combination radio-telegraph and telephone sets for the use of artillery firing with aerial observation, the new outfit to be built for a telephone range of thirty miles and a radio-telegraph range of fifty to ninety miles.

Army accomplishments during the year were the motorization of four regiments armed with 75-millimeter guns, including the use of two and a half and five ton tractors; the development of new gas and smoke shells and a successful incendiary shell by the chemical warfare service, and an extensive test of pack equipment for mountain artillery under service conditions. Sufficient data has not yet been obtained to allow definite deductions as to the motorized equipment, the report said, but it was realized that the day of the horse as a tractive power is passing.

Rumania Honors Red Cross Worker.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 24.—E. Russell Kenny, who was a First Lieutenant of the American Red Cross in Balkan relief work for seven months following the armistice, received a personal citation from the King of Rumania today, giving him an award of honor for service rendered in that country.

BONI & LIVERIGHT, New York

STILL URGING ROOT FOR CABINET PLACE

Many Republicans, Some Anti-League, Hope to See Him Secretary of State.

BUT OPPOSITION IS KEEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—In spite of the understanding that Senator Harding has eliminated Elihu Root from the list of Cabinet possibilities, an earnest effort will be made by prominent Republicans to have Mr. Harding offer the portfolio of State to Mr. Root. Outside of their views on the League of Nations, many men foremost in party affairs will make plain to Mr. Harding their belief that an error will be committed if Mr. Root does not receive the offer.

At the same time there is strong opposition to having Mr. Root enter the Cabinet, even among Republican leaders who have the friendliest feeling for him and admiration for his ability. This opposition is confined mainly to the League "irreconcilables." These are so set in their desire to "scrap" the League that they fear Mr. Root's sympathetic attitude toward the League would influence Mr. Harding if Mr. Root were placed in the office of Secretary of State.

There seems to be agreement among Republicans that the appointment of Mr. Root to the Cabinet would be greeted with enthusiasm by the country. But the political leaders are divided, with most of those who are opposed to any league urging that Mr. Root be not chosen, and others, including some League opponents, convinced that Mr. Harding would bring prestige to his Administration at the outset if he should invite Mr. Root to take the place.

Mr. Harding is expected to announce his Cabinet selections prior to inauguration. It is taken for granted that upon his return to Marion he will begin to give serious consideration to the qualifications of those who have been or will be suggested to him for membership in his official family

Nobody here is in a position to say what Mr. Root would do if he were asked to become Secretary of State. It is known that he has no desire to re-enter public life, and Mrs. Root's health is such that she would find it a burden to take up the social duties of the wife of the senior member of the Cabinet. To be Secretary of State means nothing to Mr. Root, as far as prestige and honor are concerned, and his friends indicate that only a conviction that he would be able to be of service to his country would induce him to give consideration to a Cabinet offer.

At the same time there is a widespread desire among Republicans of high standing that Mr. Root should be drafted by Mr. Harding. They hold that the Administration would be enormously benefited by Mr. Root's presence in the Cabinet and that foreign relations of the United States would be conducted in a manner that would make for the prestige of this country throughout the world.

The "irreconcilables" prefer Senator Knox or Dr. David Jayne Hill for Secretary of State. The most active of this group seem to prefer Dr. Hill, whose attitude toward the League accords with their views. Mr. Knox has a large following and his appointment as Secretary would be commended by many who do not sympathize with his views as to the League, but admire his ability.

That Mr. Harding his virtually made up his mind as to the men for some Cabinet places is assumed here. He is expected to ask ex-Senator Weeks of Massachusetts or Governor Lowden of Illinois to be Secretary of the Treasury. It is thought that both will have Cabinet portfolios. Mr. Weeks is a graduate of the Naval Academy and is regarded as an expert in regard to naval affairs. He is a banker. Governor Lowden's reduction of taxation in Illinois has given him high standing. It is regarded as certain that if he should be appointed Secretary of the Treasury Mr. Weeks would be Secretary of the Navy.

Ex-Senator Sutherland of Utah, one of Mr. Harding's principal advisers in the campaign, is generally thought to be slated for Attorney General. Herbert Hoover's recent activities in connection with the deliberations of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor are thought by many to make him the logical man for Secretary of Labor.

MOSES BACKS UP LODGE.

Holds His View of League More Valid Than Coolidge's.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Senator Moses of New Hampshire, one of the "irreconcilable" opponents of the League of Nations, in a statement today said of Governor Coolidge's speech last night at Boston and Senator Lodge's previous speech:

"Senator Lodge, speaking in Boston Saturday night, said Mr. Wilson's League was dead, the final sentence having been passed by the court from which there is no appeal. Governor Coolidge, speaking in Boston on Tuesday night, said the fate of Mr. Wilson's League remained undecided by the election.

"Inasmuch as Senator Lodge will have a vote in the matter and Governor Coolidge will not, I think more validity attaches to Senator Lodge's opinion than to Governor Coolidge's."

Mrs. Madge Breckinridge Ill.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Madge McDowell Breckinridge, internationally known as a leader in suffrage and club activities, is critically ill at her home. Stricken with apoplexy she has been conscious for many hours. A Cincinnati specialist has been summoned to consult with local physicians.

KNOX TO REINTRODUCE PEACE RESOLUTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Senator Knox of Pennsylvania stated today that he planned to reintroduce at the coming session his resolution to declare a state of peace with Germany, which President Wilson vetoed in May.

Unless sufficient sentiment is shown in Congress to enable both Houses to pass such a resolution over another veto of President Wilson, Senator Knox, it is understood, will not press for action until after the inauguration of &Harding. He said he planned to offer the resolution in the same form as before.

The Senator does not like to have his resolution spoken of as one for "separate peace with Germany." He regards it as a step to bring the United States back to a legal status of peace by repealing the joint resolution of April 6, 1917, which declared a state of war to exist between the United States and Germany, and the joint resolution of Dec. 7, 1917, declaring a state of war to exist between the United States and Austria-Hungary.

Senator Knox holds that peace is an established though not a legal fact, so far as the United States is concerned, and he urges that his resolution seeks to bring about recognition of the fact that while the nation is actually at peace with the Central Powers, it is still operating under a war-time machine, so far as executive powers are concerned. He thought the time had come when the war machine should be completely dismantled and the executive stripped of the extraordinary powers given to him for purposes of war.

Senator Knox indicated that he felt that the election had demonstrated that the American people had spoken with decision against entering the arrangement proposed in the League covenant, without attempting to outline any policy for President-elect Harding. The Senator felt that the United States could well make clear to the world the attitude of the United States toward peace.

After President Wilson vetoed the original resolution the House undertook to override his veto, but failed to get the necessary two thirds, the vote being 210 to 152.

In view of Senator Knox's intention to re-introduce his peace resolution, his attention was called to reports that he would be named as Secretary of State.

"Any one who says I am contemplating or have any reason to contemplate being Secretary of State," said Senator Knox, in reply, "is speaking without any authority. Senator Harding undoubtedly will select his cabinet just as any other President would select his."

Barcelona Outrages Continue.

MADRID, Nov. 23.—Outrages continue at Barcelona, notwithstanding repressive measures, it is indicated by reports from that city. Vicente Guitart, a dairyman, was killed today by a band of armed assailants, who escaped. Governor Anido declares the authorities will utilize every means to prevent such occurrences by the arrest of suspected persons.

Thanksgiving Makes All America Kin

In the mansion the butler is thankful for Knickerbocker because it gives him sparkling, crystal-clear ice for many of his famous cococtions. In the simple home, "mother's" grateful because Knickerbocker has enabled her to prepare much of the dinner in advance—because she knows that Knickerbocker will preserve, for another festive meal, what is left of the "turkey and trimmings."

Everybody is thankful because Knickerbocker Ice is absolutely pure. And Knickerbocker is thankful for its many patrons and many faithful employees.

INJUNCTIONS CLOSE CHICAGO CABARETS

31 PERSONS ARE INDICTED

Federal, State and City Officials Unite in Campaign for "Dryest City" by Christmas.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—"Chicago will be the most unhealthful place for crooks and the driest city in the United States by Christmas," Federal, State and city officials declared tonight after they had taken part in a drive on liquor dealers which included suits to close seventy-two saloons and cabarets, injunctions shutting down eight such places and the Federal indictment of thirty-one persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, who instituted the seventy-two suits, tonight said several hundred more were contemplated and that the State would continue the drive "until there was not a drop of intoxicating liquor in any of Chicago's 3,000 'dry saloons.'"

Federal officials joined in the drive soon after the Attorney General had filed his suits when Charles Clyne, United States Attorney, procured temporary injunctions from Federal Judge Landis closing eight cafés. Soon afterward the Federal Grand Jury, which has been investigating alleged illegal liquor traffic, returned indictments against thirty-one persons.

Adjunct to Crook Round-up.

City officials welcomed the State and Federal drive as an adjunct to the round-up of criminals started Sunday and said it would make it easier for them to keep crooks out of the city. At the same time they frustrated an attempt to steal $60,000 worth of liquor being transported through the city on trucks and arrested two persons for alleged complicity in the theft of $50,000 worth of wine.

The cases of the seevnty-two saloon and café owners whose places Attorney General Brundage wanted closed will be heard Friday by Judge Landis. An Assistant Attorney General was assigned to direct attorneys in the prosecution and Mr. Clyne volunteered assistance.

Soon after the liquor drive began the City Council adopted a resolution authorizing the Mayor to call a meeting of all State's Attorneys and Mayors of Illinois to plan a Statewide campaign against law breaking, and Police Chief Fitzmorris dismissed William Tobin, a patrolman, for alleged "whisky running." Further dismissals would follow, the Chief said.

The theft of $175,000 worth of whisky from railroad yards started the investigation which came to a climax in today's drives. It was charged that this liquor, brought here illicitly from Louisville, was guarded by policemen and then stolen from them by another band which also included policemen.

The injunctions issued and the suits filed today cover many of Chicago's most notorious cafés, while the indictments include men well known here and in other cities and several members of the police force.

Railroad Men Indicted.

The indictments were found in the alleged "Mike De Pike" Heitler, $200,000 bootleg whisky conspiracy and named Heitler, an underworld character and saloon keeper, five police officers, distillers, saloon keepers and railroad detectives. Among others indicted were O. H. Wathen, President and N. D. Kneblecamp, a stockholder in the Old Grand Dad Distillery. They are charged with conspiring with Heitler to ship whisky on forged permits. Nebelcamp is President of the Louisville Baseball Club.

William Gorman, formerly employed by the Rock Island Railway, and a nephew of James Gorman, President of the road, also indicated, is charged with releasing the liquor.

Frank O'Hara and Henry P. Wissing, Lieutenants of the Rock Island Railway Police, and Edward Smalle, George Hanes and Eugene McCaffery, Detective Sergeants of the Chicago police force, were also indicated.

According to the charges Heitler and others collected $135,000 in cash from several saloon keepers. In return they promised to transport 1,000 cases of whisky to Chicago.

It is charged that Heitler's representatives went to Wathen and Nebelcamp, and persuaded them to ship the whisky on a forged permit. According to the charges Gorman, in his capacity as a railroad official, introduced one of the conspirators to G. F. Koehler, station agent for the Rock Island at Gresham, as Max Bergman to whom the liquor was consigned. In that way the liquor was released before the Federal authorities were able to locate it.

The carrying into Chicago of the Brundage abatement campaign, which has effectually dried up the "wet" spots down State, will mean the passing of Burnham, the most openly conducted vice district in Chicago.

TRACERS PUT ON ALL WITHDRAWN LIQUOR

Dry Agents to Follow Every Case of Whisky to the Ultimate Consumer.

BLOW AT "BOOTLEGGING"

Transportation Companies Enlisted in New Effort to Make City Really Dry.

Plans for keeping track of every case of whisky or other liquor from the time of its withdrawal from a warehouse until it reaches the ultimate consumer have been put into effect by prohibition enforcement officials, it was announced last night by Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director for this State. This will be done through closer co-operation between the office of Director O'Connor and that of Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent Frank L. Boyd.

Notice will be sent to Mr. Boyd's office of each withdrawal permit issued and Mr. Boyd will put his detectives on the trail of the consignment to see that it does not fall into bootlegging channels. The transportation companies will be required to notify the Supervising Agent at the same time they notify the consignee of the arrival at the point of destination of shipments of whisky.

After denying a published report that there is friction between his office and the office of Supervising Agent Boyd, Mr. O'Connor said:

"As soon as it is discovered that any permittee has permitted liquors withdrawn by him from bond, or any portion of them, to be diverted to beverage purposes, his permit is revoked, his stock confiscated and there is assessed against him an additional tax which may amount to $12.80 per gallon. So it is seen that the path of the permittee who seeks to divert liquor or alcohol to beverage purposes is becoming increasingly difficult and dangerous."

Mr. O'Connor said inspectors on his staff had made 3,719 inspections since Oct. 20, last, of the places of permit holders. As a result the revocation of 1,000 permits, or more than 25 per cent., have been recommended, and there are still pending under special investigation 157 permits. Mr. O'Connor said that the number of wholesale liquor dealers in the city is being rapidly diminished, having dropped in the last few weeks, as a result of these investigations, from more than 1,700 to about 1,200. The number is expected to be further decreased by the first of the year.

Prohibition agents yesterday took possession of the 1,000 cases of Kentucky whisky which, it is claimed, arrived at Pier 4, North River, Tuesday on a forged permit. The whisky was taken to the Knickerbocker Warehouse. The name of Max Kuntz, a wholesale liquor dealer of 42 South Street, was on the cases. Kuntz said he had not ordered the whisky.

Arthur Buchard of 2,023 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, was arrested by agents of Mr. Boyd yesterday as he was about to deliver four barrels of whisky to a store in Mott Street, near Grand Street. Buchard, who is the owner and driver of the truck, did not have a permit to transport the liquor, which he obtained from a store in Cedar Street, near Tremont Avenue, the Bronx, according to the agents.

Agents Charles Brumfeld and Michael Kiely, who came from Mansfield, Ohio, bought drinks yesterday in the café of Bernard Baxter, at 1,031 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, a block from the Gates Avenue Police Station, they say, and arrested Baxter and his bartender, Arthur Kramer, 35 years old, of 988 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, on a charge of violating the prohibition law. They were released in $500 bail for hearing Friday before Commissioner McCabe.

Mayor David Trembly of Rahway, N. J., has promised a delegation of clergymen of that place that he will instruct the Chief of Police that whenever a man is arrested for drunkenness he be held until he tells where he obtained the liquor.

Samuel Wilson, Assistant Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, wrote a letter to Mayor Gillen of Newark, demanding the revocation of licenses granted to 866 saloons authorizing them "to sell malt or brewed liquors or any liquor of which distilled or ardent spirits or spirituous liquors form a component part."

LYNCH NEGRO BY MISTAKE.

Georgia Posse Shoots Brother of Man Who Killed White.

DEWITT, Ga., Nov. 24.—The body of Curley McKelvey, a negro, brother of Ophelius McKelvey, who yesterday shot and killed James E. Adams of Worth County, was found hanging from a tree here early today. The body had been riddled with bullets. The negro is believed to have been shot by one of the posses searching for his brother. Adams was killed in a quarrel with three McKelvey brothers over the use of a road across the Adams plantation.

TYLERTOWN, Miss., Nov. 24.—No arrests have been made in relation to the lynching yesterday of Harry Jacobs, a negro, who was taken from the courtroom. Tylertown was quiet today. The body of Jacobs, hung to a tree after being dragged through the streets from the axle of an automobile, was cut down and buried. The negro lynched yesterday was a brother of Ben Jacobs, lynched two weeks ago. They were said to have confessed to attacks on white women.

CHURCH FIRE AN ACCIDENT.

Incendiary Theory for Brooklyn Blaze Abandoned by Brophy.

The theory that the fire, which damaged Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, was incendiary was abandoned yesterday after an investigation by Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy. Mr. Brophy said he believed the fire was caused by crossed wires, a defective furnace flue, or spontaneous combustion. Officials of the church concurred in this view.

More of the objects of historic interest in the church were saved than at first believed. All the manuscript copies of the sermons of Henry Ward Beecher were removed as well as the uniform and sword used by Dr. Beecher in the civil war.

The damage to the church was estimated at $100,000, fully covered by insurance. It will cost at least $20,000 to replace the windows alone.

Announce Bids On Snow Removal.

Bids for snow removal were announced yesterday by Acting Commissioner Frank A. Eschmann of the Street Cleaning Department. In Manhattan Stephen W. Hopkins offered to do the work in the second district for 57.4 cents a cubic yard; Joseph Marrone for 62 cents in the second district and 60 cents in the third district. Purcell and Gilfeather bid 41 cents in the second and third districts. Bids in Brooklyn and the Bronx ranged from 45 cents to 64 cents.

REVIEWS SUCCESSES OF THE 'DRY' FORCES

Wheeler Says They Have Much to be Thankful For at This Thanksgiving.

SEES APPROVAL OF PEOPLE

Holds New Congress Is Elected Against Changes in Law—Claims Big Drop in Crime.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, as spokesman for that organization issued to-night a Thanksgiving Eve statement in which he declared that the dry forces of the United States have every reason for being thankful this year because a Congress had been elected which would oppose the enactment of any nullifying or other amendments to the Volstead Act, so as to permit the sale of beer and wine. Conditions generally, as a result of national prohibition, were interpreted by Mr. Wheeler, to mean that the United States is entering upon the greatest and most successful era in its history.

"The dry forces," said Mr. Wheeler, "have many reasons to be thankful at this Thanksgiving season.

"A Congress has been elected opposed to any beer and wine or other nullifying amendment to the Volstead act. It is gratifying proof that the people are for national prohibition and its enforcement.

"The Supreme Court and other Federal and State courts have sustained national prohibition, in spite of the unprecedented attacks made on it.

"Thirty-eight States have enacted State prohibition enforcement codes; the other States will do so.

"A great nation has demonstrated that it is not dependent on revenue derived from liquor.

"The growing tendency of the press is to tell the facts about prohibition and officers who will not enforce it.

"Arrests for drunkenness in former wet territory have decreased about 60 per cent. and all arrests about 40 per cent. Arrests for delinquency, truancy and neglected children are on the decline.

"Jails, alcoholic inebriate asylums, and workhouses are gradually closing up, or are abandoning a large part of their institutions for lack of inmates.

"The necessities and some of the comforts of life are being supplied in multiplied thousands of homes heretofore needy. The home is having a chance to show its superiority as a substitute for the saloon.

"The United States, by conserving the waste caused by liquor, is the best prepared financially of all the nations to meet the reconstruction problems following the world war.

"The present alcoholic addicts and defectives, the product of the liquor license system, are rightly recognized as the left-over liquor problem and not the result of prohibition.

"Derelict public officials, schooled in corruption under saloon domination and still permitting a wave of crime in some places are being uncovered and driven into a half-hearted action for law enforcement.

"The people in wet centres, long the victims of misrule, are waking up to the fact that the Government belongs to them, and not to scheming politicians and corrupt political organizations. The present unrest in these places, under the guidance of a clearer and more sober judgment, is resulting in human betterment. These disturbing features are but the evidence of growing pains caused by progress."

A Floor of Complete Masculinity

There are the Twentieth Century Limited, the Pennsylvania Special and the Express Elevators to The Man's Shop at Lord & Taylor

The Home-Coming Season

Incoming steamers are crowded—the hotels are filled—the city already throbs with the prelude to Christmas.

It will be the first introduction many have had to The Man's Shop, atop the Lord & Taylor store—and its complete readiness with all that relates to man's dress.

The winter suit of imported materials, a genuine rival of its conservative custom-made brother—at a price re-adjusted to meet the lowering market.

Fur-lined coats, motor robes, the correct cutaway and dinner coat, are among the items in readiness.

You will hear more of the exclusive Asheville overcoat, made of the society-christened Biltmore homespun—a middle-weight coat always necessary.

Have you ever seen a really complete man's shop—with shoes and shirts and hats and ulsters—evening clothes one could use in London—scarfs of the finest French and English silks—all selected from the world's best?

Pajamas and dressing robes—underwear and hosiery—the assortments are encyclopedic!

Some men cannot manage a calf

but they are always wanting to carry an ox.

How odd it seems for some of us to minimize the excellent thing we had been taught to do and can do well, were we to try ceasing to hanker for the larger things to which we have not been called and for which we are probably unfitted.

How small the things were that Goodyear discovered and Remington and the McCormicks of reaper fame, and how marvelous has been their development and great their blessedness to human life.

Some of the old elms at Salem, Marblehead and Gloucester are proudly pointed out, under which Paul Revere's men drilled the first Continental Soldiers.

But the spirit of Paul Revere, the patriot, still lives in all the region he once inhabited.

AU QUATRIEME

This collection of old Windsor chairs newly arrived from England offers an unusually attractive Christmas gift suggestion. For the country house, for informal living rooms in the town house, and for halls, chairs of this type are distinctive.

These chairs were bought under unusual conditions, so that it is possible to sell them at much lower prices than they would ordinarily bring.

The side chairs, with the wheel-backs, typical of the English chairs, are $30 each. Ordinarily these chairs would be from $50 to $75.

The arm chairs, also wheel-backed, are $50. Similar chairs are selling today at $75 to $150.

MEXICAN OUTCRY KILLS INCOME TAX

BUDGET ALSO UNDER FIRE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Proposals to establish an income tax in Mexico as a method for raising revenue by the new Government met with such disfavor that the proposed Mexican budget for 1921, recently published, had to be withdrawn inside of twenty-four hours from the time the revenue bill and budget were presented to the Department of Gobernacion for transmission to Congress. With the withdrawal of the proposed budget, according to advices received today from Mexico City, work was begun on a new measure.

The new revenue bill, which originated as always with the Department of Hacienda (Finance), of which Salvador Alvarado is the Minister, contained certain radical changes in the matter of taxation, suppressing some taxes and creating others. Among those that it proposes to suppress were a large number of taxes imposed by Carranza and Luis Cabrera, such as the tax on consumption of electricity for lighting purposes, the tax on bottles, that on telephones, on mortgages, and most important of all, the stamp tax, which was one of the greatest sources of revenue in the country and dated back to Colonial days.

An income tax of 4 per cent. on all incomes over 1,300 pesos a year ($650 American money), was the most important of the new taxes proposed. This, it was calculated by Hacienda officials, would yield a revenue of 276,966,934 pesos a year, which, it was said, would go a great way in solving the Mexican financial problems.

Moline Enriquez, the author of many agrarian bills that have appeared before Mexican congresses but have invariably failed of adoption, was the author of the proposed income tax and on him was heaped the criticism voiced by the public.

The public lost no time in attacking the budget, in conjunction with the revenue bill, which estimated the expenditures for the military for 1921 at 131,316,060 pesos and for education in the entire country 2,800,000 pesos. To agriculture, the next most important need of the country after education, was allotted a total of 21,345,475 pesos. The total budget showed a calculated expenditure for the year of 271,135,666 pesos, leaving a calculated surplus, with the operation of the income tax, of 5,831,268 pesos.

The day after these measures were presented to the public the protests were so great, especially on the matter of the income tax, that there was a hurried conference of officials, resulting in the withdrawal of the bill and budget on the ground, as officially stated, that there were "errors" in the documents. Salvador Alvarado, head of the department that had drawn the measure and had submitted it, gave out a public statement declaring that "no income tax provision will be included in the revenue bill," and that he was "unalterably opposed to any fiscalization of the income of the individual."

jects in which my mother had manifested an intimate interest should continue to receive support. To make this possible my father, in loving memory of my mother, established a charitable corporation known as the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial.

"The original and present directors of the memorial are Messrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., Charles E. Hughes, George Welwood Murray, Starr J. Murphy and Willard S. Richardson.

"As stated in the certificate of incorporation, 'the particular objects for which the corporation is formed are the application to charitable purposes of the income, and, if the corporation so decides, of the principal of such property as the corporation may from time to time possess.'

"It is also stipulated in the articles of incorporation that 'no officer, member or employe of this corporation shall receive or be lawfully entitled to receive any pecuniary profit from the operation thereof, except reasonable compensation for services in affecting one or more of its purposes or as a proper beneficiary of its strictly charitable purposes.'

"The Memorial has no connection with the Rockefeller Foundation or any other of the benevolent boards or institutions established by my father.

"The Trustees have full and unrestricted discretion in the use of the funds. While as yet no definite policies have been worked out, it is in the mind of the founder as well as of the board, in keeping with the general spirit of my mother's interest in charitable work, that special consideration should be given to activities looking toward the improvement of the condition of women and children.

Chief Aid Is to Public Health.

"The Rockefeller Foundation, though established 'to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world,' is finding its chief opportunity for service in the promotion of public health.

"The General Education Board is emphasizing the work of assisting colleges to increase their endowments, especially during the last year, in aiding them to provide increased salaries for teachers and of assisting the development of medical education.

"The Rockefeller Institute devotes itself exclusively to medical research.

"Thus the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, should it lay stress upon the promotion of the welfare of women and children, would there find a distinctive field of usefulness.

"As was the case with the other Foundations established by my father, the Memorial began with limited funds and a simple organization, of which several of my father's office staff were members. In the case of the other Foundations, as the work attained larger proportions, a more formal organization with increased personnel was established. The trustees are planning to follow a similar course with the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial.

"Since the Memorial was established, my father has made to it various gifts of securities. The total value of those which have now been made available for its purposes is $63,763,357.37. Appropriations from these funds to date have amounted to $8,010,721.57. The larger of these appropriations are:

Mr. Rockefeller's largest single gift was announced on Christmas Day of last year, a total of $100,000,000, of which $50,000,000 went to increase the salaries of teachers in institutions of higher learning, and $50,000,000 to the Rockefeller Foundation.

Each of his great foundations, now four in number, is entirely independent of the others. The gifts to the twenty-two institutions, totalling over $8,000,000, have been made over a considerable period of time, but the gift of the unallotted $55,000,000 is very recent, according to Ivy L. Lee of 61 Broadway, who gave out the announcement. When he was asked about the plans for the $55,000,000, he said:

"The plans are immature yet. You know, the Rockefeller Foundation was run at first by a little coterie in his office. As the work grew, it was run by an independent board. Then gradually a staff of distinguished experts was built up to handle the work and direct its policy."

RULES ON JAMAICA GINGER.

Massachusetts Supreme Court Permits Sale Except as Beverage.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Unless Jamaica ginger is sold as a beverage it is not to be considered as intoxicating liquor, the full bench of the Supreme Court ruled today in setting aside verdicts of guilty in the cases of Sam Sockey and Michael J. Reagan, storekeepers in Pittsfield, who were charged with selling Jamaica ginger to a customer.

Judge DeCourcey, who wrote the opinion of the court, held that the sale of Jamaica ginger as a disguised substitute for liquor "is not so notorious that we can assume without proof that Jamaica ginger has the distinctive character, use and effect of an intoxicating liquor."

GARMENT PRICE WAR HINT.

Manufacturers May Sell Direct if Retailers Boycott Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 24.—As a radical means to the end of forcing down prices, an invasion of the retail market for women's apparel by garment manufacturers, using their own salesmen, was discussed today in the closing session of the annual convention of the Associated Dress Industries.

Manufacturers were informed that representatives of the retail trade in New York today threatened to "boycott" the producers in retaliation for their action here yesterday in declaring that ultimately all discounts must be abolished.

"A test of strength could not come at a better time," declared J. J. Goldman of New York, President of the Associated Dress Industries.

"We have endeavored to make it clear that the retailers are wholly responsible for these discounts, representing a fictitious value of $40,000,000 in the $800,000,000 annual overturn for women's apparel. Manufacturers derive no benefit from this loss to the consumers."

Other manufacturers laughed at the boycott threat of the retailers and said that under existing conditions practically all of the garment producers could shut down production entirely as a warning to the retail trade without loss to themselves.

Suit and cloak manufacturers in Philadelphia have filed a demand with the union that the working hours per week be increased to fifty. The present arrangement calls for a forty-four-hour week.

WALTON COMES OUT FOR SENATE LEADER

LUSK ALSO SEEKS HONOR

Machold of Jefferson Said to Be Slated for Speaker of the Assembly.

Senator Charles W. Walton of the Ulster-Delaware district met Chairman George A. Glynn of the Republican State Commttee yesterday and discussed the organization of the next Senate. In connection with his visit it became known that he expects to become a candidate for President pro tem. of the Senate. The President pro tem. is the leader of the Senate majority.

Senator Walton has served in the Senate since 1915 and has displayed conspicuous ability. He was a candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, but bowed to the decree of the unofficial Republican State Convention and stepped aside for Jeremiah Wood of Nassau. He will have as an opponent for the position of President pro tem. Senator Clayton R. Lusk of Cortland, best known as Chairman of the Lusk committee, which investigated seditious activities and propaganda in this State and paved the way for the unseating of the five Socialist Assemblymen. Senator Lusk is serving his first term in the Senate. He is a close personal friend of Governor-elect Miller, with whom he has been associated in politics and in the practice of law.

Senator Charles J. Hewitt of Cayuga County, it was learned, has been slated for Chairman of the important Senate Finance Committee, to succeed Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany, who did not seek re-election. Senator Hewitt began his service in the Senate in 1909 and is now the ranking member of the Finance Committee.

Assemblyman H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson County, who in all likelihood will succeed Thaddeus C. Sweet as Speaker of the Assembly, also called on Chairman Glynn yesterday. Before his visit he talked with the Governor-elect.

"If the situation here in New York City develops so as to warrant a legislative investigation, then, of course, there will be one," said Mr. Machold. "The inquiries now under way undoubtedly will settle that question."

A Republican leader said that in the event of a legislative inquiry into the city administration there was little likelihood that Samuel Untermyer would be asked to become the counsel of any committee created to conduct it. That post, it was said, was much more likely to go to Elon R. Brown, for many years leader of the Republican majority in the State Senate. A committee of which Senator Brown was Chairman made an investigation of the city administration while the late John Purroy Mitchel was Mayor.

LUNCHEON FOR WADSWORTH

Governor-Elect Miller Among Guests of L. E. Rowe, Senator's Host.

Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., was the guest at an informal "Thanksgiving" luncheon given at the Republican Club yesterday by Louis E. Rowe, a resident of Livingston County, Senator Wadsworth's home. Two fatted turkeys—hailing from Livingston County, too—were offered up to make a feast for the Senator and the other members of the party, which included Governor-elect Nathan L. Miller, James R. Sheffield, William Barnes, Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn, Henry Goddard and Richard W. Lawrence, Republican leader of the Bronx.

There was an informal discussion of direct primaries and other subjects of interest in connection with the legislative program of Governor-elect Miller. After the luncheon Senator Wadsworth left for Washington, where he will spend Thanksgiving with his family. With Mrs. Wadsworth, he will return to this city on Saturday to attend the Army and Navy football game.

Senator Wadsworth said that the adoption of a resolution, probably along the lines of the Knox resolution, declaring the war with Germany at an end would be adopted as soon as the new Congress meets.

Governor-elect Miller also left yesterday afternoon for his home in Syracuse to spend Thanksgiving. He will return to this city early next week.

HAS 5 WOMEN LEGISLATORS.

Connecticut Leads the Country in This Respect.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 24.—Connecticut, with five women chosen to the General Assembly, leads the nation, according to a list given out by the National American Woman Suffrage Association, through the Connecticut association, today. Kansas is second with four women legislators and California, where women have voted many years, elected only three.

Harding, for President, received 229,238 votes on Nov. 2, and Cox, his opponent, 120,721, according to official canvass of the vote today. The plurality of Senator Frank B. Brandegee over Augustine Lonergan was 84,968.

FAVORED BEER AND WINE.

Massachusetts Gave a Majority of 11,064 for Their Manufacture.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Massachusetts declared in favor of the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines, containing not more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol, by a majority of 11,064 votes at the recent election, the Governor's Council announced today. The total vote on approval of an act similar to one vetoed by Governor Coolidge was 442,215 in favor and 431,151 against.

OF BUFFALO, NEW YORK

THE Library of Mr. John L. Clawson of Buffalo is one of the finest private libraries in the world. In recent years, taking advantage of the sales of Mr. Huntington's duplicates, the Hagen, Huth, and Jones Libraries and of the offerings of American and English booksellers, he has brought together an unrivalled collection of First Editions of Early English Literature. It is his intention in the future to confine himself to the works of the authors of this period, and to make room for new acquisitions he has now consigned to us for sale his collection of First Editions and Autographs of writers since 1660.

The books described in this Catalogue would in themselves make an important and desirable Library. There are outstanding items by the Brownings, Keats and Shelley; a letter from Byron to Shelley; First Editions of Dickens in Parts, with a rare collection of twenty-seven Autograph Letters from Dickens to William H. Wills; a large number of Coloured Plate books in superb condition; a fine series of letters from Dr. Johnson to Mrs. Thrale; an important letter of Paul Jones; the original manuscript of George Meredith's "Jump to Glory Jane"; letters of Nelson to Lady Hamilton; three letters of Edgar Allan Poe; a long series of letters from Stevenson to his mother and father; the original manuscript, unpublished, of one of Stevenson's earliest attempts at novel writing, and a marvelous series of Thackeray rarities, including "The Snob", "The Gownsman", "Flore et Zephyr", "King Glumpus", and "The Exquisites", all of them in miraculous condition.

FROM THE COLLECTIONS OF
DR. J. CLARENCE WEBSTER OF CHICAGO, ILL.
W. P. RALPH SOUTHERN OF LONDON, ENGLAND

¶ This collection contains several surprises. There are two important woodcuts by the great Sharaku, in an excellent state of preservation, and also the very rare Corean Procession by Utamaro. Besides these important pieces there are fine examples of Kiyomitsu, Kiyonaga and also an unusually good series of Surimonos. . . . But let our collectors judge for themselves!

OUR OIL NOTE FIRM, LONDON REPORTS

Insists American Rights Shall Be Considered in European Treaties, It Is Said.

MAY AFFECT THE MANDATES

Washington Declines to Comment, but Will Make Text of the Note Public Tonight.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The American note concerning the agreement between France and Great Britain with regard to oil has been received well officially here, notwithstanding the fact that it is reported to be couched in extremely firm language.

The note, as far as has been ascertained, does not go into the details of the Anglo-French agreement, but insists that the United States' interests should receive every consideration in European treaties, even though the United States is not a member of the League of Nations.

The note is interpreted in some quarters as meaning that the United States may want a reshuffling of the mandates before the League of Nations finally sanctions them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The State Department will make public tomorrow night the text of the note to the British Government concerning the oil situation in Mesopotamia as affected by the British mandate. It is the third note sent to the British Government on the subject.

Dispatches from London, stating that the note had been well received there, but was "interpreted in some quarters as meaning that the United States may want a reshuffling of the mandates before the League of Nations sanctions them," drew no comment tonight from officials. It was said that the note was to be made public in Washington and London tomorrow night for simultaneous publication and would then "speak for itself."

ACTS ON DUTCH OIL STAND.

American Legation Warns of Move to Bar Us Out of Djambi Field.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 24.—The American Legation here has taken up with the Washington Government the question of the virtual barring of American oil interests from the Djambi oil fields in the Dutch East Indies if the Dutch Parliament approves the bill already introduced in Parliament under which the Batavia Oil Company, one of the Dutch group, would gain an exclusive concession.

The Batavia Company is 60 per cent. Dutch and 40 per cent. British. The American principle of the "open door," recently expressed in regard to the Anglo-French oil situation in Mesopotamia, may apply in this case, it is said here.

The Dutch contention, however, is that the laws of the East Indies limit concessions there to Dutch-controlled companies. There are Standard Oil subsidiaries, in which much stock is held by Hollanders, operating both in Holland and the Indies, with Dutch Directors.

Prospecting in the Djambi oil fields has been virtually suspended since 1912 because of complications in the Indies law and rival bidding for concessions by American, Dutch and English interests. In 1917 the Dutch Parliament, at the time largely made up of Socialists, passed a law for Government operation of the Indies' fields. Since then the entire matter has been at a standstill.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 24.—Dutch oil interests expect the American Government to lodge a complaint against shutting Americans out of the East Indian fields where, by the terms of a bill introduced in the Dutch Parliament, the Batavia Oil Company, a Dutch-English concern, would have exclusive rights.

This field, according to Dutch oil men, will prove one of the world's richest. It would have been developed before now had not a law been passed by the socialistic Dutch Parliament three years ago providing for Government operation.

The Dutch Shell group has extensive holdings in America, and the American Government, which holds for equal rights in the world's undeveloped oil resources, might have a weapon for retaliatory use if it were necessary.

Socialists in the Dutch Parliament are expected to oppose the bill on the ground that the nation should not turn its resources over to private capital, regardless of the high percentage of profits the Government would get under the terms.

U. S. SENATOR RIDES UP BAY IN STEERAGE

Comes to Ellis Island to Get First-Hand Data—Staff Denies 'No Influx' Statement.

In order to get first-hand data on immigration, Senator Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, member of the Senate Committee on Immigration, came up the bay to Ellis Island, yesterday in the steerage of a liner. The Senator made the trip with Commissioner of Immigration Frederick A. Wallis.

Following his trip, Senator Sterling went directly to the Hotel Pennsylvania and thence back to Washington. He predicted that some changes would be made in the existing laws governing immigration.

Immigration officials at the island yesterday furnished figures from the records of the Registry Division which, they said, refuted the statement of shipowners that no "deluge" of immigration from Europe was threatened. A statement to this effect was made in a speech delivered several days ago in Washington by Commissioner Wallis.

Superintendent Percy Baker of the Ellis Island staff, said that the average arrivals of immigrants in September of the years 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1913 was 82,908, and that 85,394 aliens arrived in the month of September this year.

Kings Lighting Company Asks Approval of Proposed Issue.

The Kings County Lighting Company, which recently passed into the control of its new president, Ralph Elsman, has applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to issue $2,000,000 8 per cent. cumulative stock to obtain money for extensions. When Mr. Elsman obtained control of the company it was said that such an application would be made and that the stock would be offered to the company's gas consumers.

The Public Service Commission will have a hearing on Dec. 6 on applications by the United Electric Light and Power Co. for permission to issue $8,825,000 securities, and of the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company for an issue of $4,500,000. The United Company has explained that it needs the money to repay a loan of the Consolidated Gas Company. The Queens Company says it needs the money for the same purpose.

Loan Bill for Chilean Senate.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 24.—The Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies has approved with modifications the bill authorizing the President of the republic to contract a loan of £7,775,000 for State railways. The measure already has passed the Chamber, and will be debated in the Senate this week.

DANCER'S $100,000 GEMS AND FURS HELD

SHE DAZZLES PIER CROWD

Leonora Hughes, the dancing partner of Maurice, who has been making a sensation in London and Paris for the last ten months, attracted attention yesterday on the pier when she landed from the White Star liner Olympic by the splendor of her costume and the brilliancy of her jewels. The dancer, an attractive, fair-haired girl of 21 years, wore a broadtail fur coat worth at least $3,000 and a neckpiece of gray squirrel round her shoulders.

The customs officials took an interest in her and to their surprise discovered that the dazzling jewels and the costly garments had not been declared by the fair dancer. Miss Hughes, who had been abroad a little more than ten months, had declared herself a resident of the United States and said she had come back to spend Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Hughes, at Flushing, and intended to return to France on Dec. 2.

A brief examination of her baggage satisfied the customs officials and the appraisers that there were jewels, gowns and coats worth between $75,000 and $100,000 liable to duty. The trunks were ordered sent to the public stores and the articles will be examined and appraised at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Hughes, who had a companion on the voyage, Miss J. Rechtenstein, did not appear disturbed when she was informed that her baggage would be detained and that she would have to go to the Custom House and be questioned by the Law Department as to why certain articles she had brought in had not been declared.

Friends on the Olympic had advised the dancer to have her jewels and costly wraps and gowns bonded until she went away on the France but she wanted to wear them during her visit to New York, she said.

Officials at the Custom House declined to discuss the case but said it would be fully entered into on Friday afternoon. They intimated that the value of the dutiable goods might reach $100,000 and that there might be some interesting developments when the particulars became known.

After going to the Custom House, accompanied by a lawyer, Miss Hughes went to Flushing, it was said, to spend her Thanksgiving, with the hand baggage the Customs officials permitted her to take.

Miss Hughes said that Maurice, her partner, had been taken ill and had gone to a nursing home in London but that she hoped he would be well enough to dance with her in Paris before the New Year.

SHONTS'S NOTES PRESENTED

One for $100,000, Other for $30,000 Issued in September, 1917.

Two notes, apparently made by the late Theodore P. Shonts, have been presented to the Guaranty Trust Company, temporary administrator of the estate. One note is for $100,000. It is dated Sept. 7, 1917, and is made payable to the order of Stephen Thornton in three years. It came to a firm of lawyers in this city from E. H. Howard of Petaluma, Cal. Mr. Howard said he had bought the note from a New York man.

The second note was for $30,000. It was dated Sept. 21, 1917, and was payable in three years to Thomas Smith. This note came from Samuel Heller of Pasadena, Cal. Letters sent to both Howard and Heller, at the addresses given by them, have been returned.

STATE WILL FIGHT INTRASTATE RATES

Attorney General Newton Prepares to Apply for Injunction Here on Friday.

3 ROADS FILE INCREASES

New Schedules Announced as Effective on Monday May Be Held Up as a Result.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Attorney General Charles D. Newton tonight took steps to restrain the railroads operating in New York State from raising their rates to 3.6 cents a mile pending the outcome of proceedings involving the question of State and Federal jurisdiction, now before the State Court of Appeals, and the determination of the validity of the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission by the United States Supreme Court.

The Attorney General said he was prepared to apply for an injunction on Friday in New York City, where all the larger railroads maintain headquarters.

"It is my aim," Mr. Newton said, "to stay these proposed increases in intrastate rates until the Court of Appeals or the United States Supreme Court passes upon the vital questions raised in the pending proceedings and the State of New York has an opportunity to test the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission granting the increase to 3.6 cents a mile."

The proposed injunction proceedings were hastened by the announcement of the New York Central and the Long Island Railroads that they would file the increased tariff schedules immediately.

THREE ROADS FILE NEW RATES

State Public Service Commissioners Plan for Concerted Action.

New light on the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix rates for both fares and freight on intrastate railroads was discovered yesterday in a search of the records, and as a result it was generally agreed that the appeal to be taken by the local Public Service Commission probably would not be successful.

There was found a decision by the United States Supreme Court in the case of the American Express Company vs. Caldwell, 244 U. S., page 617, in which was involved the State law providing that no new rate should become effective until after the new schedule had been on file for thirty days. On this point the opinion of the court reads:

"The provision that no advances of intrastate rates may be made except after thirty days' notice filed with a board of railroad commissioners and published, cannot properly apply to changes in intrastate rates which a carrier seeks to make in obedience to an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to abate discrimination against interstate traffic."

New schedules of rates were filed with the commission yesterday by the Long Island Railroad and by the New York Central and New Haven companies. The Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company, which is also an intrastate railroad, failed to file the new schedule. The new rates are scheduled to become effective on Monday.

KRAMER CALLS BREWERS.

Must Show Cause for Retaining Cereal Beverage Permits.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Three Cincinnati brewing companies were cited by Prohibition Commissioner Kramer today to show cause on Dec. 13 why their permits to manufacture cereal beverages should not be canceled because "they have not, in good faith" conformed to the Federal Prohibition Enforcement act.

The companies named are the Jackson Brewing Company and the Herancourt Brewing Company, whose plants were recently ordered to be seized for alleged violation of the Prohibition act, and the Hudepohl Brewing Company.

Reports received by the prohibition bureau allege that the three concerns have been manufacturing and placing on the market beverages containing more than the legal limit of one half of 1 per cent. of alcohol.

GREET AMERICAN ZIONISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The directors of the "Keren Hayesod" (a fund for the reconstruction of Palestine, recently established and set at £25,000,000) today cabled greetings to the American Zionists who meet in convention in Buffalo, N. Y., tomorrow. The cablegram expressed appreciation of all American Zionists have done for Palestine within the last few years and confidence that they will take as prominent a share in the future work of the new Zion.

In explaining the principles upon which the fund is being created the directors state that every subscriber, no matter how small his contribution, will not only participate in the current expenditure for the development of the country, but will share in the productive investments which will be made with these moneys.

DOHENY REPORTS MEXICAN OIL BOOM

Activities in the Mexican oil fields are on a larger scale than ever before, according to Edward L. Doheny, President of the Mexican Petroleum Company, who has just returned from Mexico after a trip of some weeks. With Mr. Doheny on the trip was Lord Pirrie, K. P., head of the English shipbuilding firm of Harland & Wolff.

"By June 1 next," Mr. Doheny said, "the Mexican Petroleum Company will have pipe line capacity for moving 200,000 barrels of oil daily. I feel we will have sufficient oil to run these lines to capacity when completed, and there is no question of there being a demand to take care of this amount.

"We are producing and moving 110,000 barrels of oil a day, and in October produced from our own wells 3,500,000 barrels. Of this 400,000 barrels were sold to other companies. October was a record month for Mexican Petroleum Company.

"Our present pipe line capacity is 110,000 barrels a day, which is being worked to capacity and the oil sold. By Jan. 1 new lines will be completed and in operation, which will bring our capacity up to between 125,000 to 135,000 barrels daily. Surveys are being made for two other lines, one 8-inch and the other 10-inch, from the Nunez district to the coast, which will have a minimum capacity of 65,000 barrels a day. These two lines should be completed by June 1 next, when our combined pipe line capacity will be 200,000 barrels daily.

"This year our companies have invested $24,000,000 in the Mexican oil business, mainly in the way of tank steamers and pipe line facilities."

RUSHFORD BANK WRECKED.

Its Funds Largely Wiped Out and Part Owner Missing.

BELFAST, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Failure of the Rushford Bank at Rushford, N. Y., was announced this morning as the result of the alleged looting of its funds by Carl J. Howden, who is alleged to have fled Sunday with $50,000 of the State Bank of Fillmore, of which he had been President for many years. Failure of the bank at Rushford involves a loss of about $80,000.

The Rushford Bank was a privately owned institution run under a copartnership arrangement between Howden and Lucien Hardy of Rushford. This morning Hardy announced that a superficial examination of the bank's accounts indicates that its funds had been very largely swept away. The closing of the bank was announced at once and Hardy said he proposed asking for a receiver. The State bank of Fillmore will be able to survive its difficulties, it was declared this morning. The bank was reopened today, under the Presidency of Charles E. Haines, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

FOUR DAKOTA BANKS CLOSE

Making 13 Which Have Succumbed to Depleted Resources in 10 Days.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 24.—Three more North Dakota banks closed their doors late today, due to depleted resources, bringing the total closures reported here for the last ten days to thirteen. Those shutting down today were the State Bank of Adrian, the State Bank of Donnybrook and the State Bank of Glenburn.

Earlier today it was announced that the State Bank of Mohall did not open for business today. It was the tenth bank closed.

State Bank Examiner Lofthus announced that no receivers were being named for the closed banks, but that an officer of each bank has been named a special deputy examiner to have charge of the institution. Mr. Lofthus said he expected many of the banks would reopen when the present financial stringency was passed.

ASKS MORE RELIEF FUNDS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—The European Directors of the Joint Distribution Committee, who met in Vienna, have been conferring for five days on the problem of handling increased needs with reduced means. Appropriations for some countries have been cut to 12 per cent. of last year's allowance owing to the depleted treasury.

Realizing the terrible consequences ensuing from drastic curtailment of European work the delegates have cabled the Executive Committee in New York imploring help from American Jewry. Elaborate plans also were adopted for the reconstruction of destroyed homes in Eastern Europe. A telegram of appreciation was sent by the delegates to Felix Warburg, Chairman of the Executive Committee, and Julius Goldman.

In the absence of advices from the Vienna conference of the European Directors of the Joint Distribution Committee, Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, declined last night to comment on the extent to which his organization could furnish assistance to further the European work of the committee. Mr. Warburg said it was true that the Joint Distribution Committee contemplated a reduction in the expenditure of funds for relief work, because it had been anticipated that the harvest just gathered would greatly mitigate the circumstances in countries where the suffering had been most intense. However the situation has been complicated by the warfare in which the Poles had been engaged with the Bolsheviki. The Joint Distribution Committee will be unable to announce to what extent it is prepared to give assistance until it receives the communication which apparently has already been cabled.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving Day, now a national holiday, was hardly regarded as a holiday by the Pilgrims or the Puritans of the Bay. Training Day, Election Day, Commencement Day were the great festivals of seventeenth and eighteenth century New England. The early Pilgrims had a hard time to get enough to eat. Their second Thanksgiving followed a day of fasting. There was a drought. They prayed nine hours for rain. It came; and then they turned to thanksgiving. In more comfortable days Thanksgiving was sometimes followed by a fast, a sequence undoubtedly hygienic. Long habituated to plenty, it is almost with shame that we look back to the sturdy Thanksgiving spirit of WILLIAM BREWSTER in a lean year. He gave thanks after days of an uninterrupted and unrelieved clam diet that he was "permitted to suck of the abundance "of the seas and the treasures of the "sands."

There spoke the undaunted Pilgrim spirit. We who keep the festival today have a thousand more reasons for gratitude. To live with a life so much fuller and richer in its intellectual interests as well as its material comforts than our immigrating ancestors of whatever race ever knew is ground enough for lasting thanks. The whole theatre of life is open to our eyes, as it was not to theirs; and, seeing the pity and the terror of some or much of it, some of us are but too inclined to take a gloomy view of the scheme of things. Yet nothing is going on among the nations abroad that could not be expected after the war of wars. In most of those nations the will to work, the passion for restoration and rehabilitation, are already fruitfully exerted.

If the long debauch of the Soviets is not yet ended, we know that it must end, because human nature and experience cannot be defied permanently. Disturbances, little wars, reactions, revolutions—these, after all, are only the slowly receding waves of the ocean of disaster. There are no more disappointments and disturbances than are the natural sequels of the cataclysm. They are temporary. Labor, order, freedom are permanent instincts and forces of the modern world. With compassion, charity, with hope and not with fear, we can look upon the thronged scene of Europe and Asia.

In our own country we see, after one of the bitterest of political campaigns, a feeling of tolerance and good humor established. The Democrats are willing to help the Republicans. Labor, still prosperous and highly paid, is disposed to a moderate and conservative policy. It is one with most of the rest of us in opposing the insane plans of radicals and revolutionaries, bred on exotic destructive doctrines. The country is passing more easily than could have been expected through the necessary process of deflation. The Federal Reserve system has approved itself an impregnable barrier against financial catastrophes, once periodical. Trade is adjusting itself intelligently and bravely to the new conditions. Prices of the necessaries of life have fallen and are falling. The crops are fat. The public health is good. Seldom has there been steadier, ampler or more fruitful effort in behalf of charity, education, religion, all the higher and humaner purposes of life. The public health is of the best. Medical and every other science is making active advance. The feeling of common interest and union among Americans was never greater. If the heroic ardor of the war has cooled, they are still resolute to fulfill the tasks of peace and reconstruction, to maintain and promote justice and freedom and peace, to play in the affairs of the world the part which befits the most powerful, the richest and still the most idealistic of people.

THE REPUBLICANS MUST CHOOSE.

The action of the League Assembly on Tuesday is really a summons to the incoming Republican Administration to say precisely what it wants. Various minor amendments of the Covenant had been offered. But the Assembly's committee decided to touch none of them until it was known what changes the United States would propose. About these there has been a lot of vague talk and campaign gesticulating. Now it is time, Geneva says—or would say it if it were master of the American vernacular—to get down to brass tacks.

Here is certainly an unsettled question which will have no pity for the repose of the next President. He will have to make a choice. It must be, in the first place, between the factions of his own party. He cannot go, as he sought to do in the campaign, with JOHNSON and BORAH, and also with ROOT and TAFT. When the League directly asks Mr. HARDING, after he has become President, what alterations he has to suggest, his answer will have to be specific. No election flourishes will do—nothing about "America First." The League exists. Do we mean to enter it or not? It has a certain organization. Do we insist that it be transformed? If so, in what ways? These are plain questions. They will require straight and definite replies.

It may have seemed easy in advance to some of our parochial statesmen to declare, when the time came, that the United States considered the Covenant merely as so much rubbish, to be shot upon the junk-heap, and that the other countries must sit down like docile children while the Republican Party explained to them just how to build a perfect association of nations. But we doubt if, when the new Administration comes to the scratch, that attitude will seem either gracious or feasible. Our Government will be dealing then with the statesmen of forty or more lands. Can it ask them to admit that they have made fools of themselves and that all wisdom is domiciled at Washington? That surely would not be in line with Mr. HARDING'S consuming desire to arrive at a pleasant "understanding" with everybody. Now it is the members of the League who are anxious to understand the position of the new Administration. They are putting the matter up to the next President with an explicitness and urgency which there is no escaping. If he has no clear policy, it will be necessary for him to formulate one without loss of time.

Warmed-over stuff—baked meats from the election funeral—distinctly will not do. This is one reason why the sailing to Europe of Senator McCORMICK as an alleged agent of Mr. HARDING caused uneasiness. The Illinois Senator, before his departure, fulminated with his old-time facility against the League, and intimated that if the "international bankers" did not quit favoring it he would hale them before a Senatorial committee and have their books examined and all their wickedness exposed. He had better ask the farmers of his State whether they want a foreign market for their crops cut off, so that America may proudly go it alone. The McCormick talk is of the kind which went well enough when the League was made a raging partisan question, but we ought to hear no more of it now that it has become again a question of international trade, co-operation and peace. We note with pleasure the statement from sources friendly to Mr. HARDING that Senator McCORMICK'S trip is not "official." But unless the Senator from Illinois changes his methods, he will do his best to make it officious.

FEDERALIZING SUNDAY.

A former employé of the Anti-Saloon League, who has had to look about him for more worlds to conquer, is naturally one of the chief figures in the new Sabbatarian movement. Its immediate objective is limited to the enactment, with the consent but not the advice of Congress, of a Sunday observance law for the District of Columbia, the insular possessions, and army and navy reservations. This is to be "an entering wedge." The Sunday observance amendment to the Constitution is waiting behind in the shadows.

The various organizations behind the new movement have not yet completely harmonized their aims, but the example of prohibition makes it probable that they will succeed in doing so, and that the extreme faction will prevail. The new law is "not a blue law," according to its friends. If the more moderate faction gets the upper hand, it will merely prohibit theatrical and motion picture performances, the opening of stores except such as sell drugs and food, and the playing of games where an admission fee is charged. If a somewhat straiter sect should prevail, golf, automobiling for pleasure and travel by rail, except for proved necessity, will be abolished; with, of course, the appointment of a Sunday enforcement commissioner and a huge staff of agents to look into the question what travel is necessary and what is not. No wonder Congressmen who remember the pressure of the Anti-Saloon League are perturbed.

Friends of the movement want laws passed not only to coerce the "worldly," but also to restrain church members who do not practice the principles of their creeds. In other words, the State is called in to assist the Church in maintaining its authority over its own adherents. We are getting on.

COOLIDGE VS. LODGE.

"You can't say," declared Governor COOLIDGE in an address to Boston business men on Tuesday, "that there "was a preponderance of votes "against the League of Nations." This is horrifying. Can't say it? Why, it had been said only two days before, in the most positive way, by no less a person than Senator LODGE. He figured it out neatly that there was a clear majority of 7,000,000 voters, all consciously and explicitly condemning the League of Nations to death.

Schoolmaster COOLIDGE, however, points out that Master HENRY had "done his sums" wrong. His equation was askew on both sides. Many in the South were against the League, yet they voted the Democratic ticket. A great number of Republicans voted for their party, though strongly favoring the League. So, says the incorrigible Governor to the (we hope) corrigible Senator: "I doubt if any "particular mandate was given at the "last election on the question of the "League of Nations."

Mr. HARDING has indicated that the next Vice President is going to be given a lot of work to do. Work enough, surely, if he has to keep track of Senator LODGE.

COMMODORE BENEDICT.

Great artist in the difficult art of viability, ELIAS CORNELIUS BENEDICT had nearly eighty-seven years of fortunate life in which there can have been few days of dullness. An alert and successful man of business, he gave his leisure largely to yachting. For fifty years he sailed or steamed on the seas. He weathered wild storms on the Caribbean as he had weathered financial storms in Wall Street. From the still-vexed Bermoothes to the strange world of the Amazon his journeys led him. It is estimated that he made 400,000 miles of sea travel, which, to most of us sedentary folk, means travel in the realms of gold. He wasn't selfish about his pleasures. He loved to conduct parties of friends on his marine expeditions. Once he made a rescue at sea. He was our greatest long-distance amateur sailor, and the disappearance of his rugged and kindly figure removes a familiar remembrancer of old times.

He was a philanthropist, too, and faithful to his duties as a rich man; but he was best known as an amateur yachtsman, and especially as the friend and entertainer of GROVER CLEVELAND, JOSEPH JEFFERSON and "Fighting Bob" EVANS, those brothers of the rod. On his yacht, when the Silver bill was still pending and everything was at sixes and sevens at Washington, a surgical operation was performed on President CLEVELAND; an operation which for reasons of State and business it was desirable to keep from public notice. It was hidden in a secrecy which seems almost impossible in the case of so famous a subject, and the details of it were revealed only a year or two ago. Commodore BENEDICT never went into public life, but he was a faithful contributor to Democratic funds, and President CLEVELAND had no more thoroughgoing adherent.

Commodore BENEDICT used to repeat some humorous and philosophical remarks of Mr. CLEVELAND as Piscator that showed him to be a worthy member of the angler's craft. "Mr. "CLEVELAND used to say when we'd "come home with hardly a bite: 'At "any rate, we had Great Expectations "and a fine outing.'" Delicious, too, was Mr. CLEVELAND'S grave vindication of the veracity of the fisherman who estimates the length and weight of the always monstrous fish that gets away:

> Why should this statement be discredited? It is made by one who struggled. Perhaps he saw the fish. This, however, is not important, for he certainly felt it on his rod, and he knows precisely how his rod behaves in every conceivable strain.

FARMERS' BANKS IN TROUBLE.

Nine banks of North Dakota have been closed in ten days as the result of being too accommodating to farmers. On the same day that this was reported wheat fell to its lowest price since 1917, and corn is selling below 1913. The farmers got the banks' money, and the banks have the farmers' collateral. Excess of credit, not deficiency, is thereby revealed. If the banks had not been too indulgent to borrowers, the latter would have been compelled to liquidate when the market was higher. The case is similar with the planters' banks. It is in vain that combinations are formed to hold agricultural or other commodities at a certain price. From a banking standpoint the only test of collateral is a liquidating price.

Senator CAPPER, in his Weekly, reproaches the banks for not advancing to agricultural interests $250,000,000 of short-time credit, so that they would not have to sell crops on a demoralized market, at a loss of $2,500,000,000. But farmers do not want short-time credit. The farmer makes but a single crop a year, and takes but one profit. That is the reason why he needs long credits and larger profits, and why commercial banks are not well suited for farmers' banks. The agricultural situation is undeniably painful this year, when the crops are abundant but the biggest buyers abroad are in poor credit. Our surplus is thrown back upon us. It would be a great relief if our surplus crops were taken off our market by export. But short-term credit by commercial banks will not perform that service for international trade.

Senator CAPPER complains that money is drained from the agricultural sections into the large cities, and then is at the service of the stock market. Yet the country banks would keep their funds at home if they could profitably employ them the year round. The rural sections which are now calling for more credits are already borrowers by rediscount for unusual amounts. The farmers are financed by the city banks this year; they would absorb unlimited amounts, if allowed, with what results the experience of the Dakota banks indicates.

BOURGEOIS BOLSHEVIKI.

It was nominated in the bond that the proletariat should become dictator; but if KARL MARX could have foreseen that eventually it would turn bourgeois, Mr. H. G. WELLS would have been forestalled in one of his keenest diatribes and robbed of his promised essay on "The Shaving of Karl Marx." Yet bourgeois the dictators of Moscow have undoubtedly become; the evidence is overwhelming. The first rude shock was registered by Herr WILHELM DITTMAN, a radical German Socialist who was sent to Russia to confer with LENIN. "Horrified and dismayed," as he deposes, he found that the Communist Party included "scarcely 100,000 workmen," but of "Soviet officials, male and female, of all grades," he descried some 230,000. Even in Moscow the public conscience was lacerated. People were beginning to whisper a fateful phrase—"the Soviet bourgeoisie."

And now comes Mrs. SHERIDAN. She is too much a sculptress to take note of mere ideas and phrases, but her perception of the plastic fact is absolute. MOLIERE'S "Bourgeois Gentilhomme" himself was no more vain, no more rapt and agonized, in his new and personal passion for Art than was NIKOLAI LENIN in sitting for his portrait. "He seemed to be displaying "his faces for me to select. * * * "Never did I see any one make so "many faces. LENIN laughed and "frowned and looked thoughtful, sad "and humorous all in turn. His eye-"brows twitched. Sometimes they "went right up and then again they "puckered maliciously." No hand-rubbing burgher was ever more eager to please. "I waited, watched, hesitated," writes Mrs. SHERIDAN, "and "then made my selection with a "frantic rush. It was his screwed-up "look. It is wonderful!"

"Thou little thinkest," wrote JOHN SELDEN, "what a little foolery governs the world." Little fooleries are the ornaments of a moment. The fooleries that govern the world are gross as a mountain, open, palpable. Yet not until the Marxian theorem was demonstrated in the flesh and soul of Russia could its absurdity be made manifest to the faithful throngs of those who, like Herr WILHELM DITTMAN, have of late made holy pilgrimage to Moscow.

With what patience is possible one waits to behold the wonderful, screwed-up look of NIKOLAI LENIN. It should be eloquent of the martyrdom of a great people. Also there should be a note, grim and sardonic, of the laughter of the gods.

DEVELOPING THE PHILIPPINES.

The recommendation of Major Gen. FRANK MCINTYRE, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department, that American bankers and business men interest themselves in the trade and development of the Philippines, comes at a time when the whole problem of credit is trying. Loans to sustain domestic enterprises are not easily secured with the best collateral. When business men are walking the floor nights and making calculations about how they can meet their liabilities and pay their income taxes, the plea of the Philippines is not likely to get a patient hearing until optimism returns. Furthermore, until the burden of taxation is lightened, the development of our insular possessions will have to wait.

When the United States took over the Philippines, after paying Spain $20,000,000, there was a natural fear that the islands would be "exploited" by speculators. Nothing of the kind happened, for Congress stepped between them and the native people. The acquisition of large tracts of land was forbidden. Timber could not be stripped from the hills by lumber monopolists and the mineral deposits could not be worked on a large scale. It must be admitted, on the other hand, that hemp legislation was not in the interests of the Filipinos, and that the tariff laws generally operated to their disadvantage. The beneficiaries were American manufacturers and exporters.

It was unfortunate that agricultural development suffered. General McINTYRE urges that something be done in that direction now. "Large tracts of the best land in the world" await tilling, he says, and the supply of labor at moderate wages is far greater than the demand. The Philippine Legislature is doing something to prepare the way for working the mineral deposits of the country, the value of which has never been determined. Remote districts are being explored for oil and lands are being leased for drilling. Legislation at Washington is required to permit leasing on a large scale. The proposal would probably be opposed, but hardly from the Philippines.

Particularly, General McINTYRE would have the debt limit raised from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. It was estimated by Judge BLOUNT in 1912 that war and reconstruction in the islands had cost the United States $300,000,000. The bill has been somewhat reduced since then, but it should always be considered that the slate will never be wiped clean unless the resources of the Philippines are developed by American capital.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Refusal Well Justified.

Probably there is nobody not engaged in exploiting the commercial possibilities of pugilism who will fail to agree with every one of the reasons given by the Board of Armory Commissioners for refusing to allow contests between professional boxers to take place in the buildings erected by the State for the housing of its soldiers and sailors. The members of the board say that "the number and the character of the people interested in promoting such bouts, as well as the make-up of the average crowd witnessing them, unavoidably would introduce into the life of military commands temptations, influences and an atmosphere not only distracting to the training of the units, but out of keeping with the ideals and best standards of the National Guard in the State of New York."

And, continuing, the Commissioners mention "the very large number of irresponsible persons" who would be in the crowds gathered to watch the fights, and express strongly the belief that association with "fight promoters" would not be desirable for commanding officers and would take a lot of time that would be much better used in attending to their military duties.

Against boxing itself, of course, the Commissioners have nothing to say; on the contrary, they give it explicit commendation when the participants are members of the military units.

Why Guard Only Two Classes?

As might be expected, the fight promoters are deeply grieved at exclusion from the armories, and the Secretary of the International Sporting Club notes with something between sorrow and resentment that the Armory Commissioners "have made it appear that boxing is the black sheep in the family of sports." He is quote right—that is just what it has done, though it is only upon the professional, money-making phase of the sport that this imputation has been cast.

But why is it that the members of the Armory Board are so apprehensive about the effects of the temptations, influences and atmosphere surrounding commercialized boxing when brought to bear on the State's soldiers and sailors, when the Legislature showed no compunction about subjecting to like temptations, influences and atmosphere the much larger part of the general population that attends the fights made legal by the Walker act? And if prizefights in armories are unworthy of the dignity and standards of the National Guard and the Naval Militia, why are they not equally unworthy of the State's dignity and ideals when held elsewhere?

The young men in the two military organizations have at least ordinary ability to take care of themselves and their morals. Either they should be humiliated at having been made the objects of a special solicitude, or else other young men, and old ones, too, should complain that no such protection has been accorded to them.

Immediate Rejection Their Duty.

A third and presumably last hearing has been given to the friends and foes of the plan to take one hour each week from the time of the public school children and devote it to religious instruction. As about everything that could be said in favor of this truly startling innovation, or in opposition to it, had been offered at the previous hearings, the committee appointed by the Board of Education to hear the conflicting arguments did not receive much further enlightenment.

One speaker, however, Dr. BERNARD ROSENBERG, did enliven the otherwise rather dull proceedings by presenting with vigor and courage the opinion that what the advocates of the plan really wanted was not so much the single hour to which they wisely had reduced their demand, but to get at last a clear recognition by the State, as represented by the municipal authorities, of the existence of the several religious bodies.

He also pointed out that with the desired hour they would get even more than that—they would secure, among other things, a formal dividing by the teachers of the children according to the religious preferences of their parents—a religious census, as it were. That certainly is not a proper activity for teachers in the public schools, and it is earnestly to be hoped that the proposal of the Interdenominational Committee will be rejected peremptorily.

It is one dangerously un-American in spirit and purpose, and it is backed by what are close to false pretenses, for it is not true that anything more or better in the way of religious instruction can be given to the city's children by taking one hour a week from their public school time than can be given to them during the many other unoccupied hours they already have.

His Study Begins in Earnest.

Senator HARDING has arrived safely at Colon, or at Cristobal, which is much the same thing, only a lot better, and already he has begun that study of Isthmian problems which was announced to be the, or an, object of his journey. One notices that his first investigation was made on the golf links near the great Gatun dam.

A voyage through the canal on a mine sweeper will add to his knowledge—of the scenery along the line—and the official dinners in the city of Panama will complete the course.

But there! Why carp? The President-to-be needed and had earned a rest, and that he will get in most enjoyable form on the sea, both ways, and the Isthmus itself is interesting to any American, even though it isn't particularly informative to anybody except an engineer.

The Senator easily could have chosen a more beautiful part of the tropics to visit, but he will see the real thing in Jamaica, especially if he goes up into the mountains, and never will he forget the blueness of the water that he has traversed. It is an incredible and impossible blue—there, nevertheless.

As for "Isthmian problems," of course they are much further north than Panama. They will keep till the Senator gets back in Washington.

THANKSGIVING GREETING.

Women of Nebraska Send a Memorial to the President

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of "An Undaunted Idealist" in a recent issue of THE TIMES came to my notice when engaged in the enterprise of aiding in the getting off to President Wilson, to reach him on Thanksgiving Day, of a memorial from 1,252 women of Nebraska, the names gathered by a little group in various towns in the space of ten days, engrossed upon a parchment roll, in india ink, in renaissance type by an artist in that line of work. The memorial wording, that of Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, a historian at the Peace Conference, is as follows:

"We, women of Nebraska who, regardless of party, voted on Nov. 2 in favor of the entrance of America into the League of Nations, send you sympathetic greetings on Thanksgiving Day. We are persuaded that America will finally enter the League. We believe, further, that when she becomes fully conscious of her world responsibilities she will bear them in such a spirit as to justify your utterances during the war and at the Peace Conference, in which you attributed to our country high ideals and noble purposes.

"Through you America, conscious of herself, became the leader in the world's greatest crisis and was instrumental in founding a new world order. Although no race may consciously devote itself to the higher ends of mankind, it is the prerogative of its men of genius so to devote it; nor is any nation truly great which is not so dedicated by its warriors and statesmen, its saints and heroes, its thinkers and dreamers. This dedication of the energy of a race by its men of genius to the higher ends of mankind is the sap of all the world. Such a dedication, Mr. President, America has received at your hands, and for this we are truly grateful on this Thanksgiving Day."

At the centre and top of the parchment are the two hemispheres, and above them, "And on Earth Peace, Good-Will Toward Men." In the corners are the scales of Justice. The whole is a very beautiful memorial.

I give these details, as I think "An Undaunted Idealist," and perhaps others, will be glad to know that from way out here on the Western prairies a Thanksgiving message is going to the greatest figure in our national life since Lincoln. INEZ C. PHILBRICK.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 20, 1920.

We have read with deepest interest the letters of appreciation of our great and incomparable President, Woodrow Wilson. The thinking and unpartisan peoples of the earth give praise and thanksgiving for the greatest humanitarian of all the ages since the Prince of Peace walked among his own and they "knew Him not."

If THE NEW YORK TIMES could be read in every home in our broad land how much sooner our people would know and appreciate the truth.

OLD STUFF AT THE MUSEUM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Pennell in his letter to THE TIMES of Nov. 18, apropos of the Metropolitan Museum's financial difficulties, begins by gently chiding it for making its galleries into "a graveyard of dead art." And he goes on to say:

"When will the Metropolitan learn that art is a living, paying proposition? Let them appeal to living artists and they will find out. Do the dealers of the city who do so beg?"

How true! They do not. But, then, neither do the fashionable clothing firms.

Other women besides myself must have been struck by how deplorably passé are the dresses exhibited in the Museum's lace room. It is a very morgue of styles. On my last visit there was nothing more recent, unless my memory fails me, than 1806. And a number of the dresses were of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Quite impossible.

Then the china and the furniture. Not a single complete set, most of it defective, and I couldn't find one bed that could be called really sanitary.

Has it ever occurred to the authorities of the Museum, I wonder, that they could change their yearly shortage into quite a handsome profit by scrapping all their out-of-date pictures, china, dresses, laces, silver, jewelry, furniture, arms, &c., getting in a good modern stock and turning the whole thing into a department store?

Pro-Bonus Economics.

Your correspondent who seems to prophesy the abomination of desolation to business if the ex-service men are granted a national "bonus" can cheer himself up with the following consideration:

The cash bonus, if passed, will mean that a great deal of money will find its way into the cash registers of our retail stores. This will be followed by orders placed with jobber and manufacturer. Most people are willing to pay the price asked if they have it.

Business passes its taxes along to the consumer so that the majority of people will pay the tax, business concerns only paying, or avoiding, their share. But business wants people to buy, and it will get practically all of the service men's bonus, at a very small investment.

Should worst come to worst, however, and business lose a little, it made money during the war, while about five million service men lost money; some, more than money. It was to keep this country safe for business, among other things, that five million men and women put on the uniforms. Perhaps, if they had thought as much of their lives and future as business seems to think of the tax for the bonus, the Hun might be dominating Europe today. We know to what this fact would have been but a prelude.

PRAYER FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

For the grain in the bin;
For the hay in the byre,
For the fruit gathered in
From the storm's blasting ire,
For the bounty distilled
By the bee from the rose;
For the treasure-jars filled
From orchard and close,
For the flame and the heat
In the logs stored away,
For the bread and the meat,
We thank Thee this day.

HAPSBURG PALACES IN USE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—The Hapsburg palaces in and around Vienna seem huge anomalies now that Austria is a republic and very much reduced, but they are being gradually brought once more into active service.

Hofburg, which was the town residence of the imperial family, has been partly occupied for some time by various Entente commissions, but the National Theatre authorities have now also become occupants to some extent. Two of the largest reception rooms are to be taken over by the State Theatre Department, one to be used for light comedies and the other for lighter operas such as those of Mozart. Companies performing in these two small theatres will be as good as those appearing in State theatres, but as space will be much more limited, it is announced that prices for these performances in Hofburg will be high.

Then in December certain large reception rooms in Hofburg, such as the marble room and the blue room, are to be given over to the exhibition of the latest Viennese fashions, and it is hoped that the foreign representation at this display will be very great.

The Imperial Summer residence at Schoenbrun, in the outlying part of Vienna, is now given over in part to tenants who cannot find flats in town. Several well-known political personalities are already living there, sharing this palace, which was partly built by Marie Antoinette's mother, with deserving Viennese children.

MONDELL IN BAD SHAPE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Frank Mondell, the Republican leader in the House, may be prevented from appearing to take up his duties when Congress convenes on Dec. 6. Mr. Mondell has had a trying year physically. The climax came last night.

Some of the things which have happened to Mr. Mondell are these:

1. Worked so hard in Congress that he was forced to leave before the session ended and go home to recuperate for the campaign.
2. Fell off a haymow at his Wyoming home and fractured two ribs.
3. Had influenza, followed by laryngitis, just before the campaign, and could make no speeches.
4. Stepped on a pebble on Oct. 19 while inspecting Shoshone Dam and fell, breaking the small bone in his leg and tearing the ligaments.
5. Returned to Washington last Monday, took the plaster cast off his leg and found through an X-ray picture that the bone was setting on an angle and would probably have to be rebroken.
6. One of his crutches broke last night and he fell down the steps of his home, injuring his leg badly.

PRESIDENT VETOES HOLIDAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Half holidays which had been granted for today in several Government departments were rescinded by President Wilson in an official order.

The Secretaries of Commerce and Labor and the Interstate Commerce Commission had authorized half holidays this afternoon for their employes. When the President heard of this, at a Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon, he vetoed the plan. The official order went to all department chiefs directing that the usual full day's work should be done today.

COLBY SAILS SOUTH SUNDAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Secretary Colby, accompanied by Rear Admiral Frank B. Bassett and Major Gen. Adelbert Cronkite as his aids, will sail from Hampton Roads Sunday on the battleship Florida for South America, where he will pay official visits to the Governments of Brazil and Uruguay. NAVAL SURGEON RETIRING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Rear Admiral W. C. Braisted, Surgeon General of the Navy since 1914, will go on the retired list on Friday, Secretary Daniels announced today, to be succeeded by Rear Admiral Edward R. Stitt.

Dr. Stitt is considered, Mr. Daniels said, an authority on tropical diseases and one of the ablest members of the Navy Medical Corps. He is now head of the Naval Medical School here, and was called into consultation early in the illness of President Wilson.

Admiral Braisted, the Secretary said, "had gained distinction for himself and the navy by his able and efficient service in peace and in war."

ALBANY, Nov. 24.—Governor Smith today appointed Charles M. Winchester of Albany, Arthur E. Parsons of Syracuse, Morris Miller Davidson of Firthcliffe and Samuel Rothschild of Gloversville as members of the Industrial Council. The appointments were made to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of George E. Emmons of Schenectady, Martin H. Christopherson of Yonkers and Carleton A. Chase of Syracuse and the death of Richard C. Stofer of Norwich.

The appointment of William Dean Embree of New York as a member of the Board of Managers of the New York State Reformatory for Women at Bedford, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Daniel P. Hays, also was announced.

The Knights of Columbus will be active in all hospitals and in many of the council houses entertainments and dinners will be held. Special efforts will be made to reach disabled veterans.

The union Thanksgiving service of the Protestant churches of Harlem will be held at the Harlem-New York Presbyterian Church, Mount Morris Park West and 122d Street, at 10:30 o'clock. The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist Church.

The Free Synagogue will join with the Community Church, the West Side Unitarian Church and Temple Israel in a service at 10:30 o'clock in Carnegie Hall. Addresses by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Dr. John Haynes Holmes will be on "Jew and Christian in America."

COLER AGAIN HITS DRIVES.

Criticises Red Cross for Asking for Wall Street Explosion Funds.

Following up his attacks on charity drives, which, he says, in many cases, duplicate city charity work, Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of the Department of Public Welfare, made public yesterday a letter he had received from Dr. S. Dana Hubbard of the Department of Health, commending his action.

Commissioner Coler declared that the Salvation Army appeared to be the only non-religious organization that performed war work in Europe "that has not stepped over since the war and wanted to be a permanent health or reform agency, attempting to take the work that is already being performed by duly constituted authorities."

"We will support any private organization doing good work," the Commissioner also declared, "but we must insist that duplication be stopped, and that the money be not obtained on the grounds that they are doing things for which taxpayers have already paid. It is just as unfair to the public for them to seek to obtain money under the guise that they are doing work that is already being done, as it is for the Red Cross to appeal for New York funds on the grounds of the Wall Street explosion, which was promptly cared for by the regular agencies of the city—ambulances, private hospitals, the Police and Fire Departments—before they appeared upon the scene.

POST OFFICE FOR 43D ST.

"Financial" Branch to Be Opened In National Association Building.

Plans have been completed to open a "financial" branch post office in the National Association Building, 23 West Forty-third Street, according to an announcement yesterday at the Post Office, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street. The new office probably will be named the Forty-third Street Branch.

"The new branch," declared Superintendent of Delivery Lubin, "will not make collections and will be only for registry, stamp and money order business. We have not yet decided on how large a staff will be required, nor do we yet know just when the branch will be opened for business."

The branch establishment is the outcome of efforts by various civic and business organizations, especially the Forty-second Street Association.

CONGRESSMAN'S SONS FINED

W. J. and Joseph Huling Assaulted the Rascovar Brothers.

An accidental jostle in the subway passage leading from the Thirty-fourth Street subway station into the Pennsylvania Station and an exchange of blows late yesterday afternoon led later to the appearance of Willis J. Hulings and his brother Joseph of East Rockaway, sons of Congressman Willis J. Hulings of Pennsylvania, in the Night Court to answer charges of disorderly conduct. The complainants were Harry Rascovar of Albert Frank & Co. and Edward Rascovar, his brother, Vice President of the American News Bureau, both with offices in 20 Stone Street, and residents of Cedarhurst, L. I.

Harry Rascovar's face was cut by his glasses and his jaw badly swollen. His brother had received a blow in the face. The former told of the altercation and the assault. He said that both brothers had struck him. Dr. Neuman of 22 West 72d Street, who dressed their injuries, testified as to their injuries. Municipal Justice William E. Blau, who was in the doctor's office at the time, and who had known the Rascovars for twenty years, appeared as a character witness for them.

Congressman Hulings told Magistrate Simpson he was going with his sons to East Rockaway to spend Thanksgiving and he was sure his sons had not struck the first blows. It all happened so quickly, he said, that he could not give details of the row.

The prisoners were found guilty. Harry Rascovar then made a plea that they be fined on their father's account. Both apologized and each was fined $10.

STARS SING IN 'SAMSON.'

Thanksgiving Eve Crowd at Opera Hears Caruso in Good Form.

French opera, the second only of its sort thus far, filled the Metropolitan last night, when M. Saint-Saëns's biblical pageant "Samson et Dalila" was added to the new season's list before a crowd augmented by holiday-makers in town for Thanksgiving. Always a score of musical distinction, and treated among lighter lyric dramas, "Samson" last evening found its leading artists on their mettle, and the Philistines, if any were present, heard a performance in which some of the singing was on a level not reached in nine days before.

Caruso and Matzenauer returned to the dual title rôles, while the versatile De Luca was the High Priest, a part new to him here. Rothier as the Old Hebrew, and Ananian, Dua, Paltrinieri and Reschiglian in other minor characters completed the cast, and Albert Wolff conducted. The opera is announced next week Friday.

ENGLISH FILMS COMING.

J. Stuart Blackton Tells, on Arrival Here, of New Productions.

J. Stuart Blackton, formerly Commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club, who sailed to England with Sir Thomas Lipton, returned to this country yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic. Mr. Blackton has completed arrangements for producing four film plays in this country with the English peerage as the background.

"I have secured the services of Lady Diana Manners, the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland," said Mr. Blackton. "Arthur Bourchier, the famous English actor, and his wife, Kyrle Bellew, will also star in the plays, which will be filmed in England. The action takes place near Belvoir Castle, the home of the Duke of Rutland, and Haddon Hall, which played a great part in English history of the Elizabethan period."

F. W. Mordaunt Hall, European representative of the Fox Film Company, and Mrs. Hall also arrived on the Olympic. They are on a short visit.

After encountering a real Atlantic storm, during which a member of the crew was washed overboard, the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII. arrived yesterday at Hoboken from Copenhagen. The sailor who lost his life was Niels Ousten, 19 years old, a college student who had signed on for the voyage during his vacation. Captain Gotsche said that on Nov. 19 one of the deck ventilators blew away, and men were sent on deck to cover the hole with canvas. As they reached the scene of the damage, a gigantic wave swept over the forecastle and carried the boy with it.

Among the first-class passengers was Count Moltke, head of the Danish Steel Industries, Inc., who has come over to discuss the exchange situation, which, he says, absolutely prevents trade with America. His brother is the Danish Ambassador at Washington.

CENSURES LUBAN JURY.

Court Discharges It for Failure to Convict Alleged Robber.

Dismissing the jury, which, after six hours of deliberation last evening, failed to reach a verdict in the mail robbery case of Jacob Luban, who some years ago figured prominently in the Rosenthal-Becker murder case, Judge John C. Knox, in the Federal District Court, declared there had been a miscarriage of justice. He therefore peremptorily set the retrial of Luban and his alleged conspirator, Paul Martini for Monday morning.

The jury, after being severely censured by Judge Knox for not reaching a conclusion on the evidence, which to him he said, clearly indicated the guilt of the two defendants, was also excused by Clerk Leary from further service for the term.

DELEWANA PUT ON SALE.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 24.—Delewana, the unsuccessful contender with the Gloucester, Mass., schooner Esperanto in the recent races here for the Canadian-American championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, was offered for sale today.

With her sails furled the little Nova Scotia schooner lay at her wharf disconsolately, while Captain Tom Himmelman, her skipper, and her owners expressed a desire for a faster vessel for the next occasion when Canadian and United States fishermen meet in an international sailing "derby."

Last night the Delewana's owners announced that their challenge for a second race with the Esperanto had been refused.

TELLS OF BURNING VILLAGE

Lewis G. Stevenson Brings Rights for Mammoth German Plow to Till Vast Farms.

The White Star liner Olympic, which arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg with 2,223 passengers and nearly $500,000 in gold, was delayed several hours by stormy weather, which included snow and rain squalls. This did not prevent the liner from averaging 19.75 knots for the voyage.

Among the notables among the 487 first cabin passengers were the Earl and Countess of Granard, who have come to remain here until next Spring. Three of their children accompanied them. Their baby, the Hon. John Forbes, born on Oct. 8, was left in Castle Forbes, Newtown-Forbes, County Longford, Ireland, because of his tender age.

The Earl told reporters of the burning of the village of Granard, from which his family takes its title, early in November. Seventeen houses were destroyed and the countryside terrified.

During the war the Earl served with his regiment, the Royal Irish, and later was appointed Food Controller in Ireland.

The Earl and Countess were met at the West Eighteenth Street pier by Representative-elect Ogden L. Mills and others of the family. Because of the recent death of her mother, Mrs. Ogden Mills, the Countess and her husband were in deep mourning. Three servants, brought from Ireland to look after the children, became seasick, and the Countess, assisted by the Earl, had to take care of Lady Moira, 10 years old; Lady Eileen, 7, and Viscount Forbes, 5.

Lewis G. Stevenson arrived with plans and rights for a mammoth plow invented in Germany. The plow required an eighty-horse power motor, but was expected to be a great saving to farmers who had thousands of acres. Despite the cultivation of every available foot of ground, he said, Germany would have a crop 50 per cent. short of pre-war days.

Other passengers were Mrs. J. T. Preston, formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland, accompanied by her husband, Dr. Preston; Mrs. Huntington Wilson, John Sawyer, William McCulloch, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and her daughter Grace, Mr. and Mrs. J. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Shaun Kelly, Colonel J. Reynolds McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Trenchant E. Newbold and Sir Ernest Manifold Raeburn, formerly British Minister of Shipping to the United States, who comes to close unfinished business with the United States Shipping Board.

Victim of Hold-Up Men Had Five Fractures of the Skull.

An autopsy on the body of Frank Barbor, who was killed by three hold-up men in Central Park soon after midnight yesterday, revealed that the man died from a bullet wound in the spine as well as from five fractures of the skull. When Dr. George Hohman, Assistant Medical Examiner, examined the body in the Arsenal Station soon after the killing, he announced there was no superficial evidence of the man having been shot, although Charles J. Becker, a sailor of the battleship Arizona, told detectives he saw the tallest of the three hold-up men shoot Barbor.

The manner in which Barbor's skull was fractured is still a mystery. Becker insisted that he stood near the victim when the shooting occurred and remained near him until after the hold-up men had fled, and did not see any of them strike Barbor. Dr. Hohman believed Barbor was struck on the head several times with the butts of the bandits' pistols.

Policeman Mullally of the Central Park Station said he saw Barbor and three youths conversing in the Park near the West Sixty-fifth Street entrance not long before the shooting. Barbor's companions looked like foreigners and each wore a cap. His description of the youths tallied with that furnished by the sailor.

The policeman said Barbor, who was 45 years old, was a frequenter of Central Park at night and he had chased him and his companions out of the place. Barbor lived at the Mills Hotel, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, and formerly lived at 69 Seventh Avenue. The detectives say they believe the assailants thought he had money, but he had only $2.05 when he was slain.

The sale of the third part of the library of Charles J. Barnes was concluded yesterday at the Anderson Galleries. Frederick W. Morris paid $275 for "De Situ Orbis Terrarum," by Julius Solinus, Venice, 1473, sometimes called the first printed history of the world.

E. B. Spring paid $200 for a copy of Lord Byron's "Don Juan," first edition, London, 1821-22. The same buyer obtained for $350 "The English Spy," by Charles M. Westmacott, London 1825-26, in binding by Root and illustrated by Robert Cruikshank, Rowlandson, Gilray and others.

The session brought $4,362.75. The grand total for the three parts of the sale was $28,393.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Nov. 24.—George W. Young, husband of the late Lillian Nordica, testified today in the trial of his suit in the Circuit Court here against the executors of the estate of his wife to recover jewels valued at $150,000. He produced a bill of sale of the jewels to George W. Young & Co., Inc., on Sept. 19, 1919, in exchange for the jewels, Young said, he received 250,000 debentures of the company, valued at $85,000. These, he said, he put up as collateral with a trust company to secure the payment of $6,500 annual alimony to his first wife. He testified to having bought some of the jewels in 1905.

Philip Fraser Ross, a jewel expert with Tiffany & Co. of New York, said he sold Young an emerald necklace, alternating with diamonds, twelve or fourteen years ago. The emerals totaled 160 carats, worth today $1,000 a carat. Diamonds probably would be worth $700 a carat now, he said.

Mrs. Dorothy Dresser, Young's daughter, told of having heard Mme. Nordica refer to the necklace as being the property of Young. The case was continued until Friday.

AERIAL DERBY TODAY WILL DRAW BIG CROWD

With Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and General John J. Pershing as guests of honor, the Army-Navy race for the Pulitzer Trophy and Valentine Liberty bond prizes will be held this morning at Mitchel Field, near Garden City, L. I. Forty-four planes, all tuned up for the 140-mile race over a thirty-five-mile triangular course, were undergoing last-minute inspections in the hangars last night by the pilots and mechanicians.

Maurice Cleary of the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America, which is managing the event, emphasized the fact that the race was free to the public and expressed the hope that thousands would attend and make the aerial derby a success. Beginning at 9:55 the Pennsylvania Railroad will run special trains direct to Mitchel Field.

Airplanes designed by British, French, Italian, German, as well as American aircraft builders, will be pitted against each other lending an international aspect to the meeting. The keenest rivalry has long existed between the air branches of the army and navy and for the first time an opportunity will be afforded the land and sea plane pilots to settle the question of supremacy.

CLOTHING A THIRD LOWER.

Chicago Retail Prices Still Far Above 1914 Figures.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Leading merchants estimate that retail prices of clothing are now, on an average, 30 to 35 per cent. below the peak prices of some ten months ago. Some commodities, such as silks, have been reduced with a vengeance; others, such as hats, have fallen only a trifle. Socks and stockings have come down, while shoes appear to have fallen comparatively little.

Retail prices are still, however, far above the 1914 mark.

Employe Who Falsified Accounts for Large Sums Is Convicted.

Herman Milrod, 27 years old, who was in charge of a Union News Company's stand in the Hudson Terminal Building, was convicted yesterday of forgery before Judge McIntyre in General Sessions. A witness against him was another employe of the company named Smith, who turned State's evidence. He testified that he met Milrod in 1918, and the latter suggested to him that they falsify Milrod's accounts and divide the proceeds. At that time Smith was in charge of some of the company's books at their general offices, and he was assigned to check up Milrod's accounts.

Milrod in making up his weekly reports, the witness said, gave totals that were from $150 to $200 less than they actually were, and Smith checked them as correct. The latter said he received his share folded in a newspaper as he passed Milrod's stand each week on his way home. It was reported that the loss to the company as a result of these peculations amounted to a large sum.

STEAL JEWELS FROM SAFE.

Three Confederates Get $12,000 in Diamonds Without Detection.

NORWICH, Conn., Nov. 24.—A wallet containing unset diamonds valued at from $10,000 to $12,000 was stolen this afternoon from the safe in the John and George H. Bliss jewelry store by three men who escaped. The robbery was not discovered for two hours.

One man bought a child's ring and looked at other articles, including the loose diamonds. Soon after he had gone two others entered. While the proprietor was showing them goods the first comer returned, said he would wait for the proprietor and got undetected to the safe. All three left the store almost at the same time, and, although there had been no signs between them while they were in the store, the proprietor saw them walking along the street together.

GEORGE M. SMITH BURIED.

Funeral services for George M. Smith, late managing editor of The New York Tribune, were held in the Church of the Transfiguration yesterday morning, and attended by many newspaper men on active service and by many now retired.

The floral offerings grouped upon the chancel and around the bier included tributes from men in almost every newspaper office in this city. There was a wreath of purple and white chrysanthemums "from the old staff of the old Sun." The advertising department of the Tribune sent a wreath of yellow chrysanthemums, and a great bunch of orchids came from Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid. Mr. Smith's great fondness for roses was remembered by his former comrades, and that flower predominated among the decorations.

The Rev. George Clark Houghton, rector of the church, officiated at the service, and at the bier read Tennyson's poem, "Crossing the Bar," for which Mr. Smith had expressed an attachment a week before his death. The honorary pall-bearers were Wesley L. Lowrie, Major William Trumbridge, Beauvais Fox, George R. Holden, Joseph Villa, Ogden Reid, Carr V. Van Anda, Jeffrey Parsons, Chester S. Lord and Major William B. Meloney.

The burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery. The grave was lined with the roses sent by Mr. Smith's friends.

WRITERS ARE ARRESTED AS EX-HUSBAND PURSUES

Mrs. Amelie W. P. Conrow and Rudolph Bodmer Taken in a Chicago Hotel.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Rudolph Bodmer, author of the "Book of Wonders," and Mrs. Amelie Willard Peck Conrow, a writer of stories for children, are central figures in a conjugal tangle that has developed here.

On charges made by Mrs. Conrow's divorced husband they were arrested Tuesday night at the Harvard Hotel, where they were registered. Mrs. Conrow will also be charged with having kidnapped her children, Amelie, 11 years old, and Willard, 9. Her divorced husband had followed the couple to Chicago from Washington.

In discussing the case today Mrs. Conrow said that she could not be remarried until Dec. 7, when the period that must elapse from the date of her divorce is completed.

WEET MAY SUCCEED FINLEY.

Rochester Educator Believed to Be Slated for State Place.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The seventy-fifth annual convention of the New York State Teachers' Association and affiliated organizations ended today with a general meeting in Convention Hall at which Dr. Arthur E. Bestor, President of the Chautauqua Institution, was the speaker.

Many teachers departed feeling that Dr. Herbert S. Weet, Superintendent of the Rochester public schools, would succeed Dr. John H. Finley as State Commissioner of Education. When Dr. Weet refused a request to consider the superintendency of the Philadelphia public schools, recently, it is understood that he knew Dr Finley was to resign and that he would be asked to become his successor. Dr. Weet is a graduate of the University of Rochester and has been for seventeen years in the public school organization, nine years of which he has been Superintendent.

ALBANY, Nov. 24.—The report from Rochester that Herbert S. Weet, Superintendent of Schools of that city, would succeed Dr. John H. VISITED GERMANY ON RUMELY MISSION

$150,000 MORE ADVANCED

Attorney Also Says He Called on August Busch in St. Louis in Behalf of Newspaper.

S. Walter Kaufmann, on trial with Norvin R. Lindheim, his law partner, and Dr. Edward A. Rumely, charged with withholding from the Alien Enemy Property Custodian the alleged German ownership of The Evening Mail in 1917, yesterday told of a conference he had in Baden-Baden, Germany, in 1916 with the late Herman Sielcken, the "coffee king," regarding Dr. Rumely's management of the newspaper.

Mr. Kaufmann testified on Tuesday that Dr. Rumely purchased the newspaper with $750,000 advanced by Mr. Sielcken, an American citizen, though Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, a German fiscal agent with an office at 45 Broadway. Yesterday he said he visited the "coffee king" at Baden-Baden to discuss the financial status of the newspaper.

He told him of the reorganization of The Evening Mail," said the witness, "and of Dr. Rumely's plans to build up the newspaper." The witness also told Mr. Sielcken the paper had a deficit of $80,000 in the preceding three months. He said Mr. Sielcken wanted to know why Dr. Rumely was not running the newspaper at a profit, saying he was dissatisfied with his investment.

Under cross-examination by Hugh Alcorn, Special Federal prosecutor, the witness said the "coffee king" advanced an additional $150,000 to Dr. Rumely. He delivered the money to Dr. Rumely at a time when diplomatic relations with Germany were about to be severed. He had acted, he said, to save Mr. Sielcken the loss of his investment in The Evening Mail.

Mr. Kaufmann also admitted that he called on August A. Busch, President of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, in St. Louis to discuss the newspaper, but denied he was accompanied by Dr. Albert and Dr. Rumely.

While he was testifying it became known that Mrs. Sielcken, widow of the "coffee king," was in court, and would be called as a witness for the defense.

Eugene Orvis, Mr. Kaufman's secretary, testified that he had accompanied his employer to Germany in 1916, and that a man named Arthur Schmidt escorted them to Mr. Sielcken's home in Baden-Baden. He said he did not understand German very well, but he overheard the words "Evening Mail" and "dollars" during the conversation between Mr. Sielcken and Mr. Kaufmann. Schmidt was present at the con-

YEAR'S LIVING COST $2,632, SAY PRINTERS

ASK $18 RISE; $4 OFFERED

The first of a series of hearings in the arbitration of the wage controversy between the employers in the book and job printing firms in the closed shop branch, Printers' League section, of the New York Association of Employing Printers, and their employes, was held yesterday afternoon at the office of Dr. George W. Kirchwey, 105 East Twenty-second Street, who is acting as an impartial chairman of the arbitration committee composed of representatives of the employers and the men. The argument of the unions was presented yesterday and the employers will be heard on Monday afternoon.

The unions have asked for an increase of $18 a week. The employers offer an increase of $4 a week. The "Big Six" Typographical Union and the New York Printing Press Assistants and Feeders' Union, 23, were represented yesterday of the nine unions whose demands are to be arbitrated. Dr. Wm. F. Ogburn, of Barnard College, has been chosen impartial chairman for one group, while the chairman for the third group, is yet to be selected. Hearings in the other groups will begin next week.

John P. Mines, President of the New York Printing Press Assistants and Feeders' Union, offered data to show that $2,632 a year was the present "living wage" level in New York City for a family of five, a father and mother and three children. It was stated that this living wage level was determined after complete investigation by Evans Clark and Alfred L. Bernheim of the Labor Bureau. Using the Government official estimates of the amount of some 400 articles which the average workingman's family needs in a year, the Labor Bureau, it was said, obtained price quotations for each in a district where the members of the Press Assistants' Union actually live—the east side of Harlem from 106th to 125th Streets.

Clothing	529.96
Rent	437.35
Light and heat	68.59
Household equipment	69.23
Miscellaneous	655.75
	$2,632.68

The unions also introduced evidence to prove that the printing industry was financially capable of meeting the wage demands and requested access to the books of the printing firms represented by the league section to substantiate their claims.

The present scale for pressmen is $39 a week, but it was pointed out that press assistants were laid off over seven weeks a year, so that their actual earnings were now only $1,743, or $889 below living wage.

SOLDIER-ATHLETE GETS KEY

Harvard Guard Adds Phi Beta Kappa to War and Gridiron Honors.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The Phi Beta Kappa Society of Harvard University put the hall mark of scholarship on a hero of the battlefield and gridiron today when it elected to membership Wesley G. Brocker of St. Paul, Minn. He is one of eight members of the junior class to be so honored and the only man active in athletics.

Brocker won a scholarship which brought him to Harvard in 1916 and his powerful play as guard on his freshman eleven and successful pitching on the class baseball nine gained him distinction.

After training at the first Plattsburg camp he went overseas with the First Division and was made a captain. He was wounded at Soissons, while leading his men in a charge, a machine gun bullet passing through both thighs. It appeared that his days in sports were done.

But Brocker returned to college last Fall, reported for service with the football squad, and became a member of the 'Varsity team of last year and of this Fall. He was a second-string man through both seasons, but was called into the game with Yale at guard and got his 'Varsity letter.

FORD TO PAY MEN $7,000,000 IN BONUS

Company Issues Denial of Report That Bonus System Had Been Dropped.

3 PER CENT. EXTRA GRANTED

This Will Make 14 Per Cent. Paid on the Certificates of 1920.

NO WORKMEN DISCHARGED

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—Denial was made today by Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, that the cash bonus to employes had been discontinued, as reported in a dispatch from Chicago, quoting S. Marquis, of the company's sociological department, who testified as a witness yesterday before the packers' wage hearing in Chicago.

The statement issued in behalf of the company reads:

"Mr. Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, announced this morning that the regular cash bonus, established Jan. 1, 1920, would be continued on the same basis, and bonus checks are now being made out and distribution of the same will start the 1st of January. These bonuses are in excess of $7,000,000.

"In addition the Ford Motor Company announces an extra 3 per cent. for the six months ending Dec. 31 on Ford investment certificates. This, in addition to the guaranteed 6 per cent. and 5 per cent. having been paid July 31, makes a total of 14 per cent., together with Ford investment certificates for the year 1920.

"When the Ford Motor Company announced the reduction of prices on their car they published the announcement with the emphatic statement that the decrease in prices would have no effect on the wages of the Ford employes. These facts, given out now, are given at this time because of the garbled report sent out from Chicago."

C. A. Brownell of the advertising department of the Ford company said that the company had not dropped a man. A statement credited to Dean Marquis was that 6,000 men had quit the Ford plant in ninety days. Mr. Brownell called this a normal turnover for the Ford plant, as many as 150 having left in a day. All these quit voluntarily, but as production had kept up during the ninety days their places had been filled.

Some men were laid off by the Ford company when the tractor plant was moved from Dearborn to River Rouge, but these probably did not number more than 1,000, he said. The tractor plant, he said, had 4,000 employes at the time.

The reported statement of Mr. Marquis was styled by another Ford company official a "malicious misrepresentation." Dean Marquis, who returned home late today, also blamed the press report.

GERMAN AIRPLANES HELD UP BY ALLIES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—The Entente commission for control of German air navigation has just stopped the export of eleven Junkers airplanes ready in Hamburg for shipment to America. As yet these airplanes have not been seized, but the German papers claim to have reliable information that it is intended to divide them between England, France and Italy.

The Entente commission bases its action on the Versailles Treaty, which prohibits Germany building any aerial vehicles for six months. This limit having expired July 10, the German airplane constructors contend they are at liberty to sell their products anywhere. This the Entente commission denies on the ground that Germany has not complied with that part of the Versailles Treaty stipulating the surrender of all military air navigation material. It is on the same ground that the Entente recently demanded that the two passenger Zeppelins, Bodensee and Nordstern, be handed over.

The Junkers airplanes are a new type constructed entirely of metal and on new principles. If they were seized by the Entente, French, English and Italian constructors might simply imitate the German inventions without any compensation.

Several large American firms whose representatives viewed the German invention here gave large orders and the eleven airplanes stopped at Hamburg are only the first instalment of much larger shipments. The German Government has asked the Entente commission to release them immediately.

STUTTGART, Germany, Nov. 23.—If confiscation of Zeppelin airships at Lake Constance and Nordstern should be permitted by Germany, the Allies will "undoubtedly claim the right to new building plans and inventions through which the Zeppelin concern has intended vastly to promote the use of airships for commercial purposes." This statement is made in an article printed in the Schwäbische Kurier by Dr. Eckener, one of the constructing engineers employed by the Zeppelin Company.

Dr. Eckener savagely attacks the action of the Allies in seizing Zeppelin machines, characterizing the taking of these vessels as "naked robbery."

"The only purpose of such procedure," he adds, "is the Entente's desire to get hold of the best products of German skill and further cripple Germany economically, as these ships were to be used in purely peaceful pursuits. The German Government should take immediate steps to prevent this plundering of home industries by the Entente."

Tells How She Feels in the House In Crowded Speech.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Lady Astor went to the Central Hall in Westminster today to open a sale on behalf of the Church Army. She announced she had only four minutes to speak, but, according to The Daily Chronicle, she managed to read a selection from the New Testament, to touch on Ireland, Armenia, education, temperance and the efficacy of prayer, to quote from Newman's great hymn, in reference to her seat in Parliament, to include various other little odds and ends and to finish up by forgetting to declare the sale open. Referring to the companionship of the House of Commons she said that when she looked round at her fellow-members she was sometimes tempted to say, "The night is dark and I am far from home."

Spanish Miners Want Share In Profits for Education

MADRID, Nov. 24.—The National Federation of Spanish Miners has passed a resolution calling on every miner in the country to join in a general strike on May 1 next and remain idle, unless the mine owners grant them fixed minimum wages according to working conditions in each mining district. The men also are requested to claim participation in the profits from each ton of coal mined, this money to be utilized for educational purposes.

The mine owners regard the fixing of the time of the proposed strike at such a distant date as an indication that the miners are satisfied with their present conditions.

REPORTS VANDERLIP CAUSES STIR ABROAD

Assertion That This Propaganda Is Compromising the Position of United States in Europe.

The American Russian Chamber of Commerce yesterday received the following cablegram from the Russian Financial, Commercial and Industrial Association in Paris:

"Every day newspapers contain long statements concerning concessions to Washington D. Vanderlip. This is used for agitation as proof that America is taking the lead in the resumption of relations with Russia. It is employed for influencing European public opinion, forcing other countries in the same direction, and as an influence for hastening the settlement of British-Soviet negotiations.

"Request American-Russian Chamber of Commerce to send us telegraphic statement for publication explaining standing of Vanderlip, his associates, the importance and object of his syndicate and the attitude of the Government and of business circles. It is urgently necessary to check the agitation, which is compromising the position of America."

"In American business circles the story of the Vanderlip Siberian concession and billion-dollar contract is looked upon as largely bluff and propaganda. Washington D. Vanderlip is merely an obscure prospector and engineer and is not to be confused with Frank A. Vanderlip, the well-known American banker, as was evidently intended by Soviet propaganda. Apparently the Soviet Government handed over to him the old Siberian concession formerly owned by Vonlarlarsky, which is not regarded as having any value.

"No one regards seriously the alleged contract to purchase enormous amounts of goods in America, knowing that the Soviet Government cannot possibly pay for them. The American Government withholds all approval or recognition of the Vanderlip transactions, and we do not believe the new Administration will alter our Russian policy to favor the Bolsheviki."

"The circulation of the wild story has its purpose. There are people deeply interested in securing from the Soviet Government the factories, mines, valuable securities and other property which they have expropriated. They have underground connections with Lenin, Trotzky & Co. which assure them the consummation of these nefarious deals, if only one little obstruction can be removed. That obstruction is primarily a certain aversion which seems to exist in civilized countries to dealing in stolen goods. But if they can succeed in having the Soviet Government recognized, this will ipso facto legalize all of the expropriations, confiscations and lootings of the Soviet authorities, as well as the transactions by which they are transferred to other parties.

"All of the activities of the Soviet representatives are so patently fraudulent that there is little likelihood of their succeeding in America, but it is not without danger that they should be able to use misleading reports from America for the purpose of influencing European public opinion, playing upon the idea that America is striving to open relations with the Soviet Government and thereby steal a march on European business.

ATTACK FORMER MRS. LEEDS

Venizelist Speakers Say Princess's Millions Backed Royalists.

The former Mrs. William B. Leeds, now the wife of Prince Christopher of Greece, brother of King Constantine, was denounced for backing a Royalist propaganda in Greece with American-made dollars by speakers at a meeting of 3,000 loyal Venizelists at the Greek Orthodox Church of St. Eleutherios, 259 West Twenty-fourth Street, last night. It was a good share of Mrs. Leeds's millions, the many speakers averted, which, "added to a big German fund," furnished the foundation for the recent defeat of Venizelos and the possible return to power of Constantine and the Royalists.

Amid cries of "Zito Venizelos!" and "Death to Constantine!" Dimetrios Theophylatos, President of the Greek-American Loyalist League, was forcibly ejected from the church with the aid of a small detachment of police when he attempted to break up the meeting by shouting for Constantine. As he was escorted down the church steps a Venizelist emptied the contents of a fire pail over his head. There was no further disturbance, as a committee was appointed to stand at the church door and admit only Venizelists.

The speakers included Kleonthes Vassardakis, former Greek Consul at San Francisco; P. Tatanis, publisher of the Greek National Herald, under whose auspices the meeting was held; Nicholas Pappadopulous, A. A. Athenson and many others. Athenson's address was the only one in English.

Dr. Sophocles Dadakis, ex-President of the Pan-Hellenic Union, declared that Constantine was King over only those Greeks who lived in Greece—about two-fifths of the Greeks of the world, while the preponderating sentiment among the rest of the Greeks was for Venizelos and democracy.

"I wish to protest," said he, "against the nefarious propaganda backed by the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, an American, whose many millians have helped to establish a fictitious majority. Her money, added to a big German fund actually bought the election."

"It may have been Mrs. Leeds's ambition to be a member of a working royal family out of a job that inspired her to spend her money on propaganda for Constantine," A. A. Athenson declared. "At least, that is the interpretation put upon her reported act by loyal supporters of Venizelos."

A resolution protesting against the Greek Government's intention to restore the throne of Greece to Constantine was adopted unanimously.

TRIUMPH IN ATHENS FOR GREEK PRINCES

ONE CARRIED BY CROWDS

ATHENS, Nov. 23 (Associated Press).—Princes Andreas and Christopher, brothers of Ex-King Constantine of Greece, arrived in Athens at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The whole route was strewn with olive branches and soldiers and civilians sang hymns to Constantine. Prince Andreas, who was dressed in civilian clothing, was carried like a football hero on the shoulders of friends through the crowd of 10,000 persons in Constitution Square.

The triumphal procession in honor of the two Princes had been arranged by Queen Mother Olga, Premier Rhallis and Minister of War Gounaris. Hundreds of automobiles took part.

Foreign newspaper correspondents went before Demetrios Gounaris, Minister of War, and George Rhallis, Premier, today and complained that the press censorship established during the Venizelos régime was being continued. They declared that their dispatches were being delayed or absolutely suppressed.

The two officials answered that during fusillades on Wednesday and Thursday of last week bullets cut and injured eighteen overhead wire systems, and that this was responsible for any delays that have occurred. They declared that if the censorship was still in operation, it was due to the fact that some correspondents had misrepresented last week's demonstrations by saying they were in favor of the former German Emperor. This was declared to be untrue. The two Ministers, however, promised to remove all censorship restrictions. Some correspondents have left Athens and others intend to take the same course if conditions do not improve.

Principal interest centres at present in the question of whether Great Britain will continue her financial support of Greece. It is charged that the Venizelists left the Treasury empty and that the British have refused to pay the expenses of the Greek army in Asia Minor, claiming that bills presented were irregular.

Assertions are made that members of the Venizelist Government carried off or destroyed documents belonging to several Ministries and that two valises full of papers were burned near the Temple of Jupiter. It is also declared the Venizelist Ministers left suddenly, without informing their successors of the state of business in their departments.

American Princess to Join Husband.

ROME, Nov. 24.—Princess Christopher of Greece, formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds of New York, today received dispatches from Athens saying the reception of her husband and Prince Andreas at Piraeus and at Athens surpassed all expectations. Their welcome, the dispatches declares, constituted a triumph unprecedented even in the history of ancient Greece. The people are said to have wept with emotion.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The French Foreign Office has been informed that the Greek plebiscite ballot upon the question of the return of ex-King Constantine to the throne, to be cast Dec. 5, will also contain a clause giving the voters the opportunity to declare whether they desire the return of former Premier Venizelos to Greece.

The Foreign Office expressed its opinion today that in view of the fact that Venizelos no longer holds any official position this proviso is merely a subterfuge by his opponents, as Venizelos has never been denied the privilege of residence in Greece as a private citizen, he having left only because his life was threatened.

PREMIERS MEET SUNDAY TO DISCUSS GREECE

French Fear That Athens Parliament Will Ratify Sevres Treaty Before That Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The meeting of the French and British Premiers to discuss the Greco-Turkish situation is now announced to be held on Sunday in England. It is expected that M. Berthelot, permanent Secretary of the French Foreign Office, will go to London on Thursday to arrange the preliminaries for the meeting.

As the situation stands today, the French have two reasons for dissatisfaction in this matter. First, as the Temps points out, the Premiers' meeting will take place in all probability after the new Greek Parliament ratifies the Treaty of Sèvres, which it is expected to do on Thursday. This ratification will provide an additional obstacle to the French project of revising that treaty in favor of the Turkish Nationalists at Greek expense.

As the anti-Venizelist Chamber has not ratified the treaty so far, the French can find justification for their theory that the defeat of the pro-Ally Minister, to whom Greece owed her new territories extending right across Asia Minor and through Thrace, almost to the gates of Constantinople, implied Greek rejection of Venizelos's expansionist policy. Accordingly, as the Temps states tonight, France is left "with her hands free" to remodel the Turkish treaty as she wishes.

The second French cause of dissatisfaction is that reports from England indicate that Lloyd George is disinclined to look favorably on the French plan of treating with the Nationalists at present. The French believe that England would be willing to allow Constantine—or at least his eldest son—to receive the territorial heritage of Venizelos provided that he shows the same readiness as the ex-Premier to follow British guidance.

A crumb of comfort eagerly seized by the French press is the fact that the Greek plebiscite to choose a King has been postponed until Dec. 5. The Temps and the Journal des Débats unite in recommending that the Allies lose no time in making known their veto against Constantine or his eldest son. The Temps's anxiety to support the French case goes so far as the suggestion that if either of the two evicted royalties be allowed to ascend the Greek throne it would be a most dangerous precedent for the return of the Hohenzollerns to Germany.

The fact of the matter is that the French want the Greek dynastic question and the problem of Asia Minor settled in a hurry. They fear that Britain prefers to "wait and see." They fear, too, that after waiting Britain may be disinclined to agree with them. Finally, they have an uneasy feeling that Viviani's strategem at Geneva may not prove so ingenious after all. Liberté says that the Geneva incident merely advertised Franco-British divergence to the world.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Daily Mail publishes details of ex-Empress Eugénie's will. Her net personalty in Great Britain is valued at £221,622. It is understood that her total estate is valued at considerably more than £2,000,000.

To Colonel Sir John Burgoyne, who helped Eugénie to escape from France, bringing her to England in his yacht, she bequeathed an extremely valuable head by Greuze, the famous French portrait painter, "in remembrance of the chivalrous way in which he came to my assistance on Sept. 6, 1870."

The Daily Mail says that it would appear as if in her declining days the ex-Empress was anxious to carry her own romantic history of early glory and late sadness to the grave. She states that she has never written any memoirs and asks her executors to prosecute the authors of any memoirs which may be published in her name after her death.

How dear to her was the memory of the birthplace of the founder of the Napoleonic dynasty may be seen by the fact that to the town of Ajaccio, Corsica, she has left 50,000 francs for charitable works. Her furs, laces and cashmeres are to be divided among three nieces. Her property in Italy is bequeathed to Prince Louis Napoleon, infant son of Prince Napoleon and Princess Clementine of Belgium, for life and is subject to certain annuities.

There are a number of charitable bequests, notably 35,000 francs to a British society to be chosen by the executors for men blinded in the war and 20,000 francs each to the French Hospital in London and Queen Mary's Auxiliary Hospital at Roehampton. The ex-Empress left 100,000 francs for the restoration of Rheims Cathedral.

As her residuary legatees, the ex-Empress has appointed Prince Victor Napoleon, head of the Bonaparte family, the Duke of Berwick and Alba and the Duchess of Galisteo and Tamames, and directs that her personal fortune, except Farnborough Hall, her Hampshire estates and her property in Spain, shall be divided equally among them. The sum of £4,000 is left to increase the endowment of the chapel and crypt at Farnborough, where she was recently buried.

Many pensions given formerly by the ex-Empress to old friends and retainers are confirmed, while further pensions as well as a number of legacies are bequeathed to servants. When these pensions come to an end, the capital sum in France upon which they are charged is to go to her godchild, Princess Marie Clotilde, daughter of Prince Napoleon and Princess Clementine.

Nationalist Chief Says He Is Not Hostile to Constantinople Government, but to Allies.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 23 (Associated Press).—An agreement entered into by the Russian Bolsheviki and the Turkish Nationalist forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, according to private information received here today, embraces the following points:

1. Assurance of the territorial integrity of Turkey and restoration of Turkish administration in regions entirely inhabited by Turks.

2. Turkish control to be established in the new States of Arabia and Syria.

3. Facilities to be accorded Russian delegates with a view to the development of Communism in Turkey.

4. Russia and Turkey agree to "liberate Moslem countries, such as India, Algeria, Egypt, Morocco and Tunisia from foreign yoke" and grant them independence.

5. Russia recognizes the independence of the Moslem States in her territory and guarantees their integrity.

6. Russia agrees to grant financial and material aid to Turkey.

7. Russia agrees to dispatch two army corps, followed by more if necessary.

8. Hostilities may be continued against the Entente without previous reference to the National Councils of both countries.

An emissary lately sent by the Turkish Government to Turkish Nationalist headquarters in Angora returned here today bearing a message from Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, to the effect that the Nationalists do not entertain hostility toward the present Turkish Government, whose patriotism they highly appreciate. The main concern of the Nationalists, the message said, were the Allies, with whom the Nationalists virtually are in a state of war.

Mustapha Kemal reiterated the determination of Anatolia to continue the struggle against the Allies and the "shameful Sèvres treaty," which, he declared, was despoiling Turkey of national territories and was not recognized by Anatolia.

The belief is gaining ground in official circles here that the defection of Greece is likely to entail modification of the treaty of Sèvres. Three hundred Greeks, expelled from Anatolia by a Nationalist decree, arrived here today. They declared they had been robbed of all their belongings, which were confiscated by the Nationalists.

It is reported from a Turkish source that Erivan, capital of Armenia, has been entered by the Turkish Nationalist forces.

Cable advices to Near East Relief headquarters in New York on Nov. 15 announced that Erivan had been evacuated by the Armenian army, its ammunition having been exhausted.

Remnants Enter Poland, Are Disarmed—Semenoff Going to Japan.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The last remnants of the troops of General Petlura, the Ukrainian leader, have crossed the Ukrainian frontier into Poland and have been disarmed by Polish troops, according to Tuesday's official statement from the Russian Soviet War Office, received from Moscow by wireless today.

"Previously, in the direction of Volochysk," adds the statement, "our troops decisively attacked Petlura's rear guard, defeated it and captured Volochysk. We took fourteen guns and many prisoners."

TOKIO, Nov. 24.—General Semenoff, leader of anti-Bolshevist forces east of Lake Baikal, Siberia, is coming to Japan, it is said in press dispatches. Assertions are made that his forces are disbanding.

Lithuanian Government Advised of Their Intention.

KOVNO, Lithuania, Nov. 23.—The Soviet representative in Alexandrovsk has informed the Lithuanian Government that the Bolshevist forces will be obliged again to occupy Vilna, according to advices received from Alexandrovsk.

Vilna was occupied by General Zeligouski about the middle of October as a protest against the agreement reached between Lithuania and Poland. His force is said to comprise both Polish and Lithuanians.

FRENCH CASE TESTS DOCTOR'S LIABILITY

PHYSICIANS FAIL TO AGREE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Two hundred thousand francs damages, to be paid to some war charity, have been asked by the prosecution in civil proceedings against a French Doctor at Nimes, whose two patients, sisters, named Arnaud, died as a result, it is alleged, of his carelessness. As usual in the French courts the civil suit brought by the parents and the graver charge by the public prosecutor, of homicide by neglect and professional incapacity, are being tried at the same time.

As the trial proceeds an even wider interest is being taken in it than was at first the case. It is felt that the whole medical profession has its position at stake. If the court returns a verdict against the doctor this may result in legal inquiries into the capacity and treatment of any doctor who fails at any time to pull a patient through an illness.

As to the case in question the doctors themselves seem to disagree. Dr. Dervieux, the medical lawyer who was selected to draw up the report on the case, yesterday submitted in court conclusions wholly condemnatory of Dr. Mazel, the defendant. The death of the two girls, he said in his report, followed a general infection which originated in injections by a needle which was surgically unclean. It was not, he repeated, from the malady from which they were suffering that they died, but from septic poisoning. As the nurse who gave the treatment was chosen by Dr. Mazel, Dr. Dervieux claimed that he must take the responsibility for her utter incompetence, which some witnesses for the prosecution declare went so far that she never sterilized the needle for the injections and used the same needle on both patients.

Another doctor, Simonnot, who had operated on the two girls in the last stages of their illness declared that he had never noticed any infection.

Dr. Merlet who had also seen the girls during their illness declared that it was not Dr. Mazel who had killed the two girls but the serum which had been used.

The charge on the indictment that Dr. Mazel had modified the treatment laid down by Professor Grasset was answered by yet another doctor who declared that it was the right of the doctor to modify the treatment according to the circumstances of the patient. Other doctors testified to the skill and repute of Dr. Mazel and combated the report drawn up by the experts.

One great speech marked the day's proceedings. The parents of the dead girls have employed Henri Robert, one of the most eloquent members of the Paris bar and before the court, packed with friends and enemies of the accused doctor, he built up a case that even a doctor was not above the law. He claimed that damages to the extent demanded should be paid by the doctor to the family and they had the right to donate the money to any war work they wished as a memorial to the dead girls.

SOVIET PLANS REVOLT HERE

Estimates 5,000,000 Persons Will Be Unemployed by End of Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Russian Soviet authorities estimate that the unemployed in this country will number 5,000,000 by the end of the year, and two representatives of the Third Internationale have been sent to organize Soviets here, according to official advices from Moscow.

The representatives of the Third Internationale plan to arrive in the United States in December, it was said, and propose to form committees of the unemployed in co-operation with the Communist Party, establishing Soviets of each trade. Their mission, the advices stated, is to unite the revolutionary movement in America into one fighting body to bring about an armed revolution.

Coming of the Soviet representatives, the advices declared, is in accord with resolutions adopted at the last convention of the Third Internationale in Moscow, which provided for Internationale representatives in every country of Europe and America.

While Government officials discounted the Internationale's estimate of the unemployment in this country, every precaution is being taken to keep the Soviet organizers from entering the United States.

TWO ARRESTS MADE IN PEIRCE MURDER

Man and Woman Held in Wheeling Assert Killing Was Done by Two Strangers.

MAN ADMITS THEY SAW IT

Their Stories, the Police Say, Disagree in Details—Blood-stained Clothes Found.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 24.—Peter D. Treadway and Marie Williams, giving their home addresses as Philadelphia, arrested here today in connection with the killing last Saturday night or early Sunday morning of Henry T. Peirce at Philadelphia, told the police, according to a statement given out at headquarters, that Peirce was killed by two unknown strangers who escaped in the victim's automobile, afterr forcing Treadway and the Williams woman to accompany them at the point of a revolver.

The two were examined by the police separately, it is said. Treadway, say the police, admitted witnessing the killing of Peirce, adding that he and his woman companion were in the room at the time. The woman, however, the police assert, denied that she was present when Peirce was slain.

According to James Mulgrave and Harry Heanley, who were instrumental in making the arrests, the two prisoners have expressed a willingness to accompany them to Philadelphia tomorrow morning without extradition papers.

After the arrest of Treadway and the woman today the police say they recovered, from a local pawnshop, a suit of clothes soiled with blood-stains, which they say had been pledged by the prisoners. In a valise in Treadway's possession, the police declare, they also found a bloodstained sweater.

Party a "Drunken Revel."

According to Treadway's version of the killing of Peirce, as related by the two detectives and other police officials who took part in the examination of the prisoners, he met Peirce on the street some time Saturday evening and the latter asked him to "find two girls for a party." He went about among his acquaintances, he said, and met the Williams woman and a "girl friend." The three went to Peirce's apartment, he added, where the quartet "drank heavily." Peirce, according to the statement of the police quoting Treadway, consumed a great quantity of liquor and as the night wore on the "party" developed into a "drunken revel."

At about midnight, according to Treadway, "two strangers" entered the apartmenot and "ordered the members of the party to hand over their money." Peirce, he added, was the only person to resist the intruders and was struck down. In the excitement "the other girl" escaped and nothing more was seen of her. The intruders, after accomplishing the slaying of Peirce, said Treadway, then turned on the gas and drove him and the Williams woman from the place and forced them to board the automobile which stood at the curb.

The statement of the Williams woman, say the police, disagreed in some important details with that made by Treadway, the most notable departure being her denial that she was in the room with Peirce at the time he was slain.

Treadway told the police that his last address was 1,208 Spruce Street, Philadelphia. He said that he had managed a rooming house at one time at 1,625 Arch Street, and that he had resided for some time at 1,625 Parke Street.

The woman declined to give her latest address, but said that she had been in Philadelphia for seven months. Prior to this she said, she took part in a burlesque show in New York. She said her stage name was "Boots."

Tells of Trip to Wheeling.

Detailing their automobile trip to Wheeling from Philadelphia, Treadway said they passed through Cumberland, Md., traveling over the National Pike. They made only one stop for gasoline between Cumberland and this city, he added, arriving here at 6 P. M. Monday.

A statement, said by police officials to have been made to them by Treadway, was issued by the Safety Department tonight. It follows:

"I knew Marie Williams for about eight months. I picked her up on the Parkway one day and we became fast friends. Peirce I had known about two weeks. On Saturday last I met him on the street. He was sitting in his car. It was evident that he had been drinking hard, so asked me to get two 'Janes' and he would give a party at his apartment over his offices.

"I got my girl and picked up another on the street. We went to his apartment. Peirce continued drinking heavily, but I did not drink much. Shortly after midnight two men entered the apartment and held up the party. Peirce resisted, and they struck him down with a wrench. I don't think he was killed instantly. They then turned on the gas. The other girl in the meantime 'beat it.'

"After the men had gone through Peirce they forced Marie and I to walk down the stairs to the front of the building, where Peirce's car stood. They then compelled us to enter it and forced me to drive. From Philadelphia to Wheeling I drove most of the way, while one of the men, who was called Smith by his companion, sat at the wheel for a time. Arriving in Wheeling, they abandoned the car and disappeared. I drove to the garage."

The police this morning made more positive the identification of Peirce's automobile which had been left at a Wheeling garage. Under the cushion of the driver's seat an envelope addressed to "Mr. Henry T. Peirce, Fort Washington, Pa." was found, containing a statement for $22 worth of merchandise ordered by the William H. Moon Company of Morrisville, Pa. The statement was dated July 21, 1920.

Philadelphia Sees Mystery Solved.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Philadelphia authorities declared tonight that with the arrest in Wheeling, W. Va., of Peter D. Treadway and Marie Williams the mystery surrounding the death of Henry T. Peirce, manufacturer's agent, who was found beaten to death last Monday in the rear of his offices here, virtually has been solved. City detectives said they felt confident the prisoners could furnish the details necessary completely to clear up the mystery.

The connection of Treadway and his woman companion with the case became known to the local police yesterday, when two men acquaintances told them they had seen the couple with Peirce in his automobile Saturday night.

Treadway came to this city from Oklahoma City several years ago and acquired some reputation here as an amateur boxer under the name of "Young West." He also has a police record here, having been arrested a number of times on charges of theft. Not much is known of his companion. The couple, according to the detectives, were known at the house where they had apartments as "Mr. and Mrs. West."

The police said tonight they felt confident that robbery was the motive for the slaying of Peirce. When his body was found his pockets were turned inside out and several diamonds he was known to have had were missing. It has also been established, according to the police, that he carried a substantial sum of money the night he was killed. His automobile, which had been left standing in front of the building, was also missing.

It was this car of peculiar design that led to the arrest of Treadway and Marie Williams in Wheeling. The machine was left at a garage in that city for repairs and the owner of the place recognized it by newspaper descriptions. The license number confirmed his suspicions. Local detectives were sent immediately to Wheeling and the apprehension of the couple quickly followed.

Constantine Defies France, Buys Trunks for His Trip

GENEVA, Nov. 24.—It is reported from Lucerne that Constantine, when he read this morning the statements made by Premier Leygues in the Chamber of Deputies concerning himself, became angry and repeated that France had nothing to do with the internal affairs of Greece. His recall, he said, depended entirely upon the Greek people. He regretted the postponement of the plébiscite as he wanted the affair settled as soon as possible.

Constantine seems certain of returning to Greece with his family as yesterday he bought six large trunks. A dispatch states that Constantine and Sophia have received such reassuring news during the last forty-eight hours concerning the possible result of the plebiscite they have begun packing, preparing to return to Greece via Italy. Constantine is in constant communication with Premier Rhallis.

ARMED MEN STOP CABLE WORKMEN

BAR CONNECTION AT MIAMI

Attempt Was Said to Be Made to Complete the Line to Barbados.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 24.—An armed force from a navy submarine chaser was still standing guard tonight over a Western Union Telegraph Company cable barge in Biscayne Bay here to prevent connecting of the shore ends of a submarine cable, work on which was interrupted by the Government craft during the day.

The cable was laid to connect Miami with Miami Beach, and passed under water at the opening in the new causeway. The section of cable for this purpose has been stored aboard the barge since the company's cable work was first interrupted by direction from Washington several months ago. The Government contests the company's right to land the cable recently laid from Barbados. The workmen went aboard this morning on orders from the New York office of the telegraph company to connect the cable ends immediately, it was said, but the sub-chaser took charge of the situation before splicing actually had begun.

Shortly before 10 o'clock a force of fifteen men, including nine negroes, went out to a barge with the supposed intention of connecting the cable where work had ceased. A few moments later the submarine chaser came swinging alongside the barge, tied up to it, and a crew of armed sailors headed by the commander went aboard, lining up the negroes and other Western Union employes on the barge, where they were still under guard at noon.

The cable was laid across the causeway several months ago, and all that remains to be done is to make the connections under the two causeway drawbridges. The work could have been finished in three hours, it is said, if there had been no interruption by the naval force.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Counsel for the Western Union Telegraph Company sought an immediate injunction against Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court following interruption of the company's cable connecting operations at Miami, Fla. Complaint was made to the court that the naval authorities had taken action despite the fact that the Secretary was called upon by the Court last Monday to show cause why a restraining order against interference with the Miami-Miami Beach cable line should not issue.

Representatives of the Secretary assured the Court that an order to tear up the cable had been countermanded and that the present status would be maintained until the injunction hearing had been held next Friday. The company's application for an immediate injunction was thereupon withdrawn.

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, refused to comment last night on the action of the Government in stopping the work of connecting the shore ends of a cable at Miami.

"I don't think it would be advisable to say anything at this time," said Mr. Carlton. "We are seeking an injunction to enjoin the Government from interfering with the work, the application for which will be heard Friday at Washington."

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—Thanks to his wife's threats and supplications, Albert Boni, New York publisher, who went to Moscow for the purpose of buying manuscripts, was released from prison and arrived in Berlin this morning. Boni was accused of being an American spy working for Colonel Davis, heading the American Mission in Berlin.

Brought before the inquisition in Moscow, Boni admitted promising Colonel Davis that he would send specimens of counterfeit American dollar notes supposed to be in circulation in Esthonia. Thereupon he was thrown into prison. His wife, who came from New York with Mr. Boni, went from Berlin to Reval a month ago, where she worked for her husband's release. Finally his Bolshevist captors freed him, telling him his release was due entirely to his wife's persistence and threats sent to the Russian embassy at Reval.

Boni declares that Mrs. Harrison, representative of the Associated Press and Mrs. Stan Harding, the New York World correspondent, are still imprisoned.

PRESIDENT ORDERS VON RINTELEN FREED

CONVICTED THREE TIMES

MUST GIVE $5,000 BOND

Will Be Released From Atlanta Penitentiary When Commutation Papers Are Received.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson has commuted the sentence of Franz von Rintelen, a German convicted of wartime conspiracy, on condition that he leave the United States before next Jan. 1.

Von Rintelen, a former captain in the German Navy, was convicted three times and received sentences aggregating four years and two months. His first conviction was in May, 1917, on a charge of having conspired with David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," and others to disrupt munitions traffic between the United States and the Allies. He later pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy in the fraudulent obtaining of a passport, and in February, 1918, he was convicted of conspiracy to destroy food and munition ships of the Allies by placing "fire bombs" in their cargoes.

The former German officer served his first sentence of one year in a New Jersey penitentiary and then was transferred to the Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., to serve the other two sentences, aggregating three years and two months.

Under the terms of the commutation of sentence granted by the President, von Rintelen is to give a bond of $5,000 that he will leave the country by Jan. 1.

ATLANTA, Nov. 24.—Franz von Rintelen, former officer in the German Navy, will be released from the Atlanta Penitentiary whenever the documents arrive showing the commutation of sentence, granted by President Wilson, Warden Zerbst said tonight. It had been expected that the formal notice of commutation, granted on the prisoner's making a bond of $5,000 to leave the country by Jan. 1, would be received today, and he had planned to leave for New York tonight en route to Germany, but the notice did not come in time to permit him to carry out that plan.

The former German officer is understood to be interested in reconstruction work planned in Germany by a banking institution.

Chief among the mysteries that cloaked Captain Franz von Rintelen while he was operating here was his identity and origin. A man of many aliases, there was one report about him that was never really disproved, and that was that he was kin to the Kaiser.

This story came out early in the war, when the dapper young German "banker" was imprisoned in the Tower of London. The report was that he was Duke Adolph of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and thus of Hohenzollern royal blood. Later, when he was tried in the United States, the relationship was described as of a much closer character and as one which Berlin had not officially recognized.

Rintelen came to this country first in 1907, when he was apprenticed to study American methods. In January,

CALDER PERSISTS IN COAL CONTROL

THEY HAVE 10 DAYS MORE

Senator Calls Federal Action Consumers' Sole Hope for Permanent Relief.

Senator William M. Calder, Chairman of the United States Senate Reconstruction Committee, said yesterday that the threat made three weeks ago to introduce a bill at the coming session of Congress for a rigid and complete Federal control of the coal industry still held good because the coal operators had failed to reduce prices adequately and to deal satisfactorily with the problems of speculation, profiteering and inequitable distribution.

Senator Calder spoke particularly of soft coal. He has for three weeks been holding hearings in nearly all parts of the country, he said, and so was not thoroughly familiar with the anthracite situation, which is of great importance in New York State only. It is understood, however, that any radical coal control bill wold cover the anthracite industry.

Senator Calder shied at the word "nationalization," because of its implications of confiscation and Sovietism, but described the contemplated plan for dealing Federally with coal, as including the supervision of coal mining, transportation and delivery and the fixing of prices. He would not go further into details because he had not consulted recently with the other members of the Reconstruction Committee.

Coal Men Have 10 Days to Act.

The coal operators still have ten days' grace in which to show what they can do by way of solving their own problems. During the three weeks following the joint warning issued by Senators Calder and Edge, the situation has shown little change for the better, Senator Calder said, and unless it does the proposed action will be taken.

Senator Calder said that the housing problem was extremely serious in every part of the country, and presented a curious economic situation, because there was an enormous demand for housing, an unlimited supply of building materials, plenty of transportation at present, but nevertheless stagnation existed in the industry, because of the high building material prices and their stubborn resistance to the general downward trend of prices.

Out in Denver, witnesses came across the mountains and deserts, from remote places in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, New Mexico and Arizona to complain of the crowding and hard living conditions due to the housing shortage and staggering prices for building materials. Senator Calder advocated an amendment to the Federal Reserve act to make more money directly available to finance housing and for an improvement of local banking conditions in that territory to provide funds for home buildings. The committee found no evidence of Brindellism.

Says Public Expects Federal Aid.

"There was an insistent demand everywhere we went that the Government must do something to prevent a repetition of the coal situation during the last year," said the Senator.

"The soft coal situation is better in spots. We found in some of the Southern States that the consumers were being compelled to pay twice the original price. We held a hearing on Monday at Birmingham, Ala., where the Governor has apointed a Coal Administrator and Alabama today is operating its coal distribution under control of the State Government. While the situation there was not ideal, nevertheless under State supervision conditions had vastly improved.

"Wherever we went throughout the country, we found a strong response to the stand taken by Senator Edge and myself on the coal question. The country is aroused on the subject."

Senator Calder was asked if the action of the soft coal operators in clearing out speculators and "fly-by-nights" in that industry gave any insurance that speculators would stay out of the industry next year and thereafter.

"No, Sir; it does not," he replied He said that measures of reform adopted by the coal operators, while more or less effective this year, did not offer a means of prevention of a future coal famine and another outbreak of profiteering. Senator Calder said that nothing suggested gave promise of permanent relief to the coal consumer except Government control.

STABILIZING BOARD ISSUES COAL PROGRAM

The Coal Stabilization Committee organized by Herbert Hoover, as President of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, made public yesterday the following conclusions as to the remedies required to stabilize the soft coal industry:

That the bituminous industry, by the nature of its organization, functions economically in a too inefficient manner. Employment in the industry averages 220 days per annum, with a minimum district average of less than 200. Thus a labor staff and capital investment of fully 30 per cent. more is required than would otherwise be necessary. From this flows a high daily wage, a considerable portion of the just complaints of labor and a higher cost of coal to the consumer.

Intermittency in seasonal demand.

Irregularity of car supplies.

Lack of storage facilities and incentive for their use.

The cure lies in:

The co-operation of railroads in the establishment of seasonal differentials in rates that will induce Summer demand.

A lower selling price in dull seasons, made possible by differentials in profits, freight rates and wages.

A recognition by the larger consumers, such as Federal, State and municipal institutions, railroads, public utilities and industrial plants that not only continuity of operations, but also the safety of the public, demands that they provide adequate storage to be replenished in the dull seasons.

Such storage is feasible and can be made financially remunerative by differential rates and prices. Public safety demands the installation of storage facilities at the place of consumption.

No adequate solution can be found except through organized co-operation of the operators, labor, railroads and large consumers. Under existing laws as to combinations such co-operation cannot be carried on. Therefore, we believe that some Federal legislation is necessary permitting such co-operation under competent Government authority.

The committee announced that Senator Calder, before his return to New York, had wired the following comment on this program:

"Reports of your committee read with interest. Approve steps for increased coal storage, for early seasonal movement of coal, for continuity of mine operation for economic consumption, especially through electrification. Suggest avoidance of priority orders or the seeking of any special privileges from the carriers by the coal industry and suggest the importance of making contracts inviolate."

The committee has placed its service at the call of Senator Calder's committee.

CHICAGOAN ADMITS NEW YORK LEADS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Oscar E. Hewitt, a staff correspondent of The Chicago Tribune, was sent recently to New York to make comparison between the two cities and tell which was the superior and why. Mr. Hewitt, whose first article is printed today, votes for New York, says so emphatically and further intimates that the evidence in New York's favor is overwhelming. He says:

"To a partisan Chicagoan wandering around the five boroughs for two weeks comes the disagreeable and ugly impression that Chicago is not in New York's class. Chicago is far behind, and the space between the two is fast increasing, because Chicago's pace is slower in municipal construction.

"In comparison with New York, Chicago is a jay town. It has not taken advantage of its opportunities. Its natural endowments surpass New York's. It has a hinterland so far eclipsing New York's that a contrast need not be presented. Chicago is the big city of the Mississippi Valley, the largest fertile field of earth.

"To an outsider New York's largest natural asset seems its suitable location on the ocean. Of course not that alone would make a city. Hampton Roads has been repeatedly asserted by experts to be the best natural harbor on the Atlantic Coast, yet Norfolk is still a mere village and Newport News is just the end of the railroad.

"The conclusion is that New York has erected a city. It has provided facilities, extended advantages and offered opportunities which no other seaport of trade and commerce, built up, dug under, bridged over and has a municipality which attracts.

"Chicago boasts that it is the most typical city of America. It brags that it best illustrates the youth, vigor, hustle, rush and other vivid vital characteristics of the country.

"It has built a harbor and spent on it $44 where Chicago has spent $1. It has invested in subways more than ten times as much as Chicago has available for that purpose. On charities, hospitals and correction New York has invested ten times as much as Chicago. It has duplicated that performance on libraries. The same can be said for the expenditures for parks and other recreational facilities. Its water plant is worth seven times that of Chicago. Still other contrasts of like character are at hand.

"These comparisons are not based upon New York figures nor upon Chicago figures. They were obtained from the Federal Government in Washington, so that the data is as comparable as the Government agents can make it."

HOPPE NOW OFFERS BELGIAN HANDICAP

ONE WEEK FOR ACCEPTANCE

In a formal statement given out yesterday afternoon, R. B. Benjamin, Willie Hoppe's business representative, announced that the champion will concede Edouard Horemans, the well-known Belgian player, a handicap of 400 points in a 2,000-point 18.2 balkline billiard match providing Horemans covers within one week the $1,000 forfeit which Hoppe has posted with the Brunswicks-Balke-Callender Co. to bind a match. The announcement was received in billiard circles in this city like the bursting of a bomb. There had been no public intimation that such action was contemplated by Hoppe and his manager in their efforts to compel Horemans definitely to agree to play the champion. The statement follows:

"I have posted $1,000 with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. to bind a match between Willie Hoppe and Edouard Horemans, and if Horemans or his representatives will cover that amount within a week Hoppe will agree to play the Belgian at any time convenient to him and will concede him a handicap of 400 points in a 2,000-point match. In other words, Hoppe will play 2,000 points against Horeman's 1,600.

"To take advantage of this offer of a handicap of 400 points Horemans must cover the thousand dollars within a week. If he does not make some definite move toward arranging a match with Hoppe by that time we shall take it for granted that he is not particularly anxious to play Willie and will act accordingly. As I understand it, Horemans came to this country for the express purpose of playing Hoppe. Such being the case, I think Horemans owes it to the public to make definite arrangements for a match without further delay. It would prove to the public his real intentions in coming to the United States."

Benjamin said that he was issuing the statement in the form of an ultimatum to Horemans, and was in response to the announcement made by the Belgian on Monday afternoon to the effect that he preferred playing the other leading American players and prove his right to a match with Hoppe before tackling the champion. At that time Horemans said he thought a date in February or March would be the most acceptable time for such a meeting.

Hoppe Will Play Any Time.

Although Hoppe, when he publicly challenged Horemans at the luncheon which was tendered the Belgian last Friday, distinctly stipulated that the match be played before the end of December, in Benjamin's statement issued yesterday it is set forth that Hoppe will play his rival from overseas in February or March or at any other time convenient to him.

"The fact that we are willing to play Horemans at any time he wants to play should remove the last obstacle in the way of his signing articles for a match without delay," said Benjamin in explaining his latest statement. "We have a tour arranged, but if Horemans will definitely close for a match we can rearrange or sacrifice some of the dates to accommodate him. Hoppe is absolutely sincere in his offer to concede him a handicap. We realize that 400 points is a tremendous advantage to offer a player of Horemans's apparent ability, but Willie is willing to try to give him that much if the Belgian will cover the amount we have posted.

"We were prompted to take this action by the attitude Horemans and his representatives have assumed. They issued a formal statement in which they declared that they felt Horemans owed it to the American public first to establish his right to play Hoppe before engaging the champion in a match for the world's balkline billiard title. His desire to engage other players before tackling Hoppe would not interfere with his posting a forfeit to meet Hoppe at a specified time, with the understanding that, should he be defeated, the Hoppe match would be off or deferred until some other time. In posting such a forfeit, or, rather, in covering the one which we have already posted, Horemans would show that he really intended to play the champion. It is the logical means to employ to show his good faith.

"Horemans has come to this country with a great reputation as a billiard player. The high runs and big averages he is credited with having made in matches in Belgium, Holland and France would indicate that he is a master of balkline play. In offering to give him such a big handicap in a 2,000-point match Hoppe realizes that he is assuming quite a task, but we are willing to take the chance in order to get Horemans to agree to a match. And I see no other way of getting him definitely to agree to play.

Wants Matters Settled.

"I invited Horemans's representatives to meet me this week and arrange a match. They have not done so and I am afraid they will not. We want to get this matter cleared up as soon as possible. I can see no reason why it should be necessary for it to hang fire. Let Horemans post his money and decide when he would like to play. We shall be ready to meet him.

"Horemans has said that he wants a long game; that he is accustomed to play long games; that short games are not a true test of ability. In offering to play him a 2,000-point match I think we are complying with his wishes in the matter. As is well known, our championship matches in the titular tournaments in this country are of only 400 points. But a long match is just as agreeable to us as a short one.

"It has always been the custom in billiards, as it is in all other professional sport, to post forfeits to bind a match. We are not asking anything unusual in insisting that Horemans cover our money. We are simply complying with a custom that has been in vogue for years. Posting forfeits makes the articles of agreement binding, and we want them to be binding."

Efforts to reach Edouard Horemans or his secretary, F. J. L. Derks, yesterday were futile, but Shepard Barclay, head of the Billiard Feature Service, which is handling Horemans's American tour, was communicated with and he stated that he was in a position to say for Horemans that the Belgian does not ask odds from any one; that he believes that he is the best player in the world, and simply wants time in which to become accustomed to the conditions which obtain in balkline play in this country and to become acclimated. "Horemans feels that he should demonstrate his ability and prove that he is entitled to a match with Hoppe before definitely arranging such a meeting," said Barclay. "Just as soon as he has done so he will sign to play Hoppe. No one is any more anxious for the match than Horemans."

Although Horemans could not be reached personally it is quite apparent from what Barclay said that there is little likelihood of the Belgian taking advantage of Hoppe's offer and accepting a 400-point handicap. It is evident that they will play on even terms or not at all. Horemans's advisers are thoroughly conversant with the fact that no championship could be at stake if either of the players was given a handicap, and if Horemans meets Hoppe he wants it to be for the world's championship.

Whether Horemans will see fit to cover Hoppe's $1,000 forfeit and set a tentative date for the match late in the Winter or early in the Spring, making such arrangements contingent upon his being able to defeat all of his opponents in the meantime, is problematical. It is expected that some formal reply will be made to this latest development by tomorrow.

The work of arranging the exhibition matches for Horemans in this vicinity is progressing with great dispatch. It is probable that he will play no less than eleven matches against his secretary, F. J. L. Derks, in Greater New York next week. Eight exhibitions have already been arranged for him and at least three more are expected to be clinched by tomorrow night.

Definite arrangements have been made for him to play at the following places: Maurice Daly's, Tuesday afternoon; Morningside Academy, Tuesday night; National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn, Wednesday afternoon; Union League Club, Wednesday night; Fourteenth Street Academy, supper hour on Wednesday; Joe Thum's, Thursday afternoon; John Doyle's, Friday afternoon, and the Strand Academy on Saturday afternoon.

Barclay explained that the idea in arranging these matches in this way is to give the fans in all parts of the Greater City an opportunity to see the Belgian in action and judge his playing ability for themselves.

DRISCOLL WINS AT SNOOKER

The last game in the third round of the snooker pool handicap tournament at John Doyle's Broadway Academy was played last night and resulted in Edward Driscoll entering for the semi-finals. Driscoll defeated Thomas Green by 65 to 57 by making a spectacular finish after a very poor beginning.

At the outset Green took a commanding lead and, scoring easily, while his opponent could do little with the balls, soon had the score standing 38 to 2 in his favor, and thus appeared to have the victory well in hand. However, with this long lead Green became careless, and, after missing several times, found his rival creeping up on him until, when it came to playing the color balls, but a few points separated the players. Driscoll had steadied himself in the meantime and, playing in good form, brought the game to a point where the black ball meant victory for the player who pocketed it. Green had a difficult shot at the ball, and, failing to put it in, left it where Driscoll dropped it out of sight and won the game.

Immediately after the game there was a draw for the semi-finals. The draw resulted in Harry Carter being paired to meet Bill Wathey and Charles Shongood to meet Driscoll. The winners of these matches will play off for the championship of the tournament.

In the pocket billiard tournament at the same academy last night Charles Le Huquet defeated John Meaney in one of the closest games of the tourney. The final score was 50 to 47. It was a nip and tuck struggle all the way, with the winner holding a slight advantage through the final frames.

HOPPE'S RIVALS COMING.

Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer are coming to New York to tackle Willie Hoppe in the final round of the national championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at the Hotel Astor on Dec. 6, 7 and 8, convinced that they have the best opportunity they ever had to strip the balkline king of the laurels he has toted around for a decade and a half.

For the last year Cochran and Schaefer have seriously applied themselves to conscientious practice and their form has materially benefited as a result. The averages they made in some of their games in the preliminary round of the tourney at San Francisco furnish convincing proof of the speed at which they are playing. In three 400-point matches Schaefer averaged 40 33 1-5 and 28 4-7. Cochran made averages of 33 1-3, 30 10-13 and 28 4-7. Made in championship matches against the leading players of the country, these figures bespeak volumes for the cue strength of the stars who are Hoppe's leading rivals for honors.

EASY WIN FOR GARDNER.

Defeats Saunders, 100 to 62, In Pocket Billiard Tourney.

Gus Gardner had little trouble in winning his match in the Interborough Pocket Billiard tournament at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night, when he defeated F. A. Saunders by a score of 100 to 62. Gardner had the better of the match from the start and was at no time in danger or hard pressed. For that reason the game lacked interest as it neared the ned with Gardner far out in front.

Gardner played his usual good game while Saunders could not settle down to smooth play. Gardner was leading by 58 to 21 at the end of the sixth frame. He played cautiously up to this point but with such an advantage he became careless and left openings which Saunders took advantage of to improve his score. Gardner made a high run of 21 while the best run for Saunders was one of ten points.

Robert Crespi and John Mills will meet tonight and on Friday Crespi and Hrud will meet in the final match of the tourney.

GREENLEAF IS CUE VICTOR.

Has No Trouble Defeating Stoutenburgh—Score, 750 to 364.

Ralph Greenleaf, the pocket billiard champion, proved an easy winner of his three-day exhibition match with Larry Stoutenburgh of Buffalo, which came to a close at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night. The total score at the end of six sessions, afternoon and evening, was, Greenleaf 750, and Stoutenburgh 364.

Greenleaf was master throughout and at the beginning of play yesterday afternoon the score stood 500 to 276. The champion defeated his opponent in the afternoon session by 125 to 44 and duplicated that score in the evening session. During the afternoon game he had a high run of 55 and ticked off 40 points in one run during the evening, while Stoutenburgh had runs of 30 and 20 and altogether played a game that would have won for him against almost any player but Greenleaf.

Garfunkel Defeats Sasaki.

Sam Garfunkel defeated K. Sasaki in the annual three-cushion billiard handicap tournament at Thum's academy last night and put himself within reach of the championship of the tournament. He won by a score of 35 to 25, the game going 93 innings with but one safety being called. Garfunkel has but one more game to play, that with Mannie Letzer, and should he win, these two players will be tied for the lead.

Otis Wins Fourth Straight.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Charles Otis of Brooklyn today won his fourth straight game in the preliminaries for the national three-cushion billiard championship, defeating Jesse Lean of Denver, 50 to 42, in 18 innings. Hugh Heal of Toledo won from Charles Morin of Chicago, 50 to 33, in 65 innings.

Youthful Pigskin Booters Weakened by Turkish Bath

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—The battle for the prep school football championship of Chicago between Schurz and Bowen High Schools was called off today by E. C. Delaporte, supervisor of high school athletics, because the boys on the two teams reduced their weight by Turkish baths in order not to exceed the scholastic weight rules.

"It appeared to me as though Bowen was weakened Saturday by quick reductions in flesh," said Delaporte. "I investigated and learned some of the lads, fearing they would be overweight, were taking Turkish baths. That practice is injurious to the health of the boys and is practically responsible for the closing of the season in a tie between the two schools."

FOOTBALL RIVALS WILL CLASH TODAY

New Yorkers who are sufficiently prosperous to have turkey for the holiday may pick the bird at leisure this afternoon without any need of hurrying away for a big football game. There is nothing on the gridiron card that will be fought within the limits of the greater city. There is plenty, however, in a football way to attract attention and several of the leading members of the intercollegiate group will bring their campaigns to a close today.

Standing out above all other contests in this section of the country is the game between Penn State and Pittsburgh, scheduled for Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, this afternoon. Here are two unbeaten elevens, each with championship aspirations, and on the outcome of the game this afternoon will depend the final ranking of the teams engaged. Each is coached by a master in football strategy, Glenn Warner being in charge of Pitt, while Hugo Bezdek is director of the Penn State eleven. A year ago Penn State defeated the Panthers in the holiday game by the score of 20 to 0 and it seems to be the impression in football circles that the Bezdek troupe is again to take the measure of the Warner students, though perhaps by a score not as impressive as that of a year ago.

One tie game is the only jarring note on the record of either Pitt or Penn State this year. The Panthers engaged in a 7-7 game with Syracuse early in the season and Bezdek's team had to be content with a similar score in the contest of a week ago Saturday with Lehigh. Taking Lafayette as a basis of comparison it might be argued that Pitt should win today, as the Panthers defeated Lafayette, which team decisively defeated Lehigh after the latter had played a tie game with Penn State. On the other hand, Bezdek's men made a more impressive showing against Pennsylvania than did Warner's men, and Penn State also has to its credit a victory over Dartmouth. On work done to date Penn State appears to be the stronger eleven.

Penn to Play Old Rivals.

While these two giants of the gridiron are battling in one section of Pennsylvania two other prominent members of the intercollegiate group will engage in their annual struggle in another part of the Keystone State. Franklin Field in Philadelphia will be the scene of the holiday game between Cornell and Pennsylvania and the Ithacans are favored to win. It has been a rare occurrence in the past for a Cornell eleven to win from Pennsylvania, but this year's showing of the two teams point to a triumph this afternoon for the Ithacans. Pennsylvania has shown unlooked-for power on occasion, most notably in the clash with Glenn Warner's Panthers, and followers of the team are hoping that Heisman's pupils will rise to their top form against Dobie's team today.

Still another gridiron conflict of some importance is to be waged on Pennsylvania soil. In the little town of Washington, Pa., the West Virginia Mountaineers will clash with the W. and J. team and a defeat for the home team is anticipated unless there is an upset in football form. West Virginia has not been as successful this year as in some recent campaigns but the same may be said of the Presidents, who were beaten by Carnegie Tech last week after successive defeats at the hands of Syracuse and Pitt. Injuries have crippled the Presidents considerably.

Fordham vs. Holy Cross.

Fordham, the last of the New York intercollegiate group to close its season, will meet the Holy Cross eleven this afternoon at Worcester and the outlook is not bright for a victory for the Bronx collegians. Holy Cross has been quite successful this season, having to her credit a victory over Syracuse, besides holding Harvard to a field goal and scoring fourteen points against Dartmouth, while losing to the New Hampshire eleven. Coach O'Donnell's charges appear to have more class than the New Yorkers and a victory by Fordham would be quite a surprise.

An intersectional game of some interest to the East will be played this afternoon in Detroit between Rutgers and the University of Detroit eleven. The contest shapes up as a victory for the Middle Western eleven. This will be the closing game for the Rutgers team, which has had the poorest season of any Rutgers eleven for several years.

Other games of teams in the Eastern section are: Dickinson vs. Bucknell at Williamsport, Pa.; Gettysburg vs. Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster, Pa.; Ursinus vs. Muhlenberg at Allentown, Pa.; Delaware vs. Penn Military at Chester, Pa.; Hobart vs. Rochester at Rochester, and Lebanon Valley vs. St. Bonaventure at Buffalo.

SCHOOLBOYS IN FINALS.

Local Football Teams to Clash Today for Championship.

The most important gridiron clash of the local scholastic season will be decided this afternoon when De Witt Clinton High School's Red and Black eleven engages High School of Commerce in their annual battle at South Field. The contest will determine the champions of the city, for both teams have scored over Bronx elevens, while the Commerce aggregation has outscored the Commercial High School team of Brooklyn. Because of the unusual interest manifested in this annual schoolboy fixture, a capacity crowd is expected to witness the game. Arrangements have been made accordingly by the officials of both schools.

Over in Brooklyn a decisive double-header will be held on Ebbets Field, in which the contending elevens will be Commercial and New Utrecht, and Manual Training and Boys' High School teams. The first game is scheduled for 1 o'clock, while Manual Training and Boys are expected to start play at 3 o'clock.

MOORE WINS AT CARROMS.

George Moore, former champion, again defeated Albert Cutler in the final block of their three-cushion exhibition match at the Strand Academy last night and emerged winner of the match by a total of 300 to 256. The match was played in six blocks of 50 points each, and Moore won the last four blocks, after having trailed Cutler through both sessions of the first day. The scores yesterday were 50 to 39 in the afternoon and 50 to 30 in the evening.

Cutler, who is a balk line player, made a remarkably good showing the first day, when he won the first two blocks, but, though he played a steady game throughout, Moore gradually overhauled him when once he became accustomed to the angles.

Lafayette in Holiday Run.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 24.—There will be no Thanksgiving holiday for the members of the Lafayette College cross country team. Tomorrow morning the team will compete in the annual Meadowbrook Club run in Philadelphia. Shortly after this race the men and Coach Harold Bruce will return here to rest for the annual cross country championship run of the Middle States Intercollegiate Association to be held at South Bethlehem on Saturday.

Indians Seek Training Camp.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 24.—Tris Speaker announced here today that he was looking for a new training spot for the Cleveland Indians for the Spring. He prefers Texas or Florida, he declared, and expects to close a deal before going to Chicago in December to attend the American League meeting.

OHIO STATE LIKELY TO PLAY ON COAST

Will Meet California on Pasadena Gridiron if Western Conference Permits.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 24.—Ohio State, undefeated football champions of the Western Conference, will probably play the University of California, undefeated champions of the Pacific Coast, on the gridiron at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day. This was learned here today following the receipt of a telegram from Howard J. Lucas, President of the Pacific Coast Alumni of Ohio State University.

The wire was addressed to L. W. St. John, Director of Athletics at the Buckeye School, and reads as follows: "Informal invitation goes to you tonight from Tournament of Roses Committee. Desire that you wire at once whether or not you accept. Formal invitation will follow the receipt of your acceptance."

A meeting of the Ohio State Athletic Board was held this afternoon and it voted to sanction the post-season game providing the formal invitation is received from Pasadena. Director of Athletics L. W. St. John wired this action on the part of the board to the Tournament of Roses Committee following the meeting.

The only barrier which now seems in the way of the game is the sanction of the Western Conference Athletic Committee. There is a conference rule limiting a football season to seven games. In case an extra game is sought the majority consent of the committee is required. Word was given out by an athletic official of Ohio State this afternoon that five of the ten Western Conference Committee members have already approved the extra game. The consent of one more university will be required in order to secure the majority vote which is necessary in compliance with conference rules. It is expected that the other vote of approval will be secured without any trouble. Professor Thomas E. French, head of the Athletic Board at Ohio State, is busy wiring the committee members of the other universities. He does not believe it will be necessary to call a meeting of the Western Conference Athletic Committee as he feels a majority approval can be secured by telegraph.

The University of California, champions of the Pacific Coast, have won eight games and lost none this season. They have been scored on in two games, one touchdown in each game. California has beaten the Oregon Aggies, Washington State, Utah, Nevada, St. Mary's, Olympic Club, Marines and Stanford.

NO PROHIBITORY RULE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Ohio State University will ask permission from Western Conference officials for its football eleven to meet the University of California at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day, "merely as a matter of courtesy, and there is no chance of the game being disapproved," Professor A. W. Small, University of Chicago representative on the Conference Faculty Board of Control, said tonight.

"There is no rule prohibiting such a game," said Professor Small. "About fifteen years ago the Conference Committee passed a resolution recommending that the Conference season close on the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day and disapproved post-season games. This rule was merely a recommendation, however, and is not prohibitory."

FORMAL INVITATION SENT.

Tournament of Roses Committee Telegraphs Ohio State.

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 24.—The football team of Ohio State University was formally invited today to represent the East in the annual East vs. West gridiron classic in Pasadena New Year's Day.

The expectation here is that the University of California eleven, which won the Pacific Coast championship last Saturday by defeating Stanford University 38 to 0, will represent the West. The invitation was sent by telegraph, it was announced by A. J. Bertonneau of the football committee of the Tournament of Roses Association which promotes the contest every year.

EX-NAVY COACH TO ASSIST.

Commander Ingram Will Help Drill California Eleven.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24.—Lieut.-Commander Jonas H. Ingram, football coach at the Annapolis Naval Academy from 1910 to 1912, has been engaged to assist in coaching the University of California team for the game California will play against an eastern eleven at Pasadena New Year's Day.

NAVY ELEVEN HAS FINAL HOME DRILL

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 24.—Practicing for the last time this season on the local grounds, the Navy football team, which will meet the Army eleven in New York next Saturday, had a long workout this afternoon before a big gathering of naval people. Coach Folwell carried the team through the full list of straight and advanced plays and then came the substitutions until every player who will have a chance to get into the final game was given some workout.

The line-up for the start of the Army game, as announced by coaches, will be: Parr and Captain Ewen, ends; Wiedorn and King, tackles; Wilkie and Moore, guards; Larsen, centre; Conroy, quarterback; Koehler and Hamilton, halfbacks; McKee, fullback. This combination averages 180 pounds.

Undoubtedly the Navy will play a fast game from the start, and make substitutions whenever a player lags. It is almost certain that the changed backfield, consisting of Rawlings, Noyes, Cruise and Watters will be in a good part of the game.

The other midshipmen, and members of the local contingment generally, will give the squad a big send-off tomorrow, at 2:30 P. M., when it starts for New York. The party will stop at the Hotel Commodore while in New York. It will be under the charge of Commander D. L. Howard, athletic officer, while Coach Folwell and Lieut. Commander C. K. Wright will have direct charge of the players. The assistant coaches with the party will be Ensigns Perry, Welchel, Scaffae, Butler, Clark and John G. Wilson.

It is believed here that the Navy has the better chance to win. The belief is based on the powerful line and well balanced backfield, with plenty of strong substitutes at both points. The team is well supplied with players powerful on the defense, and as well coached as any Navy team has ever been.

W. AND J. TEAM CRIPPLED.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 24.—The nineteenth football clash between Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia University, ancient rivals of the gridiron, on College Field tomorrow afternoon promises to be one of the most notable of the many gruelling combats staged between teams representing these institutions. While there is every chance that the gridiron will be slow on account of the recent and prevailing rains, yet there is every prospect that at game time tomorrow it will not be raining, in which event attendance records at College Field will be shattered.

The Mountaineers are in the pink of physical condition, having come through their recent games without mishap or injury to players. On the other hand, W. and J. will present a line-up that is far from being the strongest that the Presidents would be able to muster, were all their men in shape.

Eielson, of course, will not play, and McLaughlin, with a broken toe, is out of the game for good. Brenkert is still "toting" a broken hand, but will play. West has a bad leg. That is a rather poor condition for a high class backfield. Morrow will use Lawrence at quarterback in tomorrow's tilt, with Erickson and West at the halfback places, and Brenkert at fullback.

SCOVIL ELECTED CAPTAIN.

Tackle Is Named to Lead Columbia Football Team Next Season.

Francis K. Scovil, tackle on the Columbia 'Varsity elevens of the last two seasons, was yesterday elected captain of the team for 1921. All players who took part in a Columbia game during the recent campaign were eligible to vote and the election of Scovil was made virtually unanimous on the second ballot. Ballots had been cast for three other players on the first ballot.

Scovil is one of the best all-around athletes at Columbia. He was a member of the basket ball squad last year and he has been a crew man for the last two years, rowing No. 6 in the 'Varsity eight last Spring. The new captain is 20 years of age and a resident of Richmond Hill, L. I. He is a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and one of the most popular students at the Morningside Heights university.

COMPLETE TENNIS TEAM.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 24.—It has been decided that the fourth member of the Davis Cup team which is to play the American team for the international tennis trophy will be Major R. W. Heath.

DAVIDSON SQUASH VICTOR.

Defeats Ayers, 15-4, 15-9, and D. K. E. Club Beats Army and Navy, 7-0.

The D. K. E. Club squash tennis team won its first match in the Class B tournament of the Metropolitan League yesterday afternoon on its home court, defeating the Army and Navy Club by a score of 7 to 0. Four of the seven matches were defaulted. The Army and Navy Club has not yet been able to get its forces in working order, but expects to assemble a full team next week.

G. G. Davidson of the D. K. E. team won the only match actually played yesterday afternoon. He defeated T. H. Ayers without being greatly extended. The scores were 15—4, 15—9. F. Jenkins and W. W. Taylor had won their matches for D. K. E. the preceding day. The four D. K. E. men who won by virtue of defaults were K. N. Hawkes, E. L. Ward, H. B. Thorne and F. M. Whelan.

LEAGUE ASKS PROTECTION.

Florida West Coast Organization Releases Jackson and Williams.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Announcing that the St. Petersburg Club had released Joe Jackson and Lefty Williams, previously expelled from the Chicago White Sox, the Florida West Coast League applied to Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues for protection under a special dispensation. Jackson and Williams were involved in the 1919 world's series scandal and are now under indictment. The league opened Nov. 11 and will continue until Feb. 22.

The league also notified Secretary Farrell that it had rejected the services of Carl Cram of the Indianapolis Club of the American Association and Tim Muchison of the New Orleans Club, alleged contract jumpers.

Secretary Farrell withheld decision on the application, asking for further information regarding the league and its players.

Official to Fly to Game Between Western Elevens

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 24.—Dr. Joseph A. Reilley, of the Kansas City Athletic Club, who will be head linesman in the football game tomorrow between the University of Kansas and the University of Missouri, at Columbia, will journey to the game in an airplane.

Dr. Reilley said today he would go in a friend's plane. The fliers expect to return to Kansas City immediately after the game. Dr. Reilley added that he expects to be eating his evening meal in Kansas City while the crowds are still waiting to get out of Columbia.

WESTERN ELEVENS IN BATTLES TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Football elevens of the Middle West will close their 1920 season tomorrow with only three games of more than local interest scheduled. Nebraska will meet Washington State at Lincoln, Neb., in an intersectional clash which will furnish a comparison between the elevens of the Middle West and the Far West, while the Drake-Oklahoma and the Missouri-Kansas games will decide the championship in the Missouri Valley Conference, where Oklahoma leads with no defeats, but with a tie with the Kansas Aggies on its record.

Nebraska this year did not produce the supreme eleven which has characterized cornhusker teams of the past, but Coach Schulte has, nevertheless, turned out an aggregation which is considered at least on a par with the average Middle Western team. It lost, however, to Notre Dame, was tied by Kansas and was defeated by Penn State.

At St. Louis Washington University of St. Louis and St. Louis University meet in their annual battle.

ARMY HOLDS LAST DRILL ON PLAINS

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The Army eleven took its final workout on the Plains gridiron this afternoon. Except for a brief signal drill which will be staged here in the morning, and another one on the Polo Grounds Friday, the soldiers will get no more work in New York until they line up Saturday against the Navy.

The Varsity men, with two teams of substitutes, were drilled for an hour and a half. There was no scrimmaging, but the line men, in their special drill under the goal posts, dummy scrimmaged for twenty minutes.

Although no official announcement has been made as to how the soldiers will line up when they face the Middies, it is expected that the combination which was intact during the entire drill today will be chosen. The lineup was: Greene, centre; Clark and Breidster, guards; Davidson and Mulligan, tackles; Don Storck and White, ends; Wilhide, quarterback; Smythe, left halfback; Lawrence, right halfback, and French, fullback.

In the prolonged signal drill tonight the cadets worked smoothly. The going was still heavy, due to the recent rains.

The Soldiers ought to be good mud horses if on Saturday they are forced to play on an oozy field.

Both the Army and Navy teams will wear numbers on their jerseys during the game. The Army has been assigned the even numbers, while the Navy will wear the odd numbers. The Army squad, sixty strong, including all the substitutes and coaches, together with Trainer Tuthill and handlers, will leave for New York Friday morning. The corps of cadets will follow on Saturday morning.

Army folks saw a good omen in two incidents today. A flock of several hundred wild duck, flying low, passed over the gridiron while the Army men were practicing. The ducks were headed south. Superstitious onlookers said it presaged an Army victory. As further evidence, these same prophets pointed to the fact that the Runts beat the Flankers 6 to 0 today in their annual football game. The Runts are the little men of the corps, while the big fellows are termed the Flankers. Tradition has it, if the Runts win the Army wins. However, tradition was thrown for a loss last year, for although the Runts won, the Army did not.

Major Philip Hayes, Executive for Athletics at the Military Academy, returned home today after a trip to Cambridge and New Haven. Major Hayes undertook this trip in an effort to arrange football games for the Army next Fall with these two colleges.

Major Hayes states that while nothing definite has been arranged, the Army management has high hopes of landing both games next season. The elevens of both Harvard and Yale up to a few years ago were regular visitors at West Point, and a resumption of these relations would give great satisfaction to all Army men.

DARTMOUTH TO GET COMPLETE REPORT

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 24.—Arrangements have been made by the administration officials of Dartmouth College whereby a special wire from Seattle to Hanover will give play by play reports of the Green-Union of Washington football game Saturday. As this is the first time a Dartmouth team has ever engaged in an intersectional contest which required a trip across the continent, special interest has attached itself to the game, and as a result hundreds of undergraduates are expected to remain in town over Thanksgiving week-end to receive the reports.

With the Washington game the Green schedule of Fall athletics will be completed. On the reopening of college Monday practice will be begun for the basketball and hovkey teams. Although no coach has been obtained as yet for the ice seven, an announcement along this line is expected from the Athletic Council in the near future.

Dartmouth is a member of the recently formed Intercollegiate Hockey League, and in addition to the games with its rivals in that organization will make several New England trips as well as a possible jaunt into Canada.

In basketball the Green belongs to the league comprising Princeton, Columbia, Yale, Pennsylvania and Cornell, and Dartmouth has practically all of last year's varsity and freshmen teams eligible for competition. Coach Zahn will have a wealth of material from which to form a winning combination.

ALAN SWEDE IS CAPTAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 24.—Alan Swede of Norristown, Pa., was elected captain of Princeton's 1921 cross country team this evening. Swede prepared at Mercersburg Academy, where they broke the world's interscholastic record for the two-mile run outdoors and the one-mile run indoors. He is now a junior at Princeton. He lowered Princeton's two-mile record by ten seconds last Spring when he covered the distance in 9:30 1-3.

Dartmouth Arrives on Coast.

SEATTLE, Nov. 24.—Coach C. W. Spears and his Dartmouth football eleven, which will meet the University of Washington team in the new Washington University stadium Saturday, arrived here tonight. All the members of the team are in excellent condition, according to Spears.

All attendance records for the international six-day bicycle race at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory were broken last night, when the grind passed the halfway mark. A capacity gathering jammed and crammed inside the big drill shed and outside thousands of late comers were held in check by a cordon of policemen sent to the scene after the Fire Department representatives had ordered the doors of the big armory closed.

The turnout was the greatest manifestation of interest in the unsanctioned race to date. The crowd began to arrive early, and the result was a steady procession into the armory, which filled almost before the officials of the race realized it. The Fire Department officials quickly ordered the doors locked and barred and a corps of husky members of "the finest" were stationed in a square surrounding the entrance.

The policemen took up their position about two hours before the sprints, scheduled for 9:30 o'clock, and were still discouraging late arrivals who did not hold pasteboards when the dashes for points started inside.

Gain Eleven-Point Lead.

As a result of the afternoon series of five sprints the Jake Magin-Eddie Madden combination gained a lead of 11 points in the standing with the teams which are all even on actual miles and laps traversed. The New Jersey combination had a total of 146 points, while Alf Goullet and Freddy Hill were second, with 135 points. Willie Hanley and Willie Keller, the only other team to pass the century mark in points, were third, with 108 tallies. Charley Deruyter and Emil Aerts were fourth, with 90. Arthur Spencer and Frank Corry were fifth, with 89, and Ray Eaton and Harry Kaiser were sixth, with 83.

The other team totals were Alex McBeath and Cecil Walker, 77; Constante Girardingo and Carlo Oliveri, 73; Pete Drobach and Fred Weber, 63; Alphonse Spiessens and Marcel Buysse, 55; Marcel Dupuy and Marcel Godivier, 44; Joe Kopsky and Tom Bello, 28, and Lawrence Gaffney and Alphonse Verraes, 8.

Eddie Madden scored the only victory for his team in the opening dash of the matinee session when he showed the way to Spiessens, Drobach, Walker, Aerts and Goullet in a sizzling last lap dash. The second heat went to Girardingo with Deruyter second. Hill third, Magin fourth, Keller fifth and Eaton sixth.

Goullet Home in Front.

In the third heat Goullet poked his wheel home in front on the last lap, leading Madden by a scant margin. Hanley was third, Kaiser fourth, Aerts fifth and Spencer sixth.

The spectacular bid for the lead by Eaton on the bell lap of the fourth sprint brought victory to the young Newark rider by about half a wheel's length over Corry, who was a few inches in front of Jake Magin. Hill was fourth, Keller fifth and McBeath sixth. In the final sprint Kaiser registered the second victory for his team when he showed the way to Spencer, Drobach, Olfveri, Walker and Madden.

Goullet won the first sprint after a hard test with Madden. Corry was third, Keller fourth, Eaton fifth and Deruyter sixth. In the second heat Magin shoved his steel mount a scant wheel-length in front of Spencer, with Hanley third, Oliveri fourth, Hill fifth and Kaiser sixth. Buysse finished sixth, but was disqualified for foul riding and fined $10 in the bargain.

Eaton took the third brush, with a slight gap of open ground separating him from Goullet. Madden was third, Keller fourth, McBeath fifth and Corry sixth. Kaiser came back in the fourth heat and duplicated the victory of his teammate in the previous spurt. Magin was second, Hill third, Spencer fourth, Olivieri fifth and Drobach sixth.

McBeath showed a flash of the speed with which he is said to be abundantly supplied in the fifth sprint, coming through to victory after a ding dong battle over the home stretch with Corry. Eaton was third, Weber fourth, Goullet fifth and Keller sixth. In the sixth of the series, Oliveri emerged victorious, trailed by Bello, Magin, Hanley, Hill and Spencer. The seventh sprint went to Spiessens, with Goullet second, Madden third, Keller fourth, Eaton fifth and Kopsky sixth.

Walker Scores for Australia.

Walker added the second victory for the Australian team in the eighth heat when he spurted over the line in front of Aerts. Hill was a close third. Magin was fourth, Spencer fifth and Hanley sixth. One of the closest finishes of the night was produced in the ninth spring when the four leaders were closely lapped on each other. McBeath was the winner, making the third sprint success for the Australian pair. Corry was second, Goullet third, Madden fourth, Keller fifth and Girardengo sixth.

The tenth and final sprint found the crowd on its feet during the last three laps, yelling wildly as the riders tore madly about the saucer. Godivier gained the lead before the start of the bell lap and carried the field around at such a pace that no rider made an attempt to displace him. Magin was second, Hanley third, Hill fourth, Spencer fifth and Aerts sixth.

The lead which Magin and Madden have enjoyed since the start of the point sprints was maintained through the hard riding of the evening. The New Jersey pair accounted for 39 points in the ten sprints, bringing their aggregate up to 185. This was a margin of 13 in excess of the Goullet-Hill team total, which was 172. Goullet and Hill scored 87 points in the sprints. Hanley and Keller with 24 points were the next highest point winners and retained third position with 132 points.

Spencer and Corry, who scored 28 points, had a total of 117 and Eaton and Kaiser, who emerged with 21, had an aggregate of 104. McBeath and Walker scored 20 tallies and jumped into a tie at 97 points in the aggregate with the Deruyter and Aerts team, which accounted for but 7 points during the ten sprints.

Girardengo and Oliveri scored 12 tallies, bringing their total up to 85. Weber and Drobach got 4 markers for a grand total of 67. Spiessens and Buysse were next in the aggregate with 61, followed by Dupuy and Godivier with 50. Kopsky and Bello with 34 and Gaffney and Verraes with 8. Spiessens-Buysse, Dupuy-Godivier and Kopsky-Bello pairs, each scored 6 points during the sprints. Gaffney and Verraes failed to score for points in any of the ten sprints.

Indoor Football at Night Planned for Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Philadelphia this Winter is to have a season of indoor football with night games, according to an announcement today by Joseph P. Maguire, manager of the Second City Troop eleven. The games will be played in the drill hall of the New Cavalry Armory in West Philadelphia on an oval lacking only five yards of the regulation distance between the goal posts. In order to give the proper space for catching forward passes back of the goal line it was necessary to reduce the distance between the posts to 95 yards. The playing surface is tan bark and the huge vaulted roof will permit of the loftiest punts. Maguire said he was arranging a schedule of games for the Second City Troop team.

PRINCETON TO PLAY HOCKEY THIS YEAR

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 24.—Princeton will be represented during the coming ice season by a hockey team, but the Nassau Club will not be enrolled in the Intercollegiate Hockey League recently organized in New York. Both these matters were considered in yesterday's meeting of the University Board of Athletic Control.

It was also decided to erect an outdoor rink of the high board variety on the lower campus for practice purposes. Conditioning exercises for the candidates will start Monday, when the men will report on University Field.

It is very likely that the Tiger hockey players will revive with Yale, the former custom of playing a practice series in Pittsburgh during the Christmas holidays. Only one man of last year's team was graduated last June, and, aided by proper coaching, which has not been available in recent years, the Tigers expect to make their presence felt on the frozen surfaces this Winter.

Although no definite schedule has been arranged it is certain that Princeton will meet Harvard, Yale, Cornell and Penn in games to be played in Boston and Philadelphia, at which latter place Princeton will play her home games.

WINTER RACING BEGINS.

Meetings at New Orleans, Havana and Tijuana Start Today.

The Winter racing season, which will continue until late in March of next year, will begin today with the simultaneous opening of three tracks. New Orleans, Havana and Tijuana will engage the attention of racing enthusiasts, each of the tracks opening with a Thanksgiving Day Handicap.

The racing at New Orleans will last until Mar. 17, while at Havana and Tijuana the sport will continue for one hundred days or more, depending on the conditions in the Spring. Each of the meetings promises to be better than those of last season, as there are more horses available and the purses have been increased considerably. Many of the present yearlings will get their first racing experience at New Orleans and Havana, a number from the large stables of the North having been sent South for early tests.

NEW STAKE RACE FOR SPA.

A new stake event, to be known as the Consolation and which will have a gross value of $7,500, has been added to the program of the Saratoga Association, it was announced yesterday by Racing Secretary A. McL. Earlocker. The race is open to two-year-olds which have been nominated for the Hopeful, Grand Union, United States and Spinaway stakes, and as the name implies, is introduced as a consolation for owners whose nominations failed to come up to expectations and which would have little chance in the stakes mentioned. MY DEAR TAKES MAHUBAH PURSE

Proves to Be the Best of a Field of Six in Featured Event at Bowie.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 24.—With the weather clear and the track in much improved condition, a large crowd turned out for the racing at Bowie this afternoon and witnessed the running of the Mahubah Purse, which was offered as the feature of the card. This was a test at a mile for fillies and mares and was won by F. Musante's three-year-old filly, My Dear, which proved to be considerably the best of the field of six starters. Though ridden out at the finish, My Dear got up to win by a length from Ballet Dancer 2d, which was made a strong favorite and which was doing her best to save second from Wood Violet.

The fields are growing smaller at Bowie with the end of the local season in sight and directly as a result of the many shipments of horses that have been made to the various tracks which will conduct racing during the Winter months. However, the competition was good today despite the fact that five of the seven favorites failed to come up to the expectations of their backers.

The defeat of Ballet Dancer 2d was a hard blow to the players as she had been heavily backed, but she had no excuse, as she was in front for the greater part of the journey and was tiring so badly in the stretch that she swerved when Mooney applied the whip and was hopelessly out of it.

My Dear, which has been improving recently, was kept well off the pace during the early running and was apparently being badly outrun while Escarolette and Lady Gertrude made the pace. These latter dropped back at the half mile pole and Ballet Dancer 2d, which had worked her way up on the inside going through the back stretch, popped to the front at the far turn and appeared to be the winner. My Dear closed with a rush once she entered the stretch and catching Ballet Dancer 2d tiring at the furlong pole, easily disposed of the erstwhile leader, but Heupel took no chances and rode his mount out to the finish. Wood Violet was close to the pace all the way, and, closing fast, was only a neck back of the favorite for second place at the finish and would have been second in a few more strides.

The first race, a five and a half furlong dash for two-year-olds, brought an upset when Caprose got up in a driving finish to get his nose over in front of Mollie Barnes and Lough Maiden, among others. This winner paid better than 20 to 1, the mutuels paying $44.40 to holders of $2 tickets, of which there seemed to be few. Caprose sneaked through on the rail, entering the stretch, and stood a hard drive to get up for the victory. Mollie Barnes having gained the lead at the head of the stretch when My Friend Pat, which had made the pace, suddenly backed up from first to tenth place.

E. K. Bryson's Tingling scored another victory, taking the second event from a field of nine two-year-olds at six and a half furlongs. Tingling was fortunate to get to the front for he had been cut off all the way to the last turn. There Butwell brought him through on the rail and finding an opening rushed up and gained the verdict by a nose from Gilt Fringe, with Silence third. Ross R. showed his usual early speed, but tired badly and was fourth after being in front for most of the race.

The final race went to Woodthrush, which was best at the mile and a sixteenth, winning handily from Spearlene and Kingling 2d among others in the field of seven. Spearlene was used up in the early running and tired in the stretch, where the winner came up and assumed command.

Macomber and Vanderbilt Stables Win on French Turf

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The A. K. Macomber stable and the stable of the late W. K. Vanderbilt were, respectively, third and fourth on the list of winning owners in the flat racing season just finished. Macomber's forty-four victories earned 863,000 francs, while the forty victories of the Vanderbilt stable netted 541,000 francs.

Fifth place was won by a stable composed of only one horse, Comrade, winner of the Grand Prix de Paris and the Arc de Triomphe stakes, his only two starts in France. These netted his owner, E. de Saint-Alary, 503,000 francs. M. Eknayan, a naturalized Armenian, took first place with seventy victories worth close to 1,000,000 francs. Baron Edouard de Rothschild was second with fifty-four victories, which totaled 963,000 francs.

Frank O'Neill, the American jockey who was under suspension during the last two weeks of the season, led the jockeys.

BOXING OFFICIALS MAKE GOOD REPORT

A financial statement of the activities of the Boxing Commission to date, was issued yesterday by the commission and reflects a remarkably flourishing condition in the sport and the revenue derived by the State from the bouts thus far held and the license fees collected to date. The expenses of the officials up to Nov. 20, were $13,444.65, and the receipts, including license fees and State taxes, were $48,217.52, providing an excess over expenditures, of $34,772.87. An estimate of the income which will be derived during next year, places the revenue from fees at $100,000 and from taxes, at $117,000. The expenses of the commission for the year are estimated at $80,667.84, leaving an estimated net revenue to the State of $136,332.16. In the report for its work to date, the commission discloses an unencumbered balance of the original appropriation of $40,000, of $28,555.35.

Reuben Jaffe, who boxes under the name of Knockout Jaffe, a Harlem middleweight, and Thomas (Silent) Martin of Brooklyn, were suspended by the commission, for a period of thirty days. The punishment was meted out to the two boxers because of their unsatisfactory work in a bout at the Commonwealth Sporting Club on Nov. 13. Harry Murk, a Brooklyn boxer, received a similar period of enforced idleness as punishment for not fulfilling contracts with the Woodhaven Sporting Club and Brighton A. C.

The case of Jaffe and Martin was scheduled for a hearing at last week's meeting of the commission, but, through some misunderstanding by the parties concerned, the officials were compelled to defer the hearing when the principals failed to appear before the governing sport body. The two boxers were disqualified in the fourth round of their bout at the Commonwealth Sporting Club on the night of Nov. 13, by Referee Jack Dorman, because of their unsatisfactory boxing.

ROPER BESTS MARTIN.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Captain Bob Roper of Chicago gained the referee's decision over Bob Martin, champion of the A. E. F., in their fast ten-round bout tonight.

Seven of the ten rounds went to Roper, who fought well to the inside of Martin's guard, using a left jab to good advantage. Martin set a fast pace when the men met for the first round, but he took a right hook to the heart in the second that slowed him up for the remainder of the bout.

PIONEER BOUTS TONIGHT.

Tommy Noble to Meet Sammy Sieger in 15-Round Fracas.

In accord with his announced intention of conducting a series of featherweight elimination bouts, Charley Doesserick of the Pioneer Sporting Club has contracted for another fifteen-round bout between 126-pounders for the club's second show, which will be held this evening. Tommy Noble, formerly holder of the Lord Lonsdale belt, will engage Sammy Sieger, east side boxer, who has advanced rapidly as a professional since abandoning the amateur ring. Both boxers are reported to have trained faithfully for the bout and are said to be in excellent condition. It is probable that a match will be arranged between the victor in tonight's contest and Billy De Foe of St. Paul, who was victorious in the bout against Gene Delmont last week. An attractive card of preliminaries will precede the Noble-Sieger bout.

FUTURITY NOMINATIONS.

Total of 526 Horses Named for First Running of the Pimlico.

The nominations for the first three runnings of the Pimlico Futurity, which will be inaugurated during the next Autumn meeting, were announced yesterday by Racing Secretary Frank J. Bryan. The lists for all three events have filled beyond expectations. A total of 526 nominations were received for the first test, which will be held on Nov. 8 of next year, while 705 have been received for the 1922 event and 1,332 for the 1923 event.

The Pimlico Futurity is to be one of the richest, if not the richest, tests in the country for two-year-olds. The Maryland Jockey Club will add $40,000 to each event. The races will be at a mile, this being the best test for juveniles at that time of the year.

Among the nominators are some of the best known sportsmen in racing. On the list appears the names of Major August Belmont, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, Walter M. Jeffords, W. S. Kilmer, A. K. Macomber, Edward B. McLean, John E. Madden and Harry Payne Whitney.

MANY ANXIOUS TO SEE PRISON BOUT

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 24.—At least 5,000 fight fans have made application to Warden A. V. Anderson to witness the two boxing bouts at the Federal Prison here tomorrow in which Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, will make an attempt to "come back."

Few outsiders, however, will be admitted to the prison for the boxing tournament, Warden Anderson announced, as it was arranged strictly as a Thanksgiving Day entertainment for the prisoners.

George Owen, formerly a sparring partner of Johnson, arrived yesterday, and "Topeka" Jack Johnson, another negro boxer, was expected tonight. Each will go five rounds with the former champion. The prisoners will stage four preliminary bouts.

BAKER TO MOVE SLOWLY.

Will Take Time in Picking New Manager, Says Phillies' Owner.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Mike Kelley of the St. Paul American Association baseball team having declined the managership of the Philadelphia Nationals, William F. Baker, President of the Phillies, said today he had several other men in mind to succeed Manager Cravath.

"The Phillies," said Baker, "are after a manager of experience. Kelley's decision not to come East has complicated things, but I have the names of several players in the National League at hand and will take my time in picking a new manager."

John Henry (Honus) Wagner, athletic director at Carnegie Tech, who played twenty-one seasons in the National League, was among the applicants.

Matinee at Commonwealth S. C.

The Commonwealth S. C. will hold a matinee show this afternoon, in which two ten-round bouts will feature the card. The principal bout is announced as between Charlie Beecher, east side featherweight, and Earl Puryear, the Tulsa, Okla., boxer, who will be making his first local appearance. The other ten-round bout will bring together Nero Chink, of Porto Rico, and Harry Robinson, a pair of negro middleweights. A six-round bout and a four-round contest complete the card. Matchmaker Tom McArdle has arranged to start the holiday attraction promptly at 3 o'clock.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The National Symphony Orchestra.

The National Symphony Orchestra repeated yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall the program that it presented the evening before. The audience was not one of the largest that has heard its concerts this season. The program was made up, in Mr. Bodanzky's excellent manner, of three pieces: d'Indy's symphony, "Summer Day on the Mountain"; Glazunoff's concerto for violin, played by Efram Zimbalist, and the overture to Smetana's opera of "The Bartered Bride."

The symphony is characteristic of d'Indy's later period; more accessible than the B flat symphony, it is yet a work of grave seriousness. The three sections are entitled "Dawn," "Afternoon" and "Evening." The programmatic suggestion is almost entirely one of mood, rather than of tangible or visible things; but there are the multitudinous calls of birds in the first movement, superimposed upon a long sustained note suggestive of the rising sun. There are hints of peasant dancing in the middle movement, the passing of a Summer storm, and in the last movement the chiming of bells.

But these are passing details. The substance of the work is of more sublimated imaginative power. D'Indy has of course followed through the symphony his guiding principle of the evolution and community of themes, several of which appear in various guises in the three movements. The themes themselves are musically significant and their development is conducted with more or less ingenuity and plastic resource—with a compelling feeling for beauty and expressiveness. Its beauty is sometimes austere and sophisticated; it is not sensuous, and the orchestration, while it is varied and rich, is not glowing. Mr. Bodanzky gave it a carefully prepared performance, a real interpretation of its spirit.

Mr. Zimbalist gave a superb performance of Glazunoff's concerto, the work in which he made his first appearance in New York. It was a performance of gorgeously rich tone, entrancing cantilena, and in the florid passages brilliant and accurate; such purity of intonation in double stoppings is rarely heard, and Mr. Zimbalist did it without in the simplest and sincerest manner, with perfect repose and economy of effort. As for the composition itself, it seemed hardly worth its splendid musicianship lavished upon it: it is a facile piece of music-making, fluent and melodious—the first theme of the last section has a knack that haunts the memory—but without great distinction.

A Memorial to Charles T. Griffes.

Under the auspices of the MacDowell Club, and in its hall in West Fifty-fifth Street, a concert in memory of Charles T. Griffes was given last evening. The program was made up of compositions of the late composer. Nicholas Kouloukis, flute, and Walter Golde, piano, played his "Poem" for flute and piano; Miss Eva Gauthier sang a group of five poems of ancient China and Japan, in the five and six tone scales; "Wai Kiki," the poem by Rupert Brooke, and "Sorrow Mydath," by John Masefield; Charles Cooper played three pieces for the piano; the Flonzaley Quartet played two Indian sketches for string quartet, and there was a performance of the charcographic poem, "The White Peacock" without the dancer, Miss Margit Leerass, who was prevented from dancing by illness. Before the music began a tribute to the composer by Lawrence Gilman was read.

The concert gave an interesting view of Mr. Griffes's musical output, excepting in the orchestral forms, and showed the influence exerted on his work by Oriental models, Chinese, Japanese and Indian. Under this influence he worked with singular power and flexibility, the most important instance being offered by the two finely wrought "Indian Sketches." The concert interested a large audience and gave cogency to Mr. Gilman's eloquent lament for the loss of an authentic talent long before its time.

It was announced that the proceeds of the concert would be devoted to establishing a Griffes fellowship fund for the MacDowell colony at Peterborough, N. H.

Nina Tarasova Returns to Stage.

Nina Tarasova, seeming none the worse for a fall from her horse, that postponed for nearly two months her return to the stage, appeared last evening at Carnegie Hall in a recital of Russian art songs and folk songs, these last ranging from picturesque bits like "Moscow," "Lullaby," "The Lot of the Poor Man," to others highly imaginative, "The Night," "St. Peter's Road," "The Marriage of the Wolf and the Lamb." Miss Tarasova is vivid to the bounds of violence in portraying emotions of humble folk; she elaborated some of their songs last night with arrangements by Lazar S. Weiner, and she gave one group of her people's melodies used by Moussorgsky in "Boris," Borodin in "Ibor" and Tschaikovsky in his Opus 11 quartet and Fourth symphony. As an encore, she gave, in Russian, the tragic "Revolution's Hymn" of 1905. Beryl Rubinstein, pianist, played works of Liszt and Chopin's "Scotch Study," on recall.

Phoebe Crosby at Aeolian Hall.

Phoebe Crosby, soprano, who gave a song recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, assisted at the piano by Richard Hageman, was formerly a singer of dramatic rôles in opera with the Aborns. She has apparently sought her true field in an art made glorious once by Mme. Sembrich, whose favorite Brahms "Serenade" and "Spring Night" of Schumann were on her program, with Schubert's "The Young Nun," all delightfully done in English. Miss Crosby, while making no claim as past-mistress of such interpretations, gave with great delicacy two groups in French by Paladilhe and later men, as well as American pieces by Courtlandt Palmer and several women poets and musicians, among them Alice Barnett, Teresa del Riego, Lola Warrell and Florence Barbour.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Lupino Lane, the English comedian who has been playing here in "Afgar," will return to London on the Olympic, sailing in a few days, in order to fulfill a contract providing for his appearance at the London Hippodrome. He will be succeeded in "Afgar" by a comedian who is being brought from England for the purpose. Lane will come back to America next season.

George M. Cohan's next production will be a comedy entitled "Love and Learn," by Vincent LAwrence and Edgar Selwyn, in which Wallace Eddinger will have the leading rôle. It will open out of town around Christmas time.

A special performance of "Thy Name Is Woman" will be given at the Playhouse on Sunday night, Dec. 5, in aid of the Bide-a-Wee Home for Friendless Animals.

PLANS NOT YET COMPLETE

H. E. Byram, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, said yesterday, after the regular monthly meeting of Directors, that the company hoped to receive financial aid from the $300,000,000 revolving fund provided in the Transportation act in meeting the $25,334,000 Chicago & Pacific Western Division 5 per cent. bonds which mature Jan. 1, 1921. He added that arrangements had not yet been completed to meet the maturity.

In regard to the proposed lease by the company of the Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern Railway, Mr. Byram said details of the lease were not yet ready for publication. He did say it would result in an insurance of St. Paul's coal supply, as the road tapped a soft coal region from which St. Paul had been getting a large part of its fuel recently.

Touching on railroad earnings in the closing months of this year, Mr. Byram said that grain movement in the West had been less in volume than had been expected as the natural sequence to the year's crops. This he attributed in part to the fact that farmers seemed to be holding their grain for higher prices. He also said a shrinkage in tonnage should be expected to follow the present stagnant condition of general business, and that earnings, of course, would be affected to some extent. This loss in tonnage he characterized as a postponement of tonnage, as retailers in the West were living a hand to mouth existence, while grain must be shipped to market some time.

SEEK RAIL EQUIPMENT.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad Company has placed an order for twenty-five heavy duty locomotives with the American Locomotive Company, and the Wheeling & Lake Erie has ordered 2,500 freight cars from the Pressed Steel Car Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, according to information obtained yesterday. In addition, the Louisville & Nashville is inquiring for thirty-five locomotives, and other carriers are inquiring in the market for equipment.

While these orders were considered in some quarters as possible forerunners of increased railroad business, in others they attracted but little attention as the feeling was that railroad buyers would hold back their commitments for some time in hopes of lower prices.

Increase American Cigar Common.

Stockholders of the American Cigar Company at a special meeting yesterday voted to increase the authorized common share capitalization from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000. Of the additional $40,000,000 there will be distributed $5,000,000 as a 50 per cent. stock dividend, bringing the outstanding common up to $15,000,000.

Individual Action on Liquidation.

Just as organized action against cancellations failed to stop the flood of order revision, prominent retail executives believe that methods of liquidation and of restoring business can be best taken only along individual lines. It is pointed out that each store has its own problems, and the stores in general have difficulties which are in endless variance. Therefore, some of the best retail opinion is against advising a general remedy which can be universally applied. In fact no such remedy is available.

More Doing in Dry Goods.

Trading in gray goods in the local market was in a little larger volume yesterday than it had been for some time. Both first and second hands were among the sellers. In the printcloths 39-inch 80 squares for November delivery fetched 10½ cents, while 68-72s in the same width for this month, December and January went at 9 cents. In the 38-inch goods, spot 64-60s brought 7½ cents and 60-48s for delivery this month and next 6½ cents. Business in sheetings was confined to 37-inch 48 square, 4-yard goods, which sold at 8½ cents for delivery this month and December.

Character of Surplus Goods.

The fear has been expressed among piece goods buyers that when the large stocks of surplus woolen are made available their sale may have been so long delayed as to render the goods unsalesable. The view is held that a large quantity of the yardage thus held was produced in a period when workmanship was not so careful. The prevailing opinion, however, is that the yardage will generally prove of a desirable character and ought not to suffer on that point. There is no definite information available in the market concerning the quantity of material held, and some believe that the larger portion may be in the form of wool yarns and dyes, rather than in finished goods.

Teaching the Public to Buy.

The opinion is held by some retailers that sales attractions after Christmas ought to be fairly well patronized. As these merchants look at it, there is a certain buying obstinacy on the part of the public which is hard to break down even when remarkably good bargains are offered. In other words, the public may be just as unreasonable in its determination not to buy as in its previous mood of extravagance. The necessary purchase of gifts during the holiday season will, it is felt, break the ice. No outbreak of buying fever is expected, but the impression of retailers who have studied consumer psychology is that sales after Christmas will get a better response than those now being held.

In the judgment of a dress goods seller, the stores are making something of a mistake in relegating yard goods, whether they be woolens, silks, cottons or laces, to the background in their holiday preparations. He pointed out that there has been a distinct tendency on the part of women to purchase such goods for home dressmaking purposes. While reductions made in the prices of ready to wear garments have probably stowed up this demand, he explained that enough women still prefer to buy their own material to make such sales profitable. He stated that gifts of useful things are greatly on the increase, and yard goods offer one of the best purchases of the sort.

Talk of Skipping Season.

Even the optimistically inclined among wholesale clothiers do not figure on getting more than 50 per cent. of a normal Spring business for the season just started. In fact, some of them have already seriously considered skipping the season altogether and making a fresh start with the opening of next Fall. This holds true of houses which have large accumulations of Fall goods and see the opportunity of selling off this surplus to retailers who will use the merchandise in their Spring selling. From the present outlook, production for the new season will be so late in starting that the manufacturers will have only scant time for producing the goods ordered.

Sweaters Have Not Done So Well.

Producers of novelty knitted goods for women make no denial that business in fancy sweaters has been disappointing this Fall. Not only did business start later than usual, but no great part of the initial orders stayed on the books after the cancellation epidemic set in. Price readjustments have helped move goods, but that is about all that can be said of them from the wholesalers' viewpoint. The only real bright spot has been the heavy call for long, brushed scarfs, but not all of the houses in the trade have been able to take advantage of it through lack of production facilities. Very little, if anything, has been attempted for Spring.

Is Simebody in the Woodpile?

The suggestion was made here yesterday that various movements on the part of the retail trade looking to the purchasing of Spring goods now might really be "call-off-your-dog" propositions. It is no secret that retailers in general have not relished the demands of the manufacturers and wholesalers that they do their part in getting prices back as close to normal bases as possible, nor the publicity which has been given to the matter. Realizing that lower wholesale prices born of holding back still longer in placing orders might lead to some more embarrassing suggestions on the part of sellers, it was pointed out, many retailers might feel impelled to waive such cuts in the hope of being thereby enabled to lessen losses on goods already in stock. Buying now for Spring would tend to stabilize prices, even on goods already made, and would likely stop sellers' demands that the retailers do something to "start the wheels turning."

Complain of "Skimping" Again.

Whether certain manufacturers of children's garments are endeavoring to retrieve recent losses or not, the fact remains that retailers are again getting numerous complaints of "skimping." In other words, many of the little garments are being cut "scant" and actually are not of the size indicated on the ticket or tag. In a sample case told of yesterday, a pair of leggings marked size 3 would not fit a child of about that age at all. Size 4 of the same type of garment fitted so snugly that size 5 of another brand was tried on the child. The latter garment was not a bit bigger than the size 4 of the first manufacturer and it finally was necessary for the mother of the child to buy a size 6 of the second brand in order to get a satisfactory fit. Some time ago a movement to standardize sizes in children's goods was started, but it appears to have fallen by the wayside.

Are Not Really Taking Losses.

Despite the mark-downs in women's outer apparel that are advertised by the retail trade throughout the country, it is asserted here that very few of the stores are actually taking losses on the goods. The reason is that the bulk of the merchandise that has been reduced has been of the "special purchase" variety, rather than stock goods. This means, of course, that if any one took a loss it was the manufacturer. In the case of fur garments this has been less true than in woolen or silk goods. Because of the strike, not a great many "jobs" of fur coats have so far been available. Retail "bargains" in furs, consequently, have cut into retailers' profits somewhat. Yet competent judges of values say that these "bargains," in very many instances, have by no means absorbed the original "mark-ups" on the goods

A NEW YORK TIMES EDITORIAL of Nov. 20th said:

THE UNITED HOSPITAL FUND

"The United Hospitals of New York treated more than 178,000 persons in 1919. Half of them were free patients. One-half of the work of the hospitals was for the sick poor. Their number is increasing. The cost of caring for them has increased nearly double since 1919. The public must help the hospitals. These fifty-seven institutions make no distinction of nationality or religion. They are carefully conducted and don't allow themselves to be imposed on by persons pretending to be too poor to pay. To deny them proper support is impossible. * * *"

FINANCIAL MARKETS

An irregular decline in stocks, with much less active trading; a money market not much changed in actual rates, but tending toward easier conditions; further reaction in foreign exchange, a new low price for the year in silver, and a decline in wheat which more than canceled Tuesday's 8-cent advance—these were the more or less confused incidents of yesterday's financial markets. The day's movement on the Stock Exchange was mostly a repetition of the day before. A number of stocks advanced at the opening; this was followed by the familiar selling pressure, which converged especially on two or three industrial shares, after which the market became very irregular, with net declines the rule for the day.

The decline of 2 cents in sterling, partly recovered before the close, was accompanied by weakness in all other European exchanges, including Holland, Spain, Scandinavia and Central Europe. No specific cause appeared; as in the stock market, the movement of exchange is affected to so great an extent by pure speculation that it is difficult to separate the real influences from the unreal. Some comment was made in Wall Street on the fact that the very considerable sums of gold arriving from London, and not obtained at the weekly competitive sales of Transvaal consignments, should fail to be reflected in the sterling rate. If, however, this gold is sent for account of the British Government, it would presumably represent a special transaction unconnected with the exchange market and arranged, like the shipments of September, with a view to that Government's own operations in the New York money market.

While yesterday's cotton market held firm, reaching at one time a price more than 1 cent per pound above Tuesday's lowest, the wheat market broke nearly 10 cents, recovering only fractionally. Such extravagantly violent upward and downward fluctuations in a staple commodity, without the slightest change in the actual facts of its market from one day to another, simply illustrate the extent to which ideas regarding intrinsic values for anything have been thrown into confusion. The stress laid yesterday on the news that Canadian wheat was being imported was very unnecessary. The official foreign trade returns have already shown that 4,400,000 bushels were thus imported in the three months beginning with July and more than a million bushels last November. The present 12 per cent. discount on Canadian exchange naturally means that much of advantage to American buyers of Canadian products, always supposing the Canadian price not to be at the moment too far above our own.

The mid-week reviews of the iron and steel trade point to a somewhat puzzling situation. As stated by The Iron Age, the independent steel companies are now operating only at 50 to 70 per cent. of capacity, with even the export trade "about one-third the volume of a few months ago." Yet in the important steel products, even the expected reduction of prices at independent mills to the Steel Corporation's figure has not been fulfilled. The Iron Age explains that "there is more profit in shipping on old contracts than in taking new business at cut prices." But this could hardly be a long-continuing influence.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 24.

Demand funds on the Stock Exchange Wednesday ruled at 6 per cent. all day. It was the second day in succession that call funds ruled at this rate. Time money shaded by ¼ of 1 per cent. the quotation ruling on Tuesday. On mixed collateral, 60-90 days, the rate was 7¼ per cent. and for 4, 5 and 6 months' the rate was spread 7 to 7¼ per cent. On all industrial paper, short maturities, 7½ per cent. was the going rate, and for 4, 5 and 6 months' 7¼ per cent. Prime name commercial paper discounted at 7¾ per cent., with 8 per cent. for others. In bankers' acceptances, all classes, there was a drop of ⅛ of 1 per cent. all around.

Government withdrawals of deposits at the associated banks approximating $20,000,000 will be made on Friday, which will bring the total for the week thus far to about $40,000,000.

Five million dollars in gold, consigned to local bankers, arrived on the Olympic Wednesday. Before the week-end further shipments now on the seas will bring this total up another $5,000,000.

EXCHANGES DECLINE UNDER HEAVY OFFERINGS

Concessions Made on All Countries, with Particular Pressure on Mid-Europeans.

There was a weak tone to the foreign exchanges yesterday, with recessions in all countries. Demand sterling at the day's low was 2¼ cents under Tuesday's closing, with a final quotation of $3.49¼. Paris francs and Italian lire were freely offered with a consequent heaviness in price tone. Sight bills on Paris got down as low as 6.02 against a final of 6.19 on Tuesday; Italian lire touched a low of 3.64, compared with the previous close of 3.84. Dutch exchange was heavy. The German and Central European countries had a sharp break, the low on marks reaching 1.39, with a high of 1.45. Chinese rates felt the depreciating value of silver and were well below Tuesday's closing quotations.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

More Cheap Money.

With call money down, and time money coming down, Wall Street is convinced that the era of tight money is ended, notwithstanding that there still are some five weeks to go before the year will have been turned. Liquidation of inventory, the favorite explanation of two weeks ago when the first signs of a break in rates were discernible, has been replaced with liquidation of securities, now that the market apparently has been relieved of its weak spots, and the Street is openly cheerful over the outlook. Bankers, more conservatively inclined, still see the possibility of a flurry around the middle of next month, but on the whole they are nearly as confident of a return of relatively low rates as are the brokers.

Acceptances.

The market for bankers' acceptances, which has been the slowest of all to respond to the lower tendency, broke yesterday or, rather, it broke for the opening tomorrow, which amounts to pretty much the same thing, for while quotation sheets with the new and lower rates did not go out until last night, there was business moving yesterday afternoon at the reduced levels. Acceptance dealers, unlike most other people in the financial district, are not so sure that the decline is going to prove permanent, but with them the hope for a return to the rates of the past probably is father to the thought, if it is such, that they may come back.

Reserve Bank Rates.

The rumor got all over Wall Street yesterday that the Federal Reserve Bank was to lower its rediscount rates. No announcement to this effect was made at the bank, so, of course, it can neither be said that rates were lowered or were not lowered at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Directors. In most responsible places, however, it was felt to be highly improbable that any alteration, certainly any reduction, would be made at this time. A month ago, or a month hence, the rumor might have found credence, but at this particular time, with the December "supplemental bulge" still to be heard from, most competent critics were inclined to treat the report lightly.

Next Month's Taxes.

It is no secret that many who are down for big tax payments the middle of next month are badly worried over the outlook. Whether there will be anything done to aid the situation or not remains to be seen, but some, hoping against hope, point to the fact that Congress convenes early in December, that the taxes are not due until Dec. 15, and that taxpayers may, if they wish, avail themselves of the ten days' grace, which would put the ultimate due date back to Dec. 25, or, to be precise, to Dec. 27, for the twenty-fifth is Christmas and the twenty-sixth is Sunday, and by Dec. 27 Congress will have had opportunity to take some sort of assisting action.

British Gold.

It would be interesting to know just why Great Britain should be sending gold to this market at the present time. No information is available, and, accordingly, the Street is left to surmise whether the shipments are in conjunction with the Anglo-French settlement, are being used to retire United Kingdom notes, or for some other purpose. In regard to the retirement of United Kingdom notes, it is pointed out that the notes of 1921 are secured 1 by collateral and that it might be to the point for Great Britain to retire these and release the securities behind them.

Crude Oil Price Reduced.

Word was received yesterday that the Humble Oil and Refining Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, had reduced the price of Texas Gulf Coast crude 50 cents to $2.50 a barrel. This is one of several reductions that have been made here and there in crude petroleum. Thus far, however, there has been no big reduction in crude prices and in view of all that can be learned among oil men there is not likely to be any wholesale slashing of quotations. It was stated in Washington by the head of one of the largest companies that the refiners were in a position to handle all the crude that could be shipped to them. The next few months will naturally constitute a rather dull period in marketing refined products but there will be a building up of surplus stocks to cover the heavy demand which it is believed will exist next Summer. This is especially true with relation to gasoline, stocks on Sept. 1 amounting to 288,195,394 gallons as compared with 446,793,431 gallons on Jan. 1.

Anaconda Oil Well.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company has added another to its long line of activities, having brought in an oil well in the Cat Creek field, which was recently opened up in Montana. The well has an estimated flow of 1,000 barrels of oil daily. Anaconda Copper and the Montana Power Company, it is said, own a majority interest in the property on which oil has been struck. Should the Cat Creek field develop on a large scale it would supply a much needed quanity of light oil, running, it is said, 75 to 80 per cent. gasoline. So high is the gasoline content that it is reported the oil can be used in the motors successfully without even the process of refining.

A Matter of Psychology.

Scarcely a railroad purchasing agent in the United States can see over the tops of the piles of requirements on his desk which sooner or later must be turned into substantial orders for materials which are necessary for railroad operation. But little business is being handed out. Psychology among railroad buyers is the same as in any other field, one equipment manufacturer presenting the situation as follows: "You probably refused to pay your tailor $125 for a suit of clothes six months ago and last week when he offered to make the same suit for $65 you refused to order it because you figured that he will eventually cut his prices still lower. It's the same thing with railroads. Purchasing agents are not buying because they feel that lower prices will come."

Southern Pacific Plan Progressing.

The plan for the separation of the Southern Pacific oil and railroad properties, upon which the Executive Committee has been hard at work since the separation was announced some weeks ago, is understood to be progressing. There has been a rumor to the effect that the move in the stock was interpreted by the board to mean there had been a leak regarding their discussions and that they made their preliminary announcement, as their statement said, "for the protection of their stockholders." It has been rumored recently that an announcement of the details covering the separation of the property may be expected very shortly, although there have been about as many contradictory reports. The company is maintaining its usual silence regarding the matter.

Interborough October Earnings.

While October gross earnings of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company show an increase when compared with the corresponding month a year ago of $452,325 to $4,733,163, expenses increased so that net after taxes declined $74,951 to $1,321,178 and the deficit after charges, but excluding accruals under contracts with the City, increased $189,029 to $407,792, as compared with October, 1919. The increase in operating expenses over the corresponding period a year ago was $523,388, the total for the month being $3,191,896. The number of passengers carried over the company's lines was 88,354,850, which was 9,047,028 more than in October last year. Fixed charges increased $10,960 as the result of opening the Webster Avenue elevated extension and the Pelham Bay Park line in the Bronx.

Low Prices for Bonds

Bond prices are low. No one disputes it. That they will eventually reach higher levels is also true. It may take longer for prices to approach normal than some authorities believe, but a good long term bond purchased now is the best kind of investment for the average individual.

NO BITTER OIL WAR, BEDFORD DECLARES

Conservation and Larger Production, Not Profits, Are the Problems, He Says.

WANTS WAR BARS REMOVED

French Monopoly Keeping Prices Up —Reassured Over Italy—Urges Investments Abroad.

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, on his return from Europe, yesterday, on the Olympic, said that recent cables from abroad to the effect that a war to the knife was being waged among the great petroleum interests for possession of the world's oil reservoirs and markets were largely part of the romance which, in the public mind, seemed to attach itself to current history of the petroleum industry.

There was competition in plenty, he said, more so perhaps than in any other world industry, and the search for new sources of supply was keen, but there was neither treaty nor declaration of war between the international oil companies.

Mr. Bedford went to Paris in September to attend the meeting of the Directors of the International Chamber of Commerce and since then had been making a study of economic conditions in Belgium, France, Italy and Holland.

"The problems of the oil business today," said Mr. Bedford, "are not profits and large markets, but conservation and larger production. The world is short of oil, but the situation will not be improved either by trade rivalries for concessions or by the capture of market monopolies. What international trade needs is the removal of every vistage of artificial regulation and restriction, and this applies particularly to the petroleum industry.

Opposes Government Control Abroad.

"A great popular outcry is heard both in Great Britain and on the Continent against Government control of trade in essentials. Bureaucracy dies hard, however, and much of the war machinery for the official direction of business has survived. Not only is it superfluous and an unnecessary public expense, but it is keeping prices high, and it is one of the causes of the continued inflated budgets. Britain and Europe have made a very tardy response to the drop in commodity prices on this side, and the British and European press put the responsibility upon Government control.

"In France," continued Mr. Bedford, "the petroleum monopoly which was established during the war is still in existence, but it has not had the effect of cheapening the cost of petroleum products to the consumer, neither has it brought about any improvement in the existing rather cumbersome and uneconomical methods of distribution. Because of its geographical position in respect to the sources of production, France is naturally competing territory, and of all large oil markets it would probably profit most by an open-door policy.

"The oil interests, however, hope that the French Government, which has exhibited great breath of view and skill in the administration, of the country's affairs, and will before long dissolve the monopoly and give the people the benefit of unrestricted trade and competition If this expectation an alliance has been made by us with the powerful Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas in the organization of the Standard Franco-American Oil Company. My view has always been that one of the surest methods of restoring financial co-operation between Europe and America is by the investment of American capital in European enterprises such as this.

"France's sense of double insecurity, military on one side, and uncertainty as to the policy of her great allies on the other," said Mr. Bedford, "was revealed to me by a very prominent French statesman, who said, 'If now the United States would stand out and say to us, "Go back to your homes, put away your rifles on the racks, fear nothing, and your due will be given to you, and we will be with you in all your difficulties," with what joy would we not greet this blessing and dissolve our army, which weighs so heavily upon us.

"'If Germany declares she cannot pay but wants to do her best, France is willing to examine her accounts in a spirit of justice and give her time to fulfill her engagements. But first let every German be taxed as much as every Frenchman. But if, encouraged by the hope that the bonds of friendship between France and her allies will relax in time, she tries not to pay, and if she says "I can't" when she means "I won't," then France with her army has the means to make good the Treaty of Versailles which all her allies have signed, but which France alone has been left to enforce.'

Is Reassured About Italy.

Mr. Bedford expressed himself as greatly reassured by his contact with Italian affairs and by his meeting with Premier Giolitti and his Cabinet. The significance of many of the industrial disturbances in Italy had been greatly exaggerated, he said. The readjustment of labor conditions had at times assumed an apparently drastic aspect, but under the able direction of the Government wise and amicable settlements were being reached between capital and labor.

"Italy has many trying problems," Mr. Bedford continued, "and in their solution she feels that she is receiving scant encouragement and assistance from her allies and little recognition of her part in the war. But the political complexion of the country is far from being as bad as it has been pictured, and the Government and the people are carrying on a difficult task with much courage and spirit.

"There is abundant scope for American initiative and American capital in Europe. This does not necessarily mean only the export of American goods to these markets, but the development of business opportunities which Europe at the moment presents, and the position of the American dollar in the world's money markets affords an opening which never occurred before, and which may never occur again."

CONFER ON CUBAN LOAN.

State Department Declines to Approve Proposals Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Although there was a conference today at the State Department between officials and some American bankers no decision has been reached by the United States regarding the loan which Cuba would like to obtain to improve the financial situation in that country.

The size of the loan which, it is understood, is being considered is $50,000,000. The idea is that this money would be lent to the Cuban Government by American bankers, this financial aid to be used to enable the Cuban Government to lift the moratorium recently declared. The existence of this moratorium has still further complicated the congestion of freight at Havana. If the moratorium can be lifted it is believed it would greatly facilitate the situation.

Certain propositions were submitted to the consideration of the State Department today, but these were not approved. On Friday there will be another conference at the State Department between officials of this Government and certain Cuban representatives who will be here on that date. It is probable that some decision may be reached after that conference.

The officials of the State Department are acting in an advisory capacity in the matter, at the request of the Cuban Government.

Templar Motors Stockholder Alleges Only Stock Sales Have Paid.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24.—Appointment of a receiver for the Templar Motors Company of Cleveland, a $10,000,000 corporation, was asked in a petition filed in court today by J. W. Wilson of Columbus, who says he is a stockholder. Wilson says there are 20,000 stockholders in the company, and in his petition asserts that it has never been on a paying basis except through sale of stock.

M. F. Bramley, President of the company, said it was absurd to have such a petition filed, that the company had more than $8,000,000 of assets and an indebtedness of not more than $600,000.

NORTH BUTTE LAYS OFF 450.

Special to The New York Times.

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 24.—More than 450 men were laid off by the North Butte Mining Company tonight. Production of copper will be curtailed to 5,000,000 pounds monthly until there is an improvement in the metal markets.

John Ghlie, manager of mines of the Anaconda Company, stated tonight that his company planned no further reduction at present. Several of the independent companies made similar announcements.

MOVE TO EXTRADITE ROGERS

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 24.—Extradition papers were made out today in the office of District Attorney C. H. Wright for Harry M. Rogers, former stock and bond salesman for the local brokerage office of Hollister, White & Co., who was arrested in New York last night for the Springfield police, who charge him with larceny of $27,000 worth of securities from the clients of the brokerage house.

It is alleged that Rogers diverted valuable securities given him by clients of the concern to his own use. His plan, according to the authorities, was to visit clients who desired to transfer their securities for some other stock through his concern take their stock and "stall" off their requests for other securities in return by saying that the transaction would take several weeks, or by giving them worthless oil stocks.

He would satisfy the company, it is said, by declaring that the clients had changed their minds about transferring their securities, and then, it is alleged, dispose of the securities.

Finally clients became worried and went to the concern's office, where a hasty investigation revealed the facts.

WESTERN PRODUCTS LOWER

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Butter dropped from 1 to 3 cents a pound on the local market today as a result, trade leaders said, of an oversupply, including large Argentine stocks.

Creamery, extras, were quoted at 53½ cents today, a drop of 3 cents, while firsts ranged from 42 to 52, as compared to 43 to 54 yesterday. Seconds fell 3 cents and standards 1½ cents.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24.—A further decline of 35 cents in the price of hogs was recorded at the National Stock Yards here today, the top price being $9.00 a hundred pounds, against $10.35 yesterday. This is the lowest since Oct. 4, 1916, when the day's top was $9.50. Heavy receipts again were ascribed as the principal cause of the low prices.

STEEL MEN DISCUSS NEXT YEAR'S PRICES

RATES FOR 1921 UNCERTAIN

Independents Declared Unable to Make Cuts Without Readjustment of Wage Scale.

The announcement by the Steel Corporation that it would not alter its present price schedule has had no measurable effect on the steel market, according to The Iron Age, which says that its precise intent is not yet clear.

"It has been understood," this publication says, "that the corporation seriously considered advancing rail prices, and the fact that it made large contracts for 1921 into which the price was to be written later pointed to a higher level than $47, which it has maintained since March, 1919.

"Several independent mills that for more than a year have charged $55 and higher for rails have refused to book orders for 1921 with the proviso that the Steel Corporation price govern, and some of these mills could not meet the Steel Corporation's $47 price without a drastic readjustment of wages and other costs. In view of the large rail requirements for next year the situation created by the Steel Corporation's stand is a matter of widespread comment in the trade. Yet the prices to govern on 1921 rail contracts have not been fixed at this writing.

"Expectations of a speedy drop in independent producers' prices on rolled products to those of the Steel Corporation have been disappointed. In some lines, as automobiles and agricultural implements, new buying on any scale is likely to be delayed four or five months. Meanwhile there is more profit in shipping on contracts than in taking new business at cut prices. More shut-downs of independent mills are looked for, and buyers are not expected to contract freely until the great readjustment has come, which will involve general wage reductions."

The Iron Trade Review differs sharply with The Iron Age as to the effect of the Steel Corporation price schedule announcement, holding that the statement has clarified the situation. In this connection it says:

"The mixed price situation in iron and steel has been clarified to a considerable extent by the official announcement of the Steel Corporation that no changes in its minimum quotations are to be made under present conditions. Consumers interpret this to mean that, with competition for orders growing keener constantly, the gap that has separated the schedule of the independent mills and the leading interests is to be closed more rapidly. In reality, the week's market developments tend to show an accelerated movement in that direction. Price reductions by independent producers have been more numerous, and a more general disposition is shown to adopt whatever readjustments are necessary to put the market on a stable basis.

"Along with this downward trend of prices has appeared a wider discussion of the probabilities of wage revisions. Leaders in the industry, however, are opposed to any reductions of this sort at the present time, in view of the exalted basis of living costs.

"New business remains sluggish, and specifications, with the one exception of tubular goods, are backward. This is impelling further curtailment of production, and this week has added more mills and furnaces to the idle list."

WHEAT BREAKS AGAIN.

Heavy Selling Causes Prices to Decrease 7¾ to 9¼ Cents.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Heavy selling pressure, much of it ascribed to a leading New York trader, led to a severe break today in wheat prices. Reports that 300,000 barrels of flour without financial backing had been vainly seeking a buyer at Philadelphia were made much of by the bears. The market closed unsettled, 7¾@9¼c net lower with December $1.50¼@$1.60¾ and March $1.54⅜@$1.55. Corn lost 2¼@2½c. and oats ⅞@1¼c. In provisions the outcome ranged from 15c. decline to 82c. advance.

In addition to reports of distress in the flour trade at Philadelphia the wheat market was confronted by news of downturns in stocks and cotton as well as by word of a bank failure in one of the richest agricultural counties in Illinois. Sentiment which yesterday favored the bull side reversed itself quickly and there was a general rush to unload wheat recently purchased. Before the onsuing declines were ended March delivery was down again to the minimum reached Monday, the season's lowest. Export buying of large proportions developed on the break and caused a little recovery in the late dealings.

Corn and oats sympathized with the weakness of wheat. Elevator interests, however, helped steady the market through extensive buying of December and May corn. In provisions demand from packers largely counterbalanced the effect of hog weakness. Besides November lard appeared greatly wanted by shorts.

STANDARD OIL STOCK OFFERED EMPLOYES

New Jersey Company Directors Propose Reduction of Par Value to $25.

WOULD INCREASE CAPITAL

$10,000,000 in New Common Would Be Available to Workers as an Investment.

The Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey at a special meeting yesterday recommended a reduction in the par value of the common stock from $100 a share to $25 and also an increase in the common capitalization from $100,000,000 to $110,000,000. Of the present authorized capital $98,338,300, or practically the entire amount, is outstanding.

The increased capital is to be used as a means of allowing employes to acquire an investment interest in the company. It has not been decided at what price the stock would be offered to employes. If, however, the offering were at par there would be a tidy gain for the subscribers, since Standard of New Jersey stock now is selling at about $620 a share and, with the new par effective, it would be expected that the selling price would be about $150 a share. It is considered probable, however, that Standard of New Jersey will offer the stock at somewhere near the market price, after the practice of the United States Steel Corporation. In this event the $10,000,000 offering of common stock would bring the company about $62,000,000.

The amount of stock to be offered to employes is in doubt. In this country alone, Standard of New Jersey has some 37,000 employes eligible to subscribe, and it is understood the subscription right may be extended to employes of subsidiary companies.

The company's announcement follows:

"The Directors of the Standard Oil Company (N. J.), at a special meeting, voted to submit to the stockholders for their approval a proposal to authorize an increase in the common stock of $10,000,000, making the total $110,000,000, and to change the par value of the common stock from $100 a share to $25 a share. There will be no change in the $200,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock.

"The proposed increase in the authorized issue of common stock and the reduction in the par value thereof are for the purpose of making effective a plan long under consideration to enable employes, with assistance from the company, to acquire an investment interest therein. The plan includes all employes who have been for one year actively engaged in the conduct of the company's business.

"A special meeting of stockholders has been called for Dec. 20, 1920, to be held at Bayonne, N. J., notice of which will be sent to stockholders as soon as prepared."

For a long time it has been reported that Standard of New Jersey had some plan under consideration whereby there would be a stock dividend or a subdivision of the shares by a reduction in par value. The object of this was considered to be a desire to popularize Standard Oil stock, a condition which could hardly come to pass with the shares selling as high as $600 to $800 a share. The company has never made any statement on this point, however.

It was the opinion of some that other Standard Oil companies might follow the lead set by Standard of New Jersey. Not long ago Standard of Indiana declared a big stock dividend and more recently it has been recommended that the par value of the shares be reduced to $25. The common stocks of the majority of Standard Oil companies are of $100 par value.

DULL AND IRREGULAR COTTON MARKET

The cotton market was irregular and undecided during most of yesterday's session and business, probably because of the impending holiday, was on a relatively light scale. There was a sharp decline at the outset, due to the lower than due Liverpool cables and to some fresh Southern selling, but the weakness gave way later to a rally which carried the list up 65 to 70 points from the extreme lows to gains of 26 to 28 points net. Most of this rally came as a result of some light trade buying and a fair amount of short covering and evening up for today's closing. The last hour, however, saw all of the gains lost again and by closing time the market was unchanged to about 10 points down from Tuesday.

So far as could be learned there was little change in the cotton situation. Trade reports here were as dismal as ever, although the spot situation in the South seems to be slightly better than it was a week or two ago. Little or no change was reported in spot prices yesterday. The situation abroad also was practically without change, and neither the Liverpool cotton market nor the Manchester goods market showed anything either startlingly good or startlingly bad. Spots at Liverpool were down another 22 points to the basis of 11.71d which, of course, is a new low record.

Exports amounted to 15,137 bales, considerably below the average for other days of the week. However, the total thus far this week is now 143,871 bales, within about 5,000 bales of last week's full total. But this is far below the total of the corresponding week of last year, when the full amount exported was 320,597 bales.

SEES FRENCH LOAN SUCCESS

Paris Ministry of Finance Says Amount Is Oversubscribed.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Optimistic reports from the progress of the French loan, which closes soon, caused the Ministry of Finance today to forecast that the loan would be a success. The opening last week was under extremely satisfactory conditions, the Ministry declared, and the amount already subscribed greatly exceeds that of the last loan, which was the equivalent of approximately $4,000,000,000 under normal rates of exchange.

"It was the case last Spring," the statement added, "the number of subscribers increases daily as the closing day approaches. During the last week of the previous loan the largest subscriptions were received in the provinces, which never before have subscribed as heavily as at present."

BUYS LARGE PLOT ON VARICK STREET

SALE ON MURRAY STREET

Deal in Murray Street.

The Iron Mountain Realty Company, Isidore Mishkind, President, purchased from Josephine Gesner Raul and Herbert E. Gesner 103 and 105 Murray Street, a five-story commercial building, on a plot 40.3 by 92.5. A resale of the property to a firm in the immediate neighborhood is pending. William J. Russell negotiated the transaction.

Fifty-seventh Street Transfer.

The five-story building with three-story extension at 36 West Fifty-seventh Street, on a plot 27 by 100.5, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, will be taken over by the 36 West Fifty-seventh Street Company, having G. W. and R. Grene and R. Roenberg as Directors. Title is held by the Isabella Reinsberg estate.

Sixth Avenue Purchase.

The South Sixth Avenue Company, Edward J. Crawford, President, which three years ago leased the property at 339 to 353 Sixth Avenue and 107 West Twenty-first Street, comprising part of the old O'Neill-Adams store, has purchased the portion 343 and 345 Sixth Avenue, 42 by 85, from the estate of Charles Frederick Hoffman. The plot is 52.6 feet north of Twenty-first Street.

Upper Third Avenue Purchase.

The three-story building at 2,176 Third Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of 119th Street, plot 25 by 100, has been sold to an investor through G. W. Brettel for Albert Wensten. It is the first sale of the property in sixteen years.

POERTNER MOTOR CO. BUYS.

The Poertner Motor Car Company has purchased the former Mason-Seamon garage at 622 to 640 West Fifty-seventh Street, which it occupies as a service station. The property, which was sold by the New York Taxicab Company, is a four-story structure on a plot with a frontage of 250 feet and a depth of 145 feet, located next to the Peerless Motor Car Company service station at the southeast corner of Twelfth Avenue. It is one of the largest auto buildings in the district, where many companies maintain their service stations.

Downtown Building Operations.

The Charles F. Noyes Company announced that Sigsbee Graham will alter 109-111 Leonard Street, at the northeast corner of Benson Place, into a six-story office structure.

The Travelers Insurance Company will erect a five-story building at 8 and 10 Dutch Street. It will be used with the sixteen-story Hilliard Building, adjoining, recently acquired by the Travelers company through the Noyes company.

PEACE, LOVE AND FRIENDSHIP SYMBOLIZED AT GENEVA.

There is a full-page etching in this week's Mid-Week Pictorial of a dance on the shores of Lake Geneva in honor of the League of Nations Conference symbolizing Peace, Love and Friendship. It is a remarkable picture well worth a frame, irrespective of its historic value. There are 77 etchings in the same issue of big news events the world over, including a topographical map showing the defeat of General Wrangel, the funeral of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, the League of Nations Conference in session, a new human document of President-elect Harding, big football news, the drama. FEDERAL BLUE LAW IS ALLIANCE'S AIM

Secretary Advocates His Boyhood Observance of Contemplation and Helpful Reading.

After three years of what was termed "preliminary and organization work," the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, with headquarters at 156 Fifth Avenue, has launched a national campaign to obtain legislation enforcing a stricter observance of Sunday. Cessation of business and labor, with few exceptions, curtailment of transportation, the closing of places of amusement and the possible restriction of newspapers on the first day of the week are among its objects, as outlined by an official of the organization.

In the event that municipal and State authorities fail to pass the restrictive measures, the threat was made to seek a Constitutional amendment containing a series of "blue laws."

Dr. Harry L. Bowlby, the General Secretary, declared yesterday that the organization was a fighting one and was well prepared to conduct an intensive campaign. Backed by sixteen religious denominations, he said, the alliance was already thoroughly organized in twenty-one States and the work of organizing it in other States was proceeding rapidly.

Dr. Bowlby said that the alliance was already working on a bill providing for a Sunday rest law in the District of Columbia which would be introduced into the next Congress. In the event that such a measure was passed, and he seemed confident that it would be, Dr. Bowlby said it would focus the attention of the rest of the country on the sort of legislation the alliance was favoring.

To compensate for the loss of a day now devoted to pleasure, Dr. Bowlby said the alliance was advocating a half holiday for all workers on some week day. He believed this feature of the program would appeal to organized labor, and he made the assertion that prominent labor leaders and members of labor bodies favored strict Sunday laws. Many Catholic priests and members of the laity of that Church were in sympathy with the alliance, he said, adding that a well-known Catholic was a member of the Board of Managers.

"Do you consider your program fair to the Jews and other peoples making up our population, who do not recognize Sunday as the Sabbath?" Dr. Bowlby was asked.

"As regards the Jews, there are a great many of them who do not keep their own Sabbath," he said. "A well known rabbi has said that the Jew from a standpoint of patriotism ought to commend to his own people that they have a proper respect for the Christian Sabbath. The Jew has been protected in the United States because the country has risen to its high state of civilization under Christianity and instead of going to Albany and trying to smash the Christian Sabbath he ought to be standing up for it."

"How would you have Sunday observed?" Dr. Bowlby was asked.

"I wish it could be observed as in the days of my boyhood, when it was different from other days. It should be a day when amusements and secular affairs are forgotten, and spent in restful contemplation, walks in God's fresh air and in the reading of helpful books."

The Alliance will endeavor to repeal the laws enacted last year permitting Sunday baseball and movies when the Legislature meets at Albany, Dr. Bowlby said, while other measures along the lines advocated by the society would be introduced.

PENROSE TO SEE LODGE.

Pennsylvania Senator Is Better, but May Not Attend Congress Opening.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—There has been such an improvement in the condition of Senator Boies Penrose, it was stated tonight, that he has made an engagement to confer with Senator Lodge on Saturday. The request for the conference, which will be held at the home of the Pennsylvania Senator, was made by Senator Lodge, who is to speak Saturday at the Union League here.
